NEAR AN AGREEMENT ON CURRENCY BILL

Republican Conferrees Combine the Aldrich and Vreeland Measures After a Hard Day.

FEAR TALK BY DEMOCRATS

Strong Pressure Brought to Bear in House and Senate to Pass the Proposed Compromise.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—After a day spent in active efforts for agreement on a currency bill the Senate and House conferrees adjourned about 7 o'clock this evening, with no other announcement than that they would meet again to-morrow morning. All during the day, however, the reports from the numerous conferences had been more and more hopeful of ultimate agreement, and when the last meeting broke up word went around that the major difference between the Senate and House had been compromised, and only minor details remained for adjustment.

The basis of the agreement toward which the Republican conferrees are working is a combination of the Aldrich and Vreeland bills, leaving it to the banks to determine which class of securities—bonds or commercial paper—they will use in taking out currency authorized. At first it was proposed to make it a half-and-half combination. Afterward there was a proposition to have 60 per cent. of the aggregate on commercial paper and 40 per cent. on bonds. That was bowled out, and then the figures were reversed, so that the latest proposition is to permit the issue of 40 per cent. of the total of $500,000,000 special circulation to be authorized on commercial paper security and 60 per cent. on State, county, and municipal bonds.

There was also discussed at the last meeting of the conferrees a proposition to require a 10 per cent. redemption fund for the special currency.

Doubt About the Democrats.

There have been indications all day that the Republicans were arranging the situation so that they can charge any failure now to pass a currency bill solely to Democratic opposition. The Republicans are disposed to get together, and if the bill fails it will be because the Democratic Senators insist on talking it to death.

It is doubtful if the leaders could keep Congress here for the work if the Democrats should make good their threat of yesterday to filibuster against anything but the Aldrich bill. The Democratic leaders said to-day that they were not to be understood as willing to accept the Aldrich bill, and would insist on a full discussion of it. But they did not consider it as vicious, as they do the Vreeland bill. Senator Teller declared vigorously, so far as he was concerned, that no compromise was possible which embodied any part of the Vreeland commercial paper security plan.

Working for an Agreement.

There was business to be done all day at both ends of the Capitol. On the Senate side pressure was being put on the Democrats to get them to agree to permit the compromise bill to go through without a too violent filibuster. On the House side the whips were hard at work on the insurgents.

The Senate Democrats seemed less inclined to enter an indefinite talking match than they were yesterday. Mr. Culberson, the minority floor leader in the Senate, declared that he had no intention to start a filibuster, but that the Democrats would certainly insist upon sufficient time for full discussion.

The Republican whips in the House reported early in the afternoon that they were confident of being able to pass any bills on which Mr. Burton and Mr. Weeks would agree. These two have been the representatives of the Republican insurgents against the Aldrich bills, and until yesterday Mr. Burton had declared himself unalterably opposed to any part of the Senate bill. Yesterday, however, he expressed himself as willing to make some concessions.

Hard Fight in Conference.

While this outside work was going on the conferrees themselves were hard at it in the effort to reach a compromise. Following the meeting of Senator Aldrich and Mr. Vreeland in the Senator's apartments last night, the House Republican conferrees had a meeting by themselves this morning. Mr. Vreeland submitted the proposition for a compromise which should incorporate the main features of both the Senate and House bills.

The House conferrees did not like this plan. They saw remaining in it the feature of compulsory use of bonds to which they had all along objected. It was the old scheme of forcing a market for bonds. It was finally determined to submit to the Senate conferrees an alternative proposition making it optional with the banks to take out circulation directly from the Treasury on the security of bonds, or to employ commercial paper as security through the Clearing House scheme.

This proposition was made to the Senate conferrees at a meeting held in the rooms of the Senate Finance Committee. The first inclination of the Senators was to accept it, but they concluded to make a further stand for compulsory use of the Aldrich plan, and the conference adjorned until 3 o'clock.

Aldrich and Hale got Teller, one of the foremost Democratic recalcitrants, between them in the Senate and went for him hammer and tongs. The conference attracted attention all over the Chamber, and it was evident that the Republican leaders were putting in heavy work.

Getting Near an Agreement.

Soon after 3 o'clock the conferrees met again in the Finance Committee room and remained together for more than an hour. When they adjourned it was only to meet again at 5:30. Senator Aldrich and Mr. Vreeland remained in consultation after the other conferrees had left, and it was understood that they were preparing the draft of a compromise which should be submitted to the full conference.

It was understood also that the Senators had finally agreed to the alternative proposition of the House conferrees, and that the only questions remaining unagreed upon were one as to provisions regarding the percentage of reserves which the banks would be required to keep in cash in their vaults, one as to the limit of the aggregate emergency circulation to be authorized, and one as to the percentage of issue to be authorized upon commercial paper security. The discussion as to the limit of the total issue was as to whether it should be $500,000,000 or $750,000,000. These were discussed at the late conference.

HETTY GREEN GIVES A PARTY,

Ten-Course Dinner for Twenty in the Plaza's State Apartments.

For the first time in her life as a woman of great wealth Mrs. Hetty Green gave a formal dinner party last night in the state apartment of the Plaza.

Mrs. Green spared neither expense nor energy in arranging her party. Yesterday afternoon, instead of writing checks, she was inscribing dinner cards, but she was most insistent that no details of her party should be known. Among her guests were Mr. and Mrs. Howland Pell, Mr. and Mrs. Amory S. Carhart, Miss Sylvia Green, and Matthew Astor Wilkes. Covers were laid for twenty and the usual ten-course dinner, with wines and the season's luxuries, was served.

The state apartments consist of a large drawing room, a dining room in green and gold, and several dressing rooms. At 7:30 o'clock Mrs. Green took her stand with her daughter to receive the guests. She was metamorphosed from a simple lady in the sixties to a wonderfully smart modern woman. Her gray hair had been dressed by a hairdresser, and she wore a black satin gown trimmed with old point lace.

The mistress of many millions did not wear an earring or a jewel. Miss Sylvia Green wore gray, with a string of pearls.

The dinner passed without incident, and at 10 o'clock the festivities were over. The embellished dinner cards were taken away as souvenirs of the first party given by Mrs. Green.

ENGINEER DEAD IN CAB.

Overland Limited Ran Sixty Miles an Hour, Narrowly Escaping Collision.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 26.—The Overland Limited, the fastest train of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad system, ran last night at nearly sixty miles an hour over interlocking switches and past signals near Byron, Ill., with Engineer Albert Gauvins lying dead on the cab floor and no controlling hand on the throttle. The train, with a hundred passengers aboard, narrowly missed a smashup.

Officials of the railroad to-day heard the story, as told by Fireman Michael Nash. The train left Chicago on the journey to San Francisco at 8:30 last night, with Gauvins at the throttle, in apparent good health. The limited makes but two stops between Chicago and the Mississippi River. The first stop, at Elgin, was made as usual. Near Davis Junction, at Byron, where the train slows down to cross the right of way of another road, Nash noticed that the train was flying across switches and tracks at top speed.

Just as the limited cleared the tracks of the other road a heavy train thundered across in the rear. Nash discovered Gauvins's body lying on the floor. He stopped the train and wired for another engineer.

Gauvins had been in the service of the road about twenty-five years.

William Felton Is Accused of Killing a Negro in Pittsburg.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, May 26.—The Coroner's jury this afternoon recommended that William Felton of New York be brought back on a charge of killing William Harris here on Dec. 13, 1907. Felton is accused of running down Harris, a negro, in his auto. District Attorney Goehring has asked the New York authorities to arrest Felton at once.

Felton was making a demonstration with an auto, and approached the negro. Harris, who was 50 years old, tried to get out of the way and ran or hobbled up on the sidewalk. He was followed by the auto, witnesses say, although it was not speeding fast.

"I want to know," said Coroner Armstrong to-night, "how it comes that Felton drove his auto on the pavement, as there seems no dispute as to the fact that the auto did come upon the sidewalk and killed the man."

William Felton is proprietor of the West Side Auto Transportation Company, at 309 West Forty-first Street. No one at the garage last night would admit knowing anything about the accident.

HOW IT FEELS NEAR DEATH.

Girl Thought of Her Father Hearing His Children Had Been Drowned.

Eighteen-year-old Helen Wallberg, daughter of Daniel Wallberg, a contractor of 9 Hubbard Street, Brooklyn, who saved her 12-year-old sister Maybelle from drowning in the bay yesterday afternoon, told last night how she had felt when she was struggling in the water with her sister in her arms.

"I thought of father coming home and learning that both Maybelle and I had drowned," said the girl. "And then I could see sister Florence, the baby, playing in the parlor with her two white kittens. I remember thinking how sorry they and mother would be if I failed to get Maybelle out, and then I didn't remember anything more until I came to on shore."

The girls were pulled out of the water by Capt. James Klinker and Hans Olsen, members of the Volunteer Life-Saving Corps.

MORE RIOTING IN CHESTER.

Ten Strikebreakers Are in Hospitals with Bruises.

Special to The New York Times.

CHESTER, Penn., May 26.—Rioting continued in various sections of the city to-day, and a dozen strikebreakers, sent by Farley from New York, were driven from the cars by crowds of men and boys. Ten strikebreakers are in the hospitals to-night with body bruises.

Two cars were derailed this morning at Eddystone and the crews were put to flight, as were the crews of three other cars who were stoned and clubbed in the afternoon. A motorman of one car took refuge in a near-by house and hid under a bed, while the housewife held off the crowd at the door. Policemen finally rescued the fugitive and escorted him to safety.

Fearing further violence to-night, despite Mayor Johnson's proclamation warning the citizens to keep off the streets, the traction company stopped running its cars at 8:30 o'clock.

$800,000 LOSS IN CORN BY WALL STREET MAN

Pays Patten 77 Cents for 5,000,000 Bushels That Cost Chicago Speculator 61 Cents.

SHORTS CAUGHT NAPPING

Patten Crowd Bids the Market Up and the Bears Make Frantic Efforts to Cover.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 26.—The Patten deal suddenly sprang into the limelight on the Board of Trade this afternoon by a sensational advance in the price of May corn, the quotation for which dropped to 73½ cents early in the session and then jumped to 78⅞ cents, the closing price.

Shorts, who had been led to believe that the deal was over because of reports of large private settlements within the last few days, were caught napping, and when brokers acting for the Patten crowd started to bid the market up the bears almost tore each other to pieces in their frantic efforts to cover.

In the midst of the excitement, Mr. Patten, wearing a new gray Summer suit and a light Fedora to match, appeared on the floor. He was intently watching the scramble in the corn pit a few feet away. There was a twinkle in his eye, and when asked what was causing the advance, with a characteristic shrug of the shoulder he said:

"Don't ask me. Evidently there are a few people who want the stuff mighty badly," and then after a pause he continued: "Corn will sell much higher. All this talk of a corner is nonsense. Why, I just bought a lot of cash corn at May price, 77 cents, and turned around and sold it to a shipper, cost, insurance, and freight, Buffalo, for the same money it cost me. That tells the story."

While it is the general belief among brokers that Mr. Patten has given some of the larger shorts an opportunity to make settlements in the last few days, all the bears have not yet taken their medicine, and, judging from the action of the market, the latter may have to swallow a bitter dose. The Patten crowd, so brokers declare, is still in full control of the market, and the prediction is made that those of the shorts who insist on remaining out until the "eleventh hour," will have to submit to a severe squeeze.

It is said that $800,000 was made by Patten in the settlement with one man of one "short" angle of the Patten corner in May corn.

A Wall Street man, well known as a speculator, made the settlement, paying Patten 77 for corn that had cost the latter 61. Patten's profit of 16 cents a bushel was based on a deal of 5,000,000 bushels. The settlement was made in private, for fear that the market might be affected.

The daring but ill-advised Wall Street man is said to have begun to sell short months ago, Patten buying his offers as fast as they were on the market. The speculator did not dare chance the risk of going into the market to buy the 5,000,000 bushels he was short, for fear that the price might soar to $1.

SNELL SPENT $1,000 A NIGHT.

Colonel's Prodigal Dissipation of Money Is Told In Will Suit.

CLINTON, Ill., May 26.—Prodigality in dissipation of Col. Tom Snell's bank account while under the so-called hypnotic influence of his grand-niece, Mabel Snell McNamara of Kansas City, was shown today through the testimony of Frank Farrell, Snell's agent at Fort Dodge, Iowa, when the will case was resumed.

Although Farrell said that Col. Snell had received $31,000 in rentals for his Iowa property, had sold a portion of these lands for $41,000 during the years between 1900 and 1906, and also had received large sums from rents and sales of land in Illinois, he died owing Central Illinois banks a sum ranging from $25,000 to $50,000. He left nothing to show for the large sums received from the sources named.

The only possible answer to the problem, according to the lawyers for the disinherited son, is Mabel Snell.

"I've spent $500 to $1,000 in a single night," declared Col. Snell to A. R. Sline, formerly Sheriff, who was called as a witness.

TROOPS TO STAY IN CUBA.

No American Soldiers to be Withdrawn Until Next February.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The important announcement was made at the War Department to-day that a decision had been reached not to withdraw any of the American troops from Cuba at the present time. The matter has been discussed at several recent conferences between the President, Secretary Taft, and Gen. Bell, the Chief of Staff.

It is understood that the conclusion reached was based upon representations from Gov. Magoon and Gen. Barry, commanding the army of Cuban pacification, that it might be inadvisable to reduce the military forces in Cuba in advance of the time fixed by the President for the re-establishment of the Cuban Republic next February, when the entire army is to return to the United States.

It is explained that the only object of wishing to bring home some of the troops at this time was to increase the number of regulars in the contemplated Summer manoeuvres in this country.

TOWN TREASURER A SUICIDE.

C. H. Northrop, Admitting Embezzlement, Hangs Himself.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., May 26.—Charles H. Northrop, for eight years Treasurer of the Town of Newtown, committed suicide this afternoon at his home in that place by hanging. The body was discovered by his 10-year-old son hanging from the bannister in the front hall on the second floor. The suicide was the outcome of an investigation last Fall, which reported that Northrop was an embezzler of $4,000 of the town funds. Mr. Northrop deeded his property to the town to cover the loss, and last Friday the court granted foreclosure proceedings on the Northrop home.

Northrop was graduated from the Yale Law School in 1880, and after practicing law for a while became Secretary and Treasurer of the Newtown Savings Bank. He had held numerous political offices.

GIVES $100,000 FOR PEACE.

Andrew Carnegie to Erect a Building for Central American Court.

CARTAGO, Costa Rica, May 26.—The Central American Court of Justice, the establishment of which is one of the results of the conference held in Washington last year, was inaugurated here yesterday afternoon. Nothing has awakened so much enthusiasm as the coming to Costa Rica of the representatives of the various countries, which include in addition to this country, Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, and Nicaragua. The United States and Mexico are represented by High Commissioners W. I. Buchanan and Enrique C. Creel, who, however, have no official connection with the permanent tribunal.

The American representative, High Commissioner Buchanan, in his speech said:

"I have the pleasure and the honor to say that I have received a cablegram from the Secretary of State of the United States of America, Elihu Root, instructing me to say that he has been authorized by Andrew Carnegie to offer $100,000 for the purpose of erecting at Cartago a temple of peace for the exclusive use of the Central American Court of Justice, as an expression of his sympathy for the peace and progress of Central America."

The session was closed with greetings and applause on all sides.

THOMAS F. RYAN A DELEGATE.

Will Go to the Virginia Convention—May Seek a Senatorship.

Special to The New York Times.

RICHMOND, Va., May 25.—Thomas F. Ryan of New York, who retains a legal residence in this State, has been chosen by the people of Nelson County as one of the delegates to the State Democratic Convention. It is understood that Mr. Ryan will help Senator John W. Daniel in the attempt to prevent the Virginia delegation to the National Convention in Denver from being instructed for Bryan.

The ambition of Ryan for political preferment in Virginia is acknowledged by his friends. Announcement has already been made that he is preparing to retire from active business and settle permanently in the State of his nativity. It has long been believed that he would eventually seek either the Governorship of Virginia or a United States Senatorship. His present activity is believed to be the opening of his campaign.

READY TO FIRE ON MONITOR.

All the Vessels Selected for Odd Naval Test Now in Hampton Roads.

Special to The New York Times.

NORFOLK, Va., May 26.—The United States Monitor Florida is lying at anchor off Old Point Comfort ready to be shot at with a 12-inch gun and torpedoed early to-morrow morning, should weather conditions be favorable, so that it may be determined what effect heavy gunfire and torpedoeing will have on a modern warship.

Near by is the Monitor Arkansas, from which the 12-inch projectile will be fired, and also the torpedo boat Morris, which will discharge the submerged torpedo at the vessel. The Florida, stripped as it is of all things movable, presents a peculiar appearance.

Commander Quimby and his men have full faith in the ability of their ship to withstand serious damage from the guns of the Arkansas, and they have no doubt of the repelling by the "torpedo net" about the Florida below the water line of the torpedoes that will be shot at her by the Morris.

BEARS FOR BATTLESHIPS.

SEATTLE, Washington, May 26.—Rear Admiral Charles S. Sperry, commanding the Atlantic battleship fleet, to-day landed an armed force of 3,000 men, who made a Seattle holiday by parading through the streets of the city. They were accompanied by a land force of coast artillery and infantry from Forts Lawton, Worden, Casey, and Flagler, and local militia and civic societies.

An amusing diversion was made in the middle of the procession by the appearance of twelve bear cubs, brought from the City of Aberdeen to be presented as mascots to the battleships. Each was led by a prominent citizen of Aberdeen, and the antics of the cubs caused much laughter. Before the reviewing stand was reached the little fellows looked too tired to walk and the men carried them.

BURIED CITY IN CALIFORNIA?

Found Under Site of University at Berkeley, Psychical Society Says.

BERKELEY, Cal., May 26.—Buried a few feet under the soil of the University of California campus lies a city of the stone age, whose massive walls respond to the instruments of the members of the Berkeley Society for Psychical Research and show their well-defined locations, according to the investigation made by Prof. Joseph Verll, President of the local Psychical Society and other members.

The investigations to find the lines of the buried city, which antedates by thousands of years the time of Columbus, have been carried on, it is said, quietly for the last few months since the society took up this important branch of their studies.

None of the professors of the university has as yet thoroughly investigated the finds of the society, but it is likely that if their discoveries are found to have a foundation, excavation work will be begun at once along scientific lines.

PRISONER'S ODD CONFESSION.

Says Man He Is Suspected of Killing Jumped Into River In Remorse.

John Lucas of Paterson made a remarkable statement last night, a few hours after the body of Christian Devries, a former jockey, was found in Dundee Lake. Lucas has been a prisoner in Hackensack Jail since Wednesday, on suspicion of having thrown Devries from the Wageraw Bridge into the Passaic River.

This is the confession Lucas made last night to the police:

"Devries and I had stolen a horse belonging to Peter Hopper of Fairlawn, and as we were leading it to Paterson Devries suddenly became stricken with remorse over the crime and jumped into the Passaic River. I was fishing for him when I was arrested for attempting suicide and committed to the Hackensack Jail."

Prosecutor Koester and Coroner Demund of Hackensack say they do not believe that Devries committed suicide. Lucas will be "sweated" to-day. An inquest will be held in a few days. Lucas and Devries were friends, and had been trading horses.

BURNING TO DEATH AMID CONDUIT WIRES

Homeward-Bound Shoppers See a Workman's Agony, but Can't Help Him.

SEVERAL SHOCKED IN TRYING

Policeman Finally Frees Him with Rubber Hose as a Rope—Burned to the Waist and May Die.

The cries of a man calling for help caused a crowd of homeward-bound shoppers and store employes to gather at Fourteenth Street and Sixth Avenue at 5:30 o'clock last night. From an open conduit hole protruded the head of Martin Connors, an electrician, of 84 Seventeenth Avenue, Bath Beach. To the crowd the man cried that in working on some electric wires his right foot had become caught under one of them and he could not liberate himself.

While he was explaining the man suddenly screamed in pain and shouted that his struggles had pulled the insulation off a wire, so that he was being shocked. A man reached down into the conduit and seized Connors under the arms to pull him out. Instead he was thrown 10 feet away and cried out himself as the electric current passed through Connor's body into his hands and arms.

Several other men dared the dangerous current to try, and rescue Connors. Like the first rescuer, they were hurled away from the victim. Then Policeman Philip Woll of the Traffic Squad heard Connors's screams and ran up. Before any one could explain the danger to him, the policeman had grabbed Connors like the others. He let go quickly.

Meantime Connors had not ceased to scream, and women fled from the sound of agony in his voice. His shoe was burning off his right foot, and the legs of his trousers had caught fire.

The second crowd stood by helpless until Policeman Woll ran a block away and grabbed a hose with which a shopkeeper was wetting some plants before his store. Returning with this, the policeman slipped it beneath Connor's arms. The electrician was unconscious then. His trousers had been burned nearly off and his coat and upper clothing was on fire. Smoke and tongues of flame licked up about his head, protruding above the pavement. Woll tugged at the hose several times, and at last succeeded in working Connor's foot loose. Then the crowd helped him pull the unconscious man to the pavement.

Dr. Quinn was called from St. Vincent's Hospital and took Connors there. It was found that he was badly burned from his waist down. Last night it was said that his condition was critical.

FIRE VETERAN TO THE RESCUE.

Saves the Danzes' Babies While Houses Below Are Burned.

Through the quick work of Dave Bell, an old volunteer fireman, who keeps an oyster and chop house at Third Avenue and 137th Street, in the Bronx, the two babies of Mr. and Mrs. George Danz of 250 East 137th Street were saved from death last night when the stable over which is the Danz flat caught fire. So quick in its action was the fire that four horses in the stable below, belonging to Mrs. Mary Mooney, were burned to death before the firemen could lead them out.

But long before the firemen reached the scene, Dave Bell, though he is 70 years old, had run around the corner from his chophouse, and, taking in the situation at a glance, had dashed up the smoke-filled hallway to the second floor and returned to the street with the two children.

THE SENATE BLOSSOMS.

Heliotrope Shirts, Red Handkerchiefs, and Peacock Blue Ties Appear.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Heartened by the appearance in the Chamber of Senator Scott and his pajama-like suit of pongee silk, a number of Senators blossomed today in startling ties and shirts and handkerchiefs. Carter wore a heliotrope creation of a shirt that a young woman in the visitors' gallery studied critically from beneath the brim of a Merry Widow hat and declared a "dear."

In order to display its beauties to the best advantage Carter did not wear a vest with his pepper and salt frock suit. Piles had a confection in neckwear that was so green it hurt the eyes, with a handkerchief to match, artistically draped from his coat pocket.

Owen sported a red handkerchief with a gray suit, while Stewart, the patriarch of the Senate, wore a necktie of such a radiant peacock blue it was fairly dazzling.

MORSE TO SELL IN FIFTH AVE.

Purchaser Negotiating for House Near 56th Street, Next to Morse's Home.

Negotiations are well advanced for the sale of the dwelling 726 Fifth Avenue, between Fifty-sixth and Fifty-seventh Streets, owned by Charles W. Morse. Title to the property is held by the Chelsea Realty Company, which is controlled by the Title Insurance Company of New York. The house adjoins Mr. Morse's residence at 728 Fifth Avenue.

Both 726 and 728 Fifth Avenue were formerly owned by Harry Payne Whitney, whose home is at the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street, and who bought the two properties as a matter of protection at a time when there was a prospect that business would get a foothold in the block. After placing restrictions on both houses he resold them to Mr. Morse.

Nothing could be learned yesterday as to the identity of the new owner of 726. John N. Golding, who has represented Mr. Morse in many of his real estate deals, declined to discuss the reported transaction.

Tyler, the managing director of the New York theatrical firm of Liebler & Co., met with a serious accident while motoring from Rome to Florence with Booth Tarkington and Alfred Wilson. Mr. Tyler's car was completely smashed, but fortunately neither he nor any of his companions was injured in any way.

The whole party is now at Florence, whence they will continue their journey to Paris by train. Mr. Tyler and his friends left Paris five weeks ago and motored through France, Tunis, Sicily, and Italy. When the accident occurred they were making their way to London, where Mr. Tyler is due next week on theatrical business.

ARMY BALLOON IN FLIGHT.

Leaves Washington and Lands Six Miles from Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 26.—The Army Signal Corps balloon, which started from Washington this afternoon in charge of Lieut. Lahm and Capt. Wallace, landed at 4 P. M. on the farm of Jacob Beal at Patapsco Neck, six miles from this city. The landing was effected with considerable difficulty, and at one time the occupants of the basket had a narrow escape from being thrown out.

Those in charge of the balloon returned to Washington as soon as possible after landing.

NORTH CAROLINA GOES DRY.

Majority for Prohibition Will Probably Be More Than 40,000.

RALEIGH, N. C., May 26.—In to-day's election on the liquor issue in North Carolina a majority for prohibition of upward of 40,000 was given. It is possible that the majority will reach 50,000.

Buncombe County, in which Asheville is located, gave about 3,000 majority for the dry ticket. The election was conducted quietly, and there was no trouble at the polls.

TRIES TO DESTROY PICTURE.

French Fanatic Tramples on Representation of the Dreyfus Trial.

PARIS, May 26.—A man who gave the name of Ebner to-day attempted to destroy Renouard's allegorical picture "The Trial of Dreyfus" in the salon of the Société des Beaux Arts.

He first vainly tried to rip it with a knife, but the picture was covered with a thick glass, fear having been entertained when it was hung that just such an attempt might be made. He then pulled it from the wall and trampled it under foot.

The picture was considerably damaged, but the damage can be repaired. Ebner, who was placed under arrest, told the Magistrate that he was a Nationalist and was unable to control his indignation at the sight of the picture.

$600,000 TO HOSPITAL.

Lord Mountstephen Again Aids the King Edward Fund.

LONDON, May 26.—Lord Mountstephen, formerly the President of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, who had previously donated $2,000,000 to the King Edward Hospital fund, has now further given 5,000 shares of the Great Northern Railroad of the United States to the same fund.

In a letter to the Prince of Wales, notifying him of the gift, Lord Mountstephen expressed the hope that, should the Finance Committee decide to change any of the securities in which his contributions already were invested, it would not be tempted to reinvest the money in what is called "trustee securities."

At the prices which the Great Northern stock is now selling, Lord Mountstephen's gift is valued at upward of $600,000.

ANOTHER JACKSON JUDGMENT.

Buffalo Bank Sued Attorney General for $434 on Promissory Notes.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 26.—Still another judgment has been added to the already long list against Attorney General William S. Jackson, according to papers filed at the County Clerk's office yesterday. The judgment was granted to the Third National Bank of Buffalo for $434.65.

Two promissory notes were held by the bank against Jackson, and when they were presented payment was refused. The first note was for $300, and after payment was refused at the bank Jackson paid $100 on it. The Attorney General gave a second note for $200 on Jan. 22 last. Payment of that note was refused when presented for payment. The bank sued, and Jackson did not defend.

STRIKERS GOING BACK.

Cleveland Traction Troubles Are Approaching a Settlement.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 26.—At a meeting of the striking street railway conductors and motormen to-day it was voted to continue the strike against the Municipal Traction Company.

There were additional desertions from the ranks of the strikers to-day, many returning to work.

The meeting was attended by about eighty strikers out of the 1,700 who originally walked out May 16. It also voted to continue the negotiations for arbitration.

Brother Expired After His Sister Said She Hoped He'd Drop Dead.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., May 26.—Ellis Harris, a Trenton man, and his sister quarreled to-night over the division of $500 left by their mother, who died recently at the age of 100 years. The sister finally exclaimed:

"I wish you'd drop dead!"

This greatly excited Harris, who fell to the floor unconscious, and expired in an ambulance which had been called to move him to a hospital.

Heart failure in the excitement due to the quarrel was the cause of his death.

JEROME INVECTIVE FILLS HIS ARGUMENT

Calls King, Chairman of Prosecuting Committee, a Milker of Corporations.

SAYS SEABURY IS A CAD

Refers Sarcastically to Gov. Hughes's Action in Ordering the Investigation and Defends His Own Record.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETHTOWN, N. Y., May 26.—With a flood of invective that attested the bitterness of his spirit, District Attorney Jerome made here to-day his final argument in the proceedings brought by the King Committee of Metropolitan Street Railway stockholders to obtain his removal from office.

He laid before Commissioner Richard L. Hand, appointed by Gov. Hughes to hear the testimony, a collection of epithets that began by calling William F. King, Chairman of the prosecuting committee, a "milker of corporations," and wound up by labeling Supreme Court Justice Seabury "a cad." William R. Hearst figured in the word picture as a "hydra-headed corporation."

Much of the evidence taken by the Armstrong Insurance Investigating Committee was characterized as "twaddle," and a great deal was heard about "yapping yellow journals" and "muddle-headed fools."

Mr. Jerome's argument consumed both of to-day's sessions, and to-morrow Franklin Pierce, attorney for the King Committee will be heard, and after that, either late to-morrow afternoon or on Thursday, each side will say a word in reply. Then the records will go to Commissioner Hand for his report to the Governor.

Mr. Jerome began the morning by paying his respects to the manner in which the case had been handled, and did not hesitate to make sarcastic reference to the course of Gov. Hughes.

Before he began his speech, Franklin Pierce, counsel for the complainants, filed a voluminous brief.

Mr. Pierce's Brief.

The brief declared that every thoughtful man knows that conditions in New York County are "a hundred times more dangerous to the welfare of society than murder itself," and that "a graver calamity could not visit the people of New York than the continuation of the evil example and the disgraceful conduct of William Travers Jerome in the office of Public Prosecutor of New York County."

Mr. Pierce argued that even in the investigation of these charges, the District Attorney has conducted in a manner warranting his removal from office. He declared that Mr. Jerome all through the examination threatened witnesses with criminal prosecution "and used other methods of that kind."

Mr. Pierce took the ground that the District Attorney's failure to investigate and prosecute the alleged "jury-fixing" in the Metropolitan Street Railway cases was a case of neglect of duty which was wholly inexcusable. "The extent of the existence of bribery of jurymen, bribery of court officials, tampering with witnesses, and controlling by criminal methods the conduct of the whole court," said he, "is of the highest importance."

Mr. Pierce quoted the testimony of Tillinghast who served as a juror in many cases, and says: "He tells us he received money for every case in which he sat as a juror for the Metropolitan, and describes vividly the manner in which it was received.

Didn't Go After Lawbreakers.

"When these facts were disclosed to the District Attorney," says Mr. Pierce, "if he possessed any of the true spirit of a public prosecutor he would have gone after the lawbreaker. He did nothing of the kind." To show that Mr. Jerome knew of these corrupt conditions the brief gives the story of the attempts of Mr. Julian, who was an employe of the Metropolitan for ten years and instrumental in the alleged briberies of juries, to furnish the office of the District Attorney with the necessary evidence.

"Mr. Smyth is the only assistant in the District Attorney's office who pretends to have investigated this matter. And yet this young man Smyth tells us he had come to the conclusion that it was impossible for him to secure sufficient evidence of the commission of one of these crimes."

The circumstances attending a hearing before Justice Seabury in the Supreme Court in which Mr. Jerome withdrew after an argument with the Justice, Mr. Pierce declared to show "as discreditable an act as ever done by a public official. Yet this District Attorney, who has been recreant to every official obligation, still persists in vilification of this honorable Judge, upon whom he heaps every epithet which he can command."

The Perkins Case.

Taking up the case of George W. Perkins in the so-called political contribution case, the brief says:

"It is undisputed that Mr. Jerome would not furnish any evidence to the March Grand Jury, and we have his own statement that if they had found an indictment against George W. Perkins he would refuse to sign it.

"Such conduct on the part of the District Attorney and his position that he would not sign an indictment of the Grand Jury is in and of itself misconduct—gross misconduct; and it affords ample reason for his removal.

"For the purpose of shielding Mr. Perkins from criminal prosecution he instituted a proceeding before Mr. Justice Joseph L. Moss, City Magistrate. In that proceedings, instead of invoking the admissions of Mr. Perkins before the Armstrong Committee to the fact that the matter of these campaign disbursements did not come before the Finance Committee and was wholly the work of Perkins and President McCall, he prepared evidence directly to the contrary.

"The criminal proceedings before Judge Moss was, so far as the District Attorney and the defendant's attorney were concerned, collusive, and there is no doubt about it. Thereby Mr. Jerome has procured a decision which he says controls his action as against all other companies making campaign contributions.

"Is it necessary for me to urge upon your Honor that this kind of crime is the most dangerous to public morals, the most dangerous to the political and civic life of our country of any existing?"

Of the charges relating to the failure of the District Attorney to procure indictment against Thomas F. Ryan in the Wall and Cortlandt Streets Ferries Company deal, the brief says:

Might Have Indicted Ryan.

"On the 8th day of October, 1907, Anthony N. Brady came before Commissioner Wilcox of the Public Service Commission, who was investigating the affairs of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, and testified to some startling facts, which are the basis of this charge. Our contention is that that testimony alone, with such facts as Mr. Jerome could easily have ascertained without availing himself of the testimony of Mr. Ryan, was sufficient to have gone at once before a Grand Jury and to have procured indictments against Mr. Ryan and probably against Thomas Dolan and P. A. B. Widener for grand larceny."

After reviewing the charge that the District Attorney was negligent in failing to find an indictment against the American Ice Company, the brief says: "I confidently maintain that much of the evidence here tends to show that he was really acting in accordance with the desires of the American Ice Company."

The brief concluded with a long review of Mr. Jerome's conduct in this hearing and his character as shown by his acts. It was alleged that he violated the law against gambling by shaking dice at a dollar a throw in a restaurant with the sons of Thomas F. Ryan."

Jerome's Reply.

Mr. Jerome said, in part:

"It has been very difficult to prepare any answer to what this committee has submitted as charges on account of the extreme gelatinous and unsubstantial manner in which the charges were drawn. It is not difficult to knock a man of straw down when he is set up, but it is essential to have a certain amount of straw at least to have it stand erect before one can indulge in that pleasant pastime of knocking it down. The amount of what is vulgarly called hot air I think is very great, and any one who has ridden a bicycle against the wind knows how difficult it is to make time against that kind of resistance.

"While it is very delightful to have the air cleared after the many months of fog I have lived in, on the other hand it is a little arduous to have had to devote some six weeks to dealing with such charges. I must say that I was astonished that a constitutionally elected officer who has given sixteen of the best years of his life to the service of the people of the State of New York should be put to answer such a flimsy and mendacious set of charges after an answer was filed containing all the facts. This complaint is not verified even on information and belief.

"The eminent gentleman who signed the charges was not even a stockholder in the Metropolitan Street Railway Company. Although ostensibly Chairman of the Stockholders' Protective Committee, he was not even a stockholder. I suppose in my personal relations there has been no man in public life more antagonistic to me than Gov. Odell, and justly so, and yet when charges of a similar character were laid before him it impressed him as preposterous, and I was not even called upon to answer.

"I mean to make no comment on the Governor of the State of New York at present. I have no doubt, after the many years that I have known him personally, some twenty-seven now, that he thought that it was better for me that matters of this kind should be ventilated, and sworn testimony such as might exist might be adduced, and so in that spirit I have no doubt that he ordered this reference to your Honor. I accept the gift in the spirit in which it is given."

Mr. Jerome criticised Mr. Pierce's methods in getting the Grand Jury minutes and taking them to his office to copy. He said this was "committing a crime." He said that Clarence Shearn and James W. Osborne, two men whom he had whipped politically, were active in all these matter. He went on:

"It is pleasant to see the righteous indignation of Mr. King, this non-stockholding President of a stockholders' committee, over the taking of the funds of widows and orphans to defeat Bryan, when he himself, as President of the Merchants' Association, was milking the New York Life to the tune of some $10,000 or $15,000.

Conception of His Duty.

"If the facts exist which show that I have been derelict in the discharge of my duties, however base they were, it is not proper that I should remain in that office in the discharge of those duties. I have lived all my life in the City of New York. Twice I have run for office in that city and been elected, the last time against every political party, and all alone. I consider that I was elected to exercise my judgment in the discharge of the duties of that office and not the judgment of the irresponsible editors of yellow journals and what they might say I ought to do.

"Nor on the other hand do I understand, nor have I ever understood, that public clamor was a thing that should direct my judgment or my activities, and when I read in the complainants' brief that these facts were disclosed to the District Attorney, if he possessed any of the true spirit of a public prosecutor he would have gone after the law breaker as a bloodhound goes for the throat of his victim, I think I see in that the kind of a keynote that one could dwell upon at some length.

"The conception of the man who conceives of the discharge of the responsible duties of a public prosecutor in the spirit of a bloodhound springing at the throat of his victim, is a conception so base that if there were proceedings to remove from the bar as there are from public office, a man as being unfit to discharge the duties of an attorney, surely no better evidence would be needed of the unfitness of any man to practice law or to claim to be an honorable or decent fair-minded gentleman.

"I conceive that the duties that were laid upon me in that office and which I have striven to discharge were those to be fair and just, to apply one law to all persons, not to apply one law to the poor and another to the rich man."

Mr. Jerome then took up the history of the Metropolitan Street Railway jury-fixing investigation, and told how Louis E. Julian, formerly the investigator of the street railway, came to John A. Henneberry, the chief clerk of the District Attorney's office, in the middle of the 1905 campaign with information.

Mr. Jerome called attention to the fact that Julian was an investigator for the Metropolitan at the very time when Mr. Pierce had said so much crookedness was going on. The assertion of Julian that he had no personal knowledge of the jury-fixing was particularly emphasized, together with the character of Tillinghast, the professional juror, who confessed that he had taken money for sitting in many cases when the Metropolitan was a defendant. Mr. Jerome declared it was impossible to get evidence of a corroborative character. The informants declared that the vouchers covering the disbursements for jury-fixing were destroyed, and so said Mr. Jerome, there was nothing to be done but what Smyth and Nott did do, and that was nothing.

Case Before Seabury.

Next Mr. Jerome considered the charge that his conduct before City Court Justice Seabury in his investigation of the Metropolitan jury fixing charges in March, 1906, was sufficiently improper to be a ground for removal. "There was considerable clamor going on right then," Mr. Jerome continued. "One William Randolph Hearst was stirring mightily in the town—Hearst the many-headed hydra corporation, who is so hard to reach in any judicial proceeding. This many-sided gentleman had been running one Shearn for District Attorney, and Justice Seabury, with his eye on a Supreme Court Justiceship, was standing in with the outfit. So he organized this investigation with a full bench of newspaper men in attendance."

Mr. Jerome described the proceedings before Justice Seabury, laying stress upon the retention of counsel by Justice Seabury for Julian, who was the complaining witness.

"It was a contemptible, unjudicial proceeding," said Mr. Jerome. "I admit I lost my temper, but if I did so I forgot my official character in my manhood and I'll have to take the burden of my act. I thought Justice Seabury was acting as a cad, and he was. It was the most extraordinary display of judicial incompetence that I ever witnessed. It was lugged in by rag-tag, bobtailed lawyers, who brought in dishonest men to have them swear to all sorts of depositions. But even with all the stuff that was presented to Justice Seabury he could not find sufficient evidence on which to hold Ambrose McCabe. I withdrew from the case when I considered that Judge Seabury had acted in an unseemly way. There was no reason why I should have stayed to hear the court disgustingly, rankly, and brazenly playing to the yellow journals."

Mr. Jerome characterized Tillinghast as a convicted felon, who, with Julian, was the centre of the McCabe prosecution. He contrasted Lawyer Pierce's comment on the District Attorney throwing dice with Allan Ryan, the growing eloquence of the learned counsel as he portrayed Tillinghast in a spirit of bon camaraderie taking Juror Henderson's place on a panel on which Tillinghast had not been drawn.

Mr. Pierce's assertion that the District Attorney before taking Stanley Bogg into court to retract his confession of jury bribery had failed to tell Judge Seabury what Bogg proposed saying, Mr. Jerome declared was utterly false. He added:

Attacks Pierce's Brief.

"It is an illustration of the wording of a vague muddle-headed mind that dares to put into a brief such a statement as that. Because the District Attorney refused to take the word of these crooks and prosecute a reputable lawyer the yellow journals raised a wild cry. Jim Osborne and Shearn and some muddle-headed fools wanted to strike a blow at me for failing to prosecute a man on evidence that a reputable man would not have used in an attempt to convict even a dog."

Taking up the charge that he failed to prosecute George W. Perkins of the New York Life for the $50,000 campaign contribution, the District Attorney spoke much of the Armstrong Committee evidence as a muddle.

"Several persons went upon the stand before those sagacious statesmen who rule us from Albany," he said, "and made statements that they would not have made had they felt that a criminal action might have been started against them."

The District Attorney freely admitted that he could have obtained abundant evidence against the officials of many financial institutions for making campaign contributions. He did not think he had any right to pick out any particular one. He contended that the $50,000 used for the purpose of defeating William Jennings Bryan for the Presidency was money well spent in the interest of the policy holders.

"Had Bryan been elected," Mr. Jerome proceeded, "there would have followed a shrinkage in the value of securities of from 10 to 12 per cent. The District Attorney confessed that he was amazed when Justice O'Sullivan charged the Grand Jury contrary to the advice given by Mr. Jerome concerning the finding of an indictment in the Perkins case.

"I thought in the instructions given by the Judge to the Grand Jury that I recognized the style of another man," continued Mr. Jerome. "I was sure I recognized the style of another man and still think so. Not one of these who were urging these prosecutions had the nerve to come out themselves. They were afraid. There were the yellow journals yawping and the judiciary scared as well.

"The purpose of the proceeding brought against George Perkins before Magistrate Moss," resumed Mr. Jerome, "was not to secure his conviction, but to get a judicial decision on the general legal issues involved in the matter of campaign contributions."

Mr. Jerome said that the discrepancy in the two stories told by the Treasurer and other officials of the New York Life as to the Perkins payment arose from a confusion in his mind between the original payment of the $50,000 by Mr. Perkins, which was authorized by the Finance Committee, and their payment to Mr. Perkins, which was not so authorized. "But," said Mr. Jerome, "assuming that the witness lied—although he is a man of the brightest reputation—even then it would destroy his value as a witness to use that fact in evidence. McCall was dead, so we have nothing left but the statement of Mr. Perkins. With the assertion of innocence in the matter, and even if I had been as bloodthirsty as the traditional bloodhound, I don't see what I could have accomplished.

"I am charged with befriending and protecting these wicked capitalists, who are said to have spread their insidious poison through the whole life of New York City, yet there is no one who has ever made even the slightest insinuation that I ever took a dishonest dollar.

Similarity of Charges.

"In this Perkins matter I might remark on a striking similarity between the charge of Justice Goff to the April Grand Jury of 1906 and the charge of Judge O'Sullivan to the March Grand Jury, nor can one quite forget the coincidence that about this time William McMurtrie Spier spent much of his time wandering around the floor of the Criminal Court Building where the Judge's offices are situated."

Mr. Jerome passed over the charges relating to the payment of $40,000 profit realized by the loan of New York Life money to the Mylie fund, and those relating to syndicate transactions which Mr. Pierce did not discuss in his brief, simply saying that there was nothing criminal in either matter.

In referring to the Wall and Cortlandt Street ferries deal, in which Thomas F. Ryan, P. A. B. Widener, William C. Whitney, Thomas Dolan, and W. L. Elkins divided $850,000 received from the Metropolitan Securities Company, Mr. Jerome declared that although he had his suspicions that some persons were not telling the truth before the Grand Jury he had no way of proving it. He believed absolutely what Mr. Ryan said, however, and did not believe Ryan committed any wrong.

Alluding to the efforts of the King committee to prove something against him, Mr. Jerome, becoming deeply serious, exclaimed:

"It is of more importance to me to know that I have done right than whether I keep that job. There is nothing I crave in political life."

Mr. Jerome said that he had gone thoroughly into the question of whether the American Ice Company had violated the law, and was unable to find anything upon which criminal action could have been taken up to the time Gov. Hughes ordered that he be superseded by Attorney General Jackson in the matter. It is still merely a question as to what constitutes a monopoly, he said. "I may," said Mr. Jerome, "have been mistaken in judging, but nobody except an ass claims to be infallible on the law." Mr. Jerome said he believed the contracts between the American Ice Company and the independent dealers who sold out to it were valid and would hold in court.

EVELYN THAW DROPS HER ANNULMENT SUIT

Says Thaw's Relatives Brought Pressure Upon Her to Begin the Action.

ENDS IT THROUGH 'LOYALTY'

Col. Bartlett Denies First Statement and Says Thaw's Mother Is Giving Evelyn $1,000 a Month.

The annulment suit filed by Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw against Harry K. Thaw, which has been pending before Robert E. Deyo as referee, was discontinued yesterday upon the request of Mrs. Thaw, represented by her attorney, Daniel O'Reilly. By agreement between the parties interested no costs were entered, as is usual, but it is understood that Harry Thaw will pay the costs, as well as the fee of the referee.

The discontinuance of the case was not unexpected, as it was intimated at the last previous hearing that the case would be pushed to a termination, or dropped at yesterday's hearing before the referee. So at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, when Lawyer O'Reilly announced to Referee Deyo that his client wanted to discontinue the case and presented authorities which permitted him to do so, there was no objection on the part of the attorneys for Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, or Harry Thaw, and it was ordered that a report be made to the court accordingly without further notice.

The discontinuance of the suit simply means that the status of Harry Thaw and his wife remains the same as it was before the suit was instituted, and Mrs. Harry Thaw is, of course, free to begin similar or other proceedings again should she see fit to do so. There was a decided conflict of statement after the settlement yesterday, and lawyers on both sides gave out statements purporting to explain the meaning of the proceedings and what the result would be.

Statement by Mrs. Harry Thaw.

Soon after Referee Deyo had given his consent to the discontinuance, Daniel O'Reilly, counsel for Mrs. Harry Thaw, gave out in her behalf this statement:

> There has been much misrepresentation as to Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw's motive in first bringing an application for an annulment and then subsequently discontinuing the same. Mrs. Thaw, in the first instance, reluctantly made such an application in response to pressure brought by relatives of her husband. She withdraws from the action at this time because she believes her husband's present situation demands from her a loyalty to his interests, and that it would not serve any good purpose to prove at a time when he is attempting to gain his liberty that he was insane when he married her. Especially is this true in the light of the unfortunate conclusion of the last proceedings.

Says Nothing of Reconciliation.

"Does that mean that Mrs. Thaw and her husband are reconciled?" was asked.

"I have nothing to add to the statement," replied Mr. O'Reilly.

"Is it true that Mrs. Thaw will apply to the court to be appointed guardian of her husband's estate?"

"That is a matter I am not prepared to discuss at this time. The annulment proceedings have been discontinued, and Mrs. Thaw is free to start them again should she see fit. She feels that she has done what is best for her in the circumstances, and that is all there is to it for the present."

Col. Franklin Bartlett looked at the matter in an entirely different light when asked for a statement as to Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw's attitude. He resented the intimation that Thaw's mother or other relatives had suggested to Evelyn Nesbit Thaw that it would be well for her to get out of the family by means of an annulment.

"I am utterly at a loss to understand how any pressure could have been brought to bear upon this young woman to make her bring the proceedings for the annulment of her marriage," said Col. Bartlett.

"Certainly no such suggestion was made by the mother of Harry Thaw or any of his relatives so far as I know. Just what Mrs. Harry Thaw's motive was I am not in a position to say. In so far as to-day's proceedings were concerned, I know she was placed in the position of having the case discontinued without prejudice or else proceeding with it. I think she took the wise course.

Thaw's Wife Getting $1,000 a Month.

"Of course, it does not logically follow that because Harry K. Thaw was insane on the day of his marriage in May, 1905, he is insane in May, 1908; nor does it follow that because he was insane when he killed Stanford White in June, 1906, he is insane now.

"The position of Thaw's family toward this young woman is very simple and just. Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw desires that she shall be treated not only fairly but generously. She is now being paid $1,000 a month, which, in my opinion as a lawyer of experience, is far more than any court would allow her for maintenance and support, even alimony, and is decidedly more generous than would be an allowance based on Harry Thaw's income or if measured by Mrs. Harry Thaw's station in life."

"Is it understood that Mrs. Harry K. Thaw will apply to the courts to be appointed guardian of her husband's estate?" the reporter said.

"I have had no such intimation," said Col. Bartlett, "who was talking to Mr. O'Reilly recently, and he said he knew of nothing of the sort being contemplated. I might add, however, that should any effort of the kind be made it will be fought by Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw and her family."

The annulment proceedings were brought by Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw in March on the ground that Thaw was insane when they were married. Only a little testimony had been taken.

Thaw's Mother with Him All Day.

Mrs. William Thaw remained at Poughkeepsie yesterday and spent the entire afternoon with her son. It is believed that she will soon have herself appointed guardian of her son's property to shut off the possibility of Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw making an effort to have herself chosen by the court.

Harry Thaw denied himself to callers all day, and refused to answer notes sent in to him relative to the reports that there had been a reconciliation between himself and his wife and on other topics.

Attorney Graham, for Thaw, is withholding his plans until Justice Morschauser decides whether or not Thaw shall be returned to Matteawan. Thaw does not want to go there again, where he will be under the direct supervision of Dr. Baker, who testified at the recent hearing that he believed Thaw to be a paranoiac.

LOBSTERS SAIL FOR GERMANY.

Also 200 Live Frogs That Sing—To Improve German Species.

The Kaiser Wilhelm II. carried a strange live shipment on her boat decks when she left for Bremen at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. In two patent tanks on the boat deck were 200 bullfrogs from Kentucky and 300 live lobsters from the Jersey coast. The frogs were consigned to Hans Geyer of Regersberg, Bavaria, and the lobsters were sent to F. Klevonhusel of Bremen.

Hans Dunkel, a lad who came over on the steamer from Germany to fetch the frogs from Louisville, said that the American frogs were being taken over to improve the breed of the native frog of Bavaria, which is much smaller and does not sing. The tank for the frogs was filled with weeds.

Some difficulty was encountered when the crew attempted to put the live lobsters in the tank next to the frogs. Many of them got out of the baskets they were in and crawled all over the deck, laying hold of anything that came within their reach, whether it was a sailor's big toe or an iron ringbolt.

An attempt was made two years ago to export live lobsters to Europe, but it failed because they landed in poor condition. But now oxygen will be pumped into the tanks, and it is thought the animals will land in good form. If this experiment is a success a regular trade in live lobsters will be inaugurated between America and Germany.

JOHNSON ON STATE RIGHTS.

He Criticises the Administration in a Speech in Alabama.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 26.—Gov. John A. Johnson of Minnesota was the principal speaker to-day before the Alumni Association at the commencement exercises at the State University in Tuscaloosa. His subject was "Landmarks of American Liberty."

He declared that the progress of the Republic was opposed by two dangers. One was a tendency of the Federal Government to a centralization of power and the assumption of sovereign powers not delegated to it by the Constitution and belonging to the State and to the people. The other was the power of centralized and predatory wealth, fostered by special privileges and defiant of both the public welfare and the law of the land.

The inherent powers of the Republic should not be delegated to the Federal Government, said the speaker, but should reside in the State and the people.

"They are the original sources of sovereignty," he declared, "and yet the present Administration maintains the doctrine of inherent sovereignty in the Government. To-day the Government of the United States denies the existence of the Constitution and its application to our island Territories."

CONTEST IN NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Delegates Will Not Be Pledged, However, at To-day's Convention.

CONCORD, N. H., May 26.—The Democratic State Convention to-morrow is expected to be the occasion of a spirited contest. The disputed point will not be the question of indorsing any particular candidate for the Presidential nomination, but will have to do entirely with the personnel of the State delegation to the Denver Convention. The party leaders have decided that the delegates at large selected shall be unpledged to any person's candidacy.

There are, however, rival tickets in the field. One of them is headed by True L. Norris of Portsmouth, the New Hampshire member of the Democratic National Committee, while Henry F. Hollis of Concord, who on several occasions has been the party leader in Gubernatorial campaigns, heads the other. Mr. Hollis is looked upon as the New Hampshire representative of the interests of W. J. Bryan.

NO TEXAS CONVENTION.

Democratic Delegates Were Unable to Reach Fort Worth Owing to Floods.

FORT WORTH, Texas, May 26.—Efforts to hold the State Democratic Convention here to-day proved futile, floods preventing a majority of the delegates from reaching the city. State Chairman Casden of Dallas says he will continue postponing the hour set for meeting until enough delegates arrive.

DALLAS, Texas, May 26.—After doing damage of over $1,000,000, drowning at least three people here and ten at Fort Worth, and rendering 4,000 people in Dallas homeless, the Trinity River to-day is falling slowly. It is believed that when the water has receded it will be found that the number of deaths will be increased.

GUTHRIE, Okla., May 26.—The floodwaters are fast receding. The death roll remains at eight. With miles of tracks washed out and bridges damaged or destroyed, train service on many lines must remain annulled for several days.

CONVENTIONS IN MARYLAND.

Two Counties Indorse Bryan—Others Take No Action on Presidency.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 26.—Democratic county conventions were held to-day in Baltimore, Dorchester, Queen Anne, Montgomery, Kent, and Talbot Counties.

Those of Dorchester and Kent indorsed W. J. Bryan for the Democratic nomination. In the other conventions formal action of this sort was not taken, but in several of them there was a notable sentiment favorable to Bryan.

Bryan Delegates in Indiana.

ROCKVILLE, Ind., May 26.—Ralph W. Moos of Clay County was nominated for Congress this afternoon by Democrats of the Fifth District on the first ballot. Resolutions were adopted urging the nomination of W. J. Bryan.

IN NEW JERSEY.

Arthur Delroy, a palmist, who gave an exhibition at the Union League Club in Jersey City on Monday night, created considerable amusement when he read the hand of Mayor Wittpenn. After describing the Mayor's characteristics with a fair degree of accuracy, he said the Mayor would be married within eight of nine months. The Mayor was at once surrounded by friends, who warmly congratulated him. Mayor Wittpenn laughingly said the palmist had made a mistake.

Vice Chancellor Stevens at Newark yesterday signed an order restraining the Hudson County Freeholders from removing rails, wires or poles of the Public Service Railway Company from the bridge over the Morris Canal at Avenue C, between Jersey City and Bayonne. The order further directs the board to show cause June 9 why a writ of injunction should not issue. The Board of Freeholders several weeks ago closed the bridge for public use except for pedestrians, alleging that the structure was unsafe. The company offered to strengthen the bridge at its own expense, but the county board refused ot permit this and revoked the company's franchise, declaring that the company must pay its share for the use of the bridge and keep it in repair.

The graduating class of the Cloverside School of Montclair this year will consist of the following: Dorothy Nicoll and Frances Cox of New York, Priscilla Dexter of Brooklyn, Isabella Batten of Montclair, and Mano Llano of Salvador, Central America. Miss Nicoll will be the class prophet and Miss Dexter the class poet at the commencement exercises, which will be held in St. Luke's parish house on Monday, June 8.

The Jersey City Street and Water Board has authorized the city's law officers to make a contract with the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company to furnish the road with water for twenty-five years at $100 per million gallons. The Lehigh Valley has been receiving its water from the Jersey Central Railroad, but it was recently discovered that it was selling water to other consumers the company was violating its charter and the sale was stopped.

The following young men will graduate from the Montclair Academy at the commencement exercises at which will take place on June 8: Arthur G. Bogardus, East Orange; Paul V. S. Camp, Watertown, N. Y.; William Lee Dilworth, Newark; Parker Hansel, Cranford; Carlos M. Herrera, Guatemala; Ralph B. Higgins, East Orange; Benjamin L. Montgomery, Rochester, N. Y.; Harold W. McGraw, Madison, N. J.; David D. Merrill, New York; Wallace H. Partridge, Montclair; Edwin B. Schwartz, New Rochelle, N. Y.; Paul D. Townsend, Kendal Green, Mass.; Lewis G. Timpson Plainfield, N. J.; Miller P. Van Hoesen, Rochester, N. Y.; George T. Bristol, Brooklyn, and Richard D. Rickard, Summit, N. J. The graduation class organization is as follows: President, David D. Merrill; Vice President, Miller D. Van Hoesen; Secretary and Treasurer, Edwin B. Schwartz.

Henry McInery, 32 years old, of 87 Central Avenue, Jersey City, became suddenly insane yesterday and attacked his mother with a carving knife, inflicting severe wounds on her left arm and hand before he was overpowered. He was sent to the county jail to await examination. McInery imagines that he has lent large sums of money to relatives and friends and no one will pay him.

Walter Owens, a 16-year-old boy, fell against a live wire while playing on the roof of the Atlantic City pier yesterday. Several holes were burned in the lad's back and shoulders, and his spinal cord was affected. His screams attracted workmen, who cut off the current. Young Owens will probably die.

BRYAN'S LITTLE TRAP DOESN'T CATCH TAFT

He and ex-Senator Chandler Thought the Secretary Opposed Election Publicity.

ASKED HIM TO URGE BILL

His Reply Was Personal Letter to Senator Burrows of April 30 Declaring Himself Wholly in Favor of Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—If there is a mentally and politically sorer man to-night than ex-Senator William E. Chandler it is probably William Jennings Bryan of Lincoln, Neb., as a result of their efforts to "smoke out" Secretary Taft on the bill requiring publicity of campaign contributions.

The plot was engineered by Chandler, who believed he could embarrass the Secretary of War by compelling the publication of the Secretary's recent personal letter to Senator Burrows, Chairman of the Senate committee in charge of the bill. Instead of showing up the Secretary of War as an enemy of publicity for campaign contributions the letter has shown him to be its outspoken champion. The Bryan-Chandler allies to-night are nursing their wounds.

Chandler has nursed a grievance against the Administration ever since he was elected to the Ananias Club during the Railroad Rate bill fight. When he learned that the Secretary had written to Burrows a letter marked "Personal" he scented a chance to get even. Convinced that the communication was either an entreaty or a command to Burrows to strangle the campaign publicity measure in committee, Chandler endeavored to force Burrows to divulge its contents. Failing in this, he enlisted Bryan in the plot.

The opportunity to show up the Taft methods appealed to the Nebraskan. He fell in with the plan and sent this telegram to the Secretary of War:

> I beg to suggest that as leading candidates in our respective parties we join in asking Congress to pass a bill requiring publication of campaign contributions prior to election. If you think best we can ask other candidates to unite with us in the request.

The conspirators sat back and waited developments. They chuckled over the embarrassment of Taft, for he could never afford to refuse publicly, nor could he very well fall in with the plan in the face of Burrows's letter. Chandler wore a benignant smile until shortly after noon, when the Secretary gave out for publication his reply to Bryan. He did this after a short talk with President Roosevelt, the answer being:

> Your telegram received. On April 30th last, I sent the following letter to Senator Burrows, the Chairman of the Committee on Privileges and Elections of the Senate:
>
> "My Dear Mr. Burrows: I sincerely believe that it would greatly tend to the absence of corruption in politics if the expenditures for nomination and election of all candidates and all contributions received and expenditures made by political committees could be made public both in respect to State and National politics. For that reason I am strongly in favor of the passage of the bill which is now pending in the Senate and House bringing about this result so far as National politics are concerned. I mark this letter personal because I am anxious to avoid assuming an attitude in the campaign which it is quite possible I shall never have the right to assume, but so far as my personal influence is concerned, I am anxious to give it for the passage of the bill.
>
> "Very sincerely yours,
>
> "WILLIAM H. TAFT."
>
> Since writing the above, in answer to inquiry, I have said publicly that I hoped such a bill would pass. W. H. TAFT.

LINCOLN, Neb., May 26.—When shown a copy of the answer of Secretary Taft W. J. Bryan expressed his gratification at Mr. Taft's attitude.

Mr. Bryan said he would also communicate with Senator Culberson, minority leader in the Senate, and Representative Williams, minority leader in the House, asking them to bring Mr. Taft's letter to the attention of Congress in the hope that favorable action might be taken on the measure before adjournment.

Mr. Bryan sent the following reply:

> Hon. W. H. Taft: I am very much gratified to receive your telegram, and trust the publication of your letter will add the weight necessary to turn the scales in favor of the measure. Elections are public affairs, and publicity will help to purify politics. W. J. BRYAN.

Mr. Bryan wired Senator Culberson and Representative Williams as follows:

> Please secure copies of my telegrams to Secretary Taft and his reply concerning campaign contributions. His letter to Senator Burrows may enable you to secure action on the bill. W. J. BRYAN.

Perry Belmont, President of the National Publicity Law Organization, speaking of the correspondence made public to-day between Secretary of War Taft and William J. Bryan, said:

"To the members of our organization the correspondence between the two leading candidates for Presidential nominations demonstrates that the movement for publicity of campaign contributions has reached the point, and public sentiment has become so insistent that both parties will be required, whether Congress passes a publicity bill or not, to disclose the amounts contributed to the National Committees and the sources from which they are obtained during the approaching campaign."

KILL HUGHES REFORMS.

Measure to Regulate Telephone Companies Dead in Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 26.—In a general attack on the reforms recommended to the extraordinary session by Gov. Hughes, Assembly committees to-day killed three of the bills embodying his recommendations. The Committee on Gas, Electricity, and Water Supply made short work of the Wainwright bill, which would place telegraph and telephone companies under the supervision of the Public Service Commission.

Of the other two measures defeated one provided for a commission to investigate the condition of the unemployed and to suggest legislation. The other provided for a commission to investigate Stock Exchanges and stock speculation.

The Senate Judiciary Committee to-day reported favorably the bill introduced by Senator Travis of Brooklyn and embodying the Governor's recommendations for direct nominations at primaries. The Senate committee followed the same course at the regular session, but the bill never came to a vote on the floor.

PRIZE DEVICE STOPS AUTO EXPLOSIONS

Invention of W. H. McNutt Prevents the Spread of Flame to the Gasoline Tank.

VOLATILE LIQUIDS SAFE

Cans Equipped with the Invention May Be Used as Torches While Filling Tanks at Night.

Automobilists and the public generally who have learned by experience of the dangers in handling volatile liquids of all descriptions are taking much interest in the invention of William H. McNutt, to which the gold medal offered by Francis H. Richards was awarded for the most meritorious invention in the field of motor vehicles at the exhibition of the American Museum of Safety Devices and Industrial Hygiene.

While the device is simple in detail and principle, it is regarded as one of the most revolutionary inventions in years, making the explosion of benzine, naphtha, gasoline, kerosene, alcohol, rigoline, ether, or chloroform absolutely impossible. It is applicable either to an automobile or a motorboat tank or other receptacle for volatile liquids whatever its size. So perfect is its operation that burning oil can be poured from one can to another, after they have been fitted with the device, with no other result than burning of part of the liquid as it passes through the air.

The device consists chiefly of a double fold of thin brass plate punctured with a mesh of fine holes. The principle on which the invention is based is that flame cannot pass through a mesh of the right degree.

Take a five-gallon can of gasoline as an illustration. In the large opening at the top is inserted this brass device, which is rolled to about the shape and size of a Welsbach burner, with the mesh also covering the top. The burning oil easily passes through the mesh, but the flame cannot follow the oil through the holes.

Now, suppose the oil is being poured into a flame from an ordinary kerosene can. The flame burns up into the spout, and it is impossible to understand at first why the small can does not explode. But inside the can over the base of the spout, the mesh also extends in the shape of a cone. The oil inside the cone is burning, but that is all. It cannot eat its way through the mesh to the contents of the can. Mary Ann need no longer fear to light the morning fire with kerosene.

One of the possibilities of the invention is that if an automobilist is stalled on a dark road in the middle of the night, because his tank has run dry, he has no trouble at all to fill it if his five or ten gallon supply can and his engine tank are fitted with the McNutt device. If he has not the McNutt device he will know that it is dangerous to hold any kind of a light near the operation. But the McNutt man simply scratches a match and lights the stream he is pouring from can to tank. That gives him light to work by.

The device also has a cap, the centre of which is fusible at 300 degrees Fahrenheit. This is the safety valve for fire when no one is around. Fire starts and burns until the cap blows off. Then instead of the garage or storage house being flooded with a sheet of blazing oil, each can or tank has a burner of its own, and gives off a jet of flame, which can easily be put out when the firemen arrive.

Honorable mention was awarded in the same department of the exhibition to the Rutherford Wheel Company for an automobile wheel which has made the "flat wheel" and all its dangers and inconveniences a thing of the past.

A REMARKABLE PERFORMANCE.

The "Pennsylvania Special" is not only scheduled to make the run between New York and Chicago in eighteen hours, but it actually performs the deed with a precision that is phenomenal.

During the fifty-three days from March 21 to May 12, inclusive, it arrived in both Chicago and New York exactly on the minute every day but three in each direction. On those dates it was late only two, four, five, ten, thirteen, and thirty-nine minutes respectively.

Such a record means that experienced and skillful enginemen drive the train, that dispatchers and signalmen are ever alert, and that well-trained maintenance-of-way men are keeping the nine hundred and eight miles of track in perfect condition. It means that the passenger between New York and Chicago on the "Pennsylvania Special" is practically sure of reaching his destination on time. Regularity of schedule is a most important consideration. It enables business men to keep their engagements in either city, and to get the benefit of an eighteen-hour schedule.

If you want to get to Chicago in eighteen hours take the "Pennsylvania Special," which leaves New York at 3.55 P. M. and arrives Chicago 8.55 A. M.

TWELVE-MILE CHASE FOR LEWISOHN AUTO

Son of the Late Copper Magnate Arrested After a Wild Run from Belmont Track.

BRIDGE GATES SHUT HIM IN

Police Finally Halt Speeding Racer by Ordering Runaway Barriers at Manhattan End Closed by Telephone.

Walter Lewisohn, a son of the late copper magnate and a brother of Jesse Lewisohn, driving a high-powered automobile of the racing roadster type, led two motorcycle policemen a chase of twelve miles late yesterday afternoon from the Belmont race track through the streets of Williamsburg to the Manhattan end of the Williamsburg Bridge, where he was finally arrested. To Capt. Cruise of the Clymer Street Station young Lewisohn explained laughingly:

"I thought I could get into New York County, where you couldn't do anything to me."

That Lewisohn didn't get into New York County was only because his pursuers telephoned to the Manhattan end of the bridge to shut the runaway gates, and beyond this barrier Lewisohn could not drive his machine. He sat in the snorting car until the exhausted policemen rode up and arrested him. Then he went with them to the station house and left $100 as security for his appearance in the Lee Avenue Court this morning.

The policemen—Motorcyclemen Sheppard and Grace—picked up the Lewisohn auto on the Belmont Turnpike a short distance from the track, and when Lewisohn failed to heed their shout to stop the policemen set out in pursuit. Down the turnpike sped the auto at nearly forty-five miles an hour and behind it rode the policemen.

The car turned into Jamaica Avenue, then into Cypress Avenue, and thence into the Hoffman Boulevard. Behind it still rode the policemen, but they could not catch up. Crowds stopped along the side of the road to watch the chase as the automobile sped on faster and faster. When it turned into Bushwick Avenue other vehicles turned to the roadside to give the speeding car room.

It was traveling like a Vanderbilt racer when Mr. Lewisohn steered it into Montrose Avenue, and he did not slacken speed as he approached the Williamsburg Bridge. The pursuing policemen thought they had cornered him when they saw him go on to the bridge, for it always takes a moment or two to buy the ticket necessary to cross the structure. Mr. Lewisohn saved time, however, by not stopping to buy a ticket, darting past the ticket agent's booth at full speed.

Then the policemen telephoned across the bridge to shut the runaway gate. The big gate had scarcely slammed shut when the roadster dashed down the incline of the bridge. Mr. Lewisohn saw, however, that the chase was over and stopped his car. Then he drove it back to the station house.

There he said he was 28 years old and lived at Sherry's. In the car with him was a companion, but Mr. Lewisohn refused to give his name.

After wandering from New York to Chicago and back for eighteen months in search of employment Max Hainke, 36 years old, a native of Hainau, Germany, accompanied by his wife, arrived in this city yesterday and applied to the Ellis Island authorities to be deported to Germany because they were penniless and worn out with fatigue.

As Hainke had been in the country more than a year and was not in ill-health he could not be deported by the immigration authorities, and the German Aid Society said that he must hustle for himself. The man said that they had been robbed of their money in Chicago.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., May 26.—This tells of the shattered romance of Sarah Jones, 15 years old, daughter of Councilman and Mrs. Augustus T. Jones of Bradley Beach. Sarah did not like school. She came to Asbury Park Saturday afternoon on an errand. She met Joseph Frank, aged 21. Her mother was waiting her return to Bradley Beach, but Sarah Jones went to Jersey City with Joseph Frank.

On Sunday she telephoned a married sister that she was married. On Monday night she returned with her husband to her father's house, at 300 Fifth Avenue, Bradley Beach, where the young man was entertained lavishly—until the arrival of a constable. The officer served a warrant sworn out by Mr. Jones charging the young man with abduction. He was held in $1,000 bail to-day for the Grand Jury, and to-night the young wife was crying out:

"I hate him now! I hate him!"

BARON BACK IN LUDLOW JAIL.

Von Novelly Summered There Last Season—In for Debt This Time.

Baron Egon von Novelly is summering in Ludlow Street Jail—almost as usual. It is said that the Baron likes the quiet of the place. He was there last Summer for a while. Many of the Ludlow Street regulars at this popular Summer and Winter resort are much attached to the Baron.

The Baron represents himself to be of noble Austrian birth and large means. He is 25, not bad to look at, and a good talker. He is reported, also by himself, to have been at one time a Lieutenant in the Austrian Army.

The Baron got into the limelight last Summer when Marion Allen, who said she was an artist's model, sued him for $25,000 damages for breach of promise. She told a harrowing tale of a week's courtship in a West Twenty-seventh Street house while planning the details of the fine wedding that was to be, and how then the Baron departed without even paying the rent.

Nothing came of that suit. Presently Harry A. Brinner of 452 West 145th Street sued the Baron for $500, money lent. Mr. Brinner said the young fellow asked for the loan until his money should come from his Austrian bankers. Mr. Brinner declared that the Baron showed him fake telegrams, purporting to be from his bankers, saying that the money was coming.

The Baron couldn't pay back the $500, or wouldn't, and had his first experience of a Summer in Ludlow Street Jail. Then toward the end of the Summer George P. Breckenridge of 32 Liberty Street got after the Baron for his client, Erwin Maerker. According to Mr. Breckenridge, about two years ago the Baron got to telling Mr. Maerker, who had saved up some money, what he could do in the stock market.

Mr. Maerker allowed the Baron to draw for him $350, according to Lawyer Breckenridge, which the Baron did not apply to any other than his own use and benefit, the plaintiff declares. When the leaves of 1907 were turning brown, and after he had left the Summer jail, Mr. Breckenridge haled him into the Municipal Court, where he got judgment against him.

"We did not put him in jail then," said Lawyer Breckenridge yesterday, "because he said that he would pay in time. But of late we had had a hard time keeping track of him, and Monday night he was put in jail to satisfy the judgment."

According to law the Baron may be kept in jail three months. The leaves may be turning again when he comes out.

THE MICHIGAN LAUNCHED.

Thousands Witness Ceremonies—New Battleship of 16,000-Ton Class.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMDEN, N. J., May 26.—Several thousand persons witnessed the successful launching of the battleship Michigan today at the yards of the New York Shipbuilding Company. It was a notable launching, and when the sea fighter's sponsor said "I christen thee Michigan" the throng cheered the great 16,000-ton vessel and steam craft in the river tooted their salutes.

Truman H. Newberry, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, was on the launching stand to see his daughter, Miss Carol Barnes Newberry, christen the battleship named for their own Commonwealth.

Miss Newberry, accompanied by her friend, Miss Sadie Murray, daughter of Brig. Gen. Murray, U. S. A.; her mother, and many prominent persons, took her place on the launching platform a few minutes before 10 o'clock. In her right hand she grasped a bottle of champagne beribboned in the National colors. Behind her stood her father, anxious that there should be no hitch in the christening. Miss Newberry, a graceful girl with dark hair, wore a striped flannel walking dress. She was not a bit nervous, and chatted gayly until 11 o'clock, when the brace and "trigger" which held the great hull amidships were knocked away, a whistle sounded, and the red nulk stirred.

"Now!" exclaimed the Assistant Secretary, and Miss Newberry, with a sweeping stroke, smashed the bottle against the blunt nose of the ship to her left.

Slowly the Michigan began to move down the ways until, with accelerated speed, she burst from the gloom of the great shed out into the sunlight and the river.

Among the guests at the launching were: Mrs. Newberry, Gov. Fred M. Warner of Michigan, Senators Burrows and Smith and Congressman Loud of Michigan, of the Naval Committee; Rear Admiral W. L. Capps, Chief Naval Constructor; Rear Admiral W. S. Cowles, U. S. N.; Mrs. Garfield, wife of the Secretary of the Interior; Barnes and Phelps Newberry, sons of the Assistant Secretary; Lieut. Commander Archibald Davis, Mrs. Wilkes, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fletcher of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Cooley, and Miss Murray.

The company presented to Miss Newberry a souvenir in the form of a pendant set with jewels, and there was some informal speechmaking at the luncheon which followed, in response to toasts by the Assistant Secretary, Gov. Warner, and others.

MRS. MAXWELL INSANE.

Grief for Bank President's Suicide Unhinges His Widow's Mind.

It became known yesterday through an order of court, that Mrs. Carrie M. Maxwell, widow of Howard Maxwell, ex-President of the Borough Bank of Brooklyn, who killed himself, has become insane through grief. She is now in a sanitarium at Easton, Penn.

Mrs. Maxwell's present condition is believed to be due to grief over the death of her husband, and the events leading to his suicide. The court order of yesterday was signed by Surrogate Ketcham of Brooklyn, and removed her as administratrix of her husband's estate. In her stead, the Surrogate has appointed William Maxwell and Frank R. Doolittle.

Mr. Maxwell was indicted after the failure of the Borough Bank, and arrested. These incidents prostrated Mrs. Maxwell. At the time of his suicide, immediately after his liberation on bail, Mrs. Maxwell was ill, and the news was kept from her as long as possible.

The estate to be administered does not amount to more than $5,000 in personal property and $5,000 in real estate.

POLICE HOLD FOUR AS CHURCH BURGLARS

Neighbors' Description of Men Seen Leaving Rifled Flat Led to Their Arrest.

DRUNK COMMUNION WINE

Detectives Suspect These Men of Robbing Church Closets and Pastors' Studies in the Bronx.

Four men, each of whom, the police say, has a prison record, were arraigned in the Morrisania Police Court yesterday morning and were held in $1,500 each by Magistrate Crane for examination on a charge of burglary. They were William Gurness, known also as William Wurzburger and William Rozzy, the police say; Thomas Johnson, Frank F. McDonald, and Richard Wagner, known, according to the police, as Peter Hass. According to the detectives of the Bronx bureau these men have been perpetrating nearly all, if not all, of the many recent burglaries of homes and churches in the Bronx.

Each of the four gave his address as 112 East Twenty-sixth Street and in their rooms, the detectives say, were found many stolen articles, some of which have been identified by their owners. The men were identified by several pawnbrokers in lower Manhattan as men with whom they had done business, the police say. On Gurness, the police say, they found a silver crucifix.

The arrest of the men was made by Detectives O'Sullivan and Wagner on descriptions furnished by neighbors of Mrs. Frank Simon, whose flat at 746 Jackson Avenue, was robbed recently, and from which four men were seen to go downstairs to the street. The detectives caught the men at Beck Street and Longwood Avenue on Monday afternoon. They put up a fight, and in the mix-up Johnson got away. He was caught in 125th Street later.

Among the places which the police suspect these four men of robbing is the Grace Baptist Church at 156th Street and Macy Place, which was entered through a window which was jimmied open. The pastor's study was forced, his desk ransacked, the furniture demolished, and then the burglars broke into the closet where the communion wine is stored. They drank a quantity of the wine and then smashed a stereopticon machine, stealing the lense, worth $30.

When Pastor Arthur T. Brooks discovered the robbery he found pieces of charred paper on the church floor, and it appeared that the burglars had tried to set fire to the edifice by soaking paper in oil and igniting it. It 's thought the fire burned itself out.

The fruit store of Paul Bacigalupi, at 735 Union Avenue, and the tailor's shop of Nathan Cuskin, at 840 East 156th Street, are two other places which were robbed recently. In the fruit store the burglars got $60 from a cash drawer and from the tailor's shop two suits of clothes were missing next morning.

Burglars also broke into the Prospect Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, at Macy Place, breaking into the study of Pastor William M. Carr and stealing from his desk three rings worth $10, the property of his daughters. They also took a cornet belonging to Gus Greenwald, who assists the organist, which was worth $50. As in the Grace Baptist Church, the burglars drank the communion wine.

The Montefiore Hebrew Congregational Church, at Macy and Hewitt Places, of which Rabbi Alexander Basel is head, was next visited. Here the burglars smashed two stained glass windows worth $460. Dr. Basel said yesterday that he would draw up a petition for his congregation to sign asking that Commissioner Bingham supply adequate police service for the section.

"Other pastors intend doing this," said Dr. Basel, "and if it fails of any result we shall visit the Commissioner in a body and make our appeal orally."

Residents of certain sections of the Bronx are seriously considering the policing of the streets by volunteer citizens.

DROPS IN STREET, STARVING.

Man Out of a Job Said He Had Eaten Nothing Since Last Saturday.

Giuseppe Chiaranivorite collapsed from starvation in front of 232 East 107th Street yesterday morning. Joseph Squadrito of No. 227, across the Street, who saw him fall, carried Chiaranivorite to a stoop, where he revived.

Then he told Squadrito that he had not eaten anything since last Saturday and had been out of work nearly six months. When the neighbors, most of whom are poor, heard that Chiaranivorite was starving they almost fought to be first to give him food and wine. They also gave him money.

Chiaranivorite was so weak that at first he could only sip a little wine and a bowl of soup. He said he had started at daybreak yesterday with a shovel to go to Fort George, where he had heard he might get work. He had got as far as Harlem, where he collapsed. Chiaranivorite also said that when he lost his job last Winter he had some money in a bank, but lost it when the bank failed.

Chiaranivorite would not go to a hospital, and after an hour's rest was able to go to his home, at 5 Bleecker Street.

DIDN'T MARRY MME. GOULD.

Hoboken Justice Formally Denies Having Performed the Ceremony.

William C. Budenbender, the Hoboken Justice of the Peace who has been said in many newspaper stories published in the last six weeks to have married Mme. Anna Gould to Prince Hélie de Sagan on the night of April 10, and was quoted in The American as having admitted to a reporter for that paper that he had performed such a marriage, officially denied that he had done so to the Hoboken Board of Health yesterday. The marrying Justice of the Peace was ordered before the board to explain why he had not filed a certificate of the marriage, on the supposition that the stories supposedly emmanating from him were true.

"Did you perform the ceremony as stated in the papers?" asked President Rudolph of the Board of Health.

"I did not," answered Budenbender.

"Will the records of your office show that you performed no such ceremony?"

"They will."

"That is all," said President Rudolph.

SAY BOY ROBBED FINANCIERS.

Police Catch Youthful Collector, Who Bolted to Escape a Trap.

William St. Clair, a clerk in the office of Senator Clark's United Verde Copper Company, at 49 Wall Street, was responsible for the arrest yesterday of a youth who, the police say, has been successfully working a small swindling game in the financial district. The prisoner, who said he was Edward Goddard, 20 years old, of 1,538 Fifteenth Street, Brooklyn, visited Senator Clark's office and said he wanted to collect a bill of $2 for papers delivered by the newsdealer who has a stand on the ground floor. St. Clair became suspicious and asked Goddard to go down to the news stand with him. When they got out of the elevator on the ground floor Goddard broke for the door and was caught by Special Officer Charlton.

According to Charlton, a youth has been going about the offices in the financial district representing himself as a collector. He said that Goddard on the way to Police Headquarters admitted having obtained an average of $12 a day at the game.

TELLS CORONER HE'S ALIVE.

Man with a Broken Head Says He Doesn't Think He's Dead.

When William Seeth a stenographer, who lives at 45 Halsey Street, Brooklyn, tried to board a moving trolley car at Fulton Street and Flushing Avenue, Jamaica, on Monday, he was thrown to the street and suffered a fracture of the skull. Dr. Linson took him to St. Mary's Hospital. For twenty-four hours he was unconscious, and it was a question whether he would live.

Then just as he was recovering and wondering what it was all about, a representative from the Coroner's office in Queens called at the hospital to view the body. The Coroner's office had been notified by the police that the young man was dead.

"Something awfully queer seems to have happened to me, but I don't think I am dead," said Seeth.

Divorce for Actor Harty's Wife.

Supreme Court Justice O'Gorman signed an interlocutory decree of divorce yesterday in favor of Mrs. Evelyn Vaine Harty against Robert E. Harty, an actor and singer.

FRANCE WOULD LIKE BRITAIN AS AN ALLY

But the Temps Says the British Army Must First Be Made Efficient.

NAVAL VICTORIES USELESS

President Fallieres the Recipient of Further Honors in London—Heartily Cheered by People.

PARIS, May 26.—The speeches exchanged in London between President Fallières and King Edward have attracted much attention from the French press, and the Temps, which often expresses the views of the French Government, this afternoon says it considers the time to be ripe for the substitution of an Anglo-French alliance instead of the present entente, provided that the British Army be radically reorganized, in order to render it capable of energetic action on the Continent. Otherwise, the paper says, the benefits of the alliance would be one-sided and in favor of England, and consequently inadvisable.

The Temps recognizes that the cordial relations between France and Great Britain, as manifested yesterday, are likely, in the event of a crisis, to breed identity of interests, but it thinks it dangerous to rely upon moral understandings.

"Forced to choose between Germany and Great Britain," the Temps declares, "France chooses Great Britain. We can with dignity live on correct terms with Germany, but the past forbids us going further. As for the future, Germany only wants what we cannot grant, namely, the admission of German funds to the Paris Bourse. On the other hand, the greatest objection to a British alliance has disappeared with the reconciliation of our ally, Russia, with Great Britain.

"From the English standpoint this alliance is desirable. England throughout her history always has felt the necessity of a Continental alliance and Continental support. The French Army would be of inestimable value to Great Britain in the event of war, but would British support be equally advantageous to us? British naval victories would not drive a single cannon from our frontier. It would be different if the British Army were completely reorganized, so as to render it capable of a powerful land diversion; in other words, if Great Britain became for France a second Russia.

"The day upon which Great Britain, discarding Mr. Haldane's insufficient plan, gives the country a modern army, the day upon which Great Britain remembers Napoleon fell at Waterloo and not at Trafalgar, that day all far-seeing Frenchmen will become partisans of the British alliance, the purpose of which would be to complete and enlarge that system of pacific defense which did not result from the Franco-Russian alliance of 1891.

"To those who express surprise," the Temps concludes, "that military considerations weigh so heavily in this argument, we observe that the value of diplomatic combinations for peace is measured by their efficacy in war."

LONDON, May 26.—M. Fallières, President of the French Republic, had a busy day in London. He started in early by holding a reception to the Gallic colony in London at the French Embassy, after which he paid a round of ceremonial calls upon various members of the English reigning house. In the afternoon, accompanied by King Edward and Queen Alexandra, he paid a state visit to the Franco-British Exhibition at Shepherd's Bush.

President Fallières is proving a highly popular visitor. Huge crowds gather wherever there is a possibility of seeing him pass, and the cheers with which he is greeted are exceptionally lusty.

At Buckingham Palace to-night a great state ball was given in honor of M. Fallières. This was the culminating feature of the day. Early in the evening immense crowds gathered about the various royal residences to witness the processions to the palace and to cheer the French President.

The scene within the walls of Buckingham Palace was one of exceptional brilliance. The royal guests assembled in the throne room, and a fanfare of trumpets heralded their entry to the ballroom, which was superbly decorated with flowers. King Edward and Queen Alexandra, accompanied by M. Fallières and the royal entourage, passed down the entire length of the room between rows of bowing guests.

By the King's command the ladies' gowns were all of soft shades, most of them being fashioned after the Directoire and Empire periods. All of the embassies were well represented, and many high Indian officials were present. There was a great display of jewels and orders.

BROOKLYNITES SEE POPE.

Bishop McDonnell and a Group of Pilgrims Are Blessed.

ROME, May 26.—Pope Pius to-day received in private audience the Right Rev. Charles E. McDonnell, Bishop of Brooklyn, who afterward introduced to the Pontiff his secretary, Mgr. John I. Barrett, and over a hundred American pilgrims, most of whom left New York with the Bishop April 30.

Bishop McDonnell said he came personally to express the feeling of affection and loyalty of his diocese on the occasion of the Papal jubilee, and presented a substantial offering of Peter's pence. The Rev. James McEnroe of Our Lady of the Rosary of Brooklyn was presented to the Pope. Father McEnroe celebrated his own jubilee in the priesthood this year, and he was warmly congratulated by the Pope.

The Pope made an address in Italian and expressed his gratitude that his American visitors had come so far to see him. His remarks were translated into English by Mgr. Kennedy, rector of the American College.

Subsequently the entire party was received by Mgr. Merry del Val, the Papal Secretary of State.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

LONDON, May 26.—The damage done to transatlantic cables by trawlers on the Irish Coast, which has become so aggravated during the last few days as to interfere seriously with the transmission of dispatches, was brought to the attention of Foreign Secretary Sir Edward Grey by Ambassador Reid at the Foreign Office this morning. Sir Edward said he would do all in his power for the protection of the cables.

PARIS, May 26.—The funeral of Francois Copper, the well-known French poet and dramatist, who died in this city last week, took place to-day. The ceremonies were memorable, for all classes of society strove to honor this "poet of the people." The Church of St. Francis Xavier was filled with well-known representatives of French art, science, and literature, as well as delegations from various French patriotic organizations.

MEQUINEZ, Morocco, Wednesday, May 20.—Since the arrival here of Mulai Hafid, the usurping Sultan of Morocco, all the Government buildings, the dispensary, and the houses of the friends of Abd-el-Aziz, the Sultan of record, have been looted and pillaged, and the money obtained confiscated by Mulai Hafid. Hafid is planning to leave here for Fez May 26.

KOENIGSBERG, Germany, May 26.—Three artillerymen died here to-day from the effects of sunstroke sustained while their battery was on a practice march through the country. Twenty other members of the organization were seriously affected by the sun and had to be removed to the hospital.

OUR TEACHERS NOT BETTER.

Prof. Brandl Explains That He Said They Were Just as Good as England's.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 26.—A wholly mistaken impression has been circulated with regard to the report made to the Prussian Ministry of Education by Prof. Alois Brandl, the head of the English Department of the University of Berlin. It has been said that that eminent scholar had affirmed that Americans speak English with greater purity than Englishmen.

Prof. Brandl authorizes THE NEW YORK TIMES's correspondent to state that no such report is in existence. The facts are that it was the original desire of the Ministry of Education to arrange an exchange of public school teachers between Germany and England. The project aroused no enthusiasm in Great Britain, whereupon the Ministry consulted Prof. Brandl as to whether American teachers, in his judgment, were equally well qualified to teach the English language. Prof. Brandl expressed the opinion that they were, but never remotely hinted that they were better qualified.

MELBA MEETS TETRAZZINI.

Rival Prima Donnas Find a Congenial Topic in Directoire Gowns.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 26.—Mme. Melba and Mme. Tetrazzini met for the first time this afternoon. They bowed, smiled, and shook hands, heard each other sing, and applauded each other in turn.

The stage of the Covent Garden Opera House was the scene of the meeting. Both singers had gone there to rehearse their respective rôles for to-morrow's gala performance. They were introduced by the musical director.

Straightway they began to talk in French about Directoire gowns.

OUR PATENTS IN DANGER.

Protest Lodged by Ambassador Reid Against the New British Law.

LONDON, May 26.—Representations have been made to the Foreign Office by Ambassador Reid with the view of a modification of the new patent law of Great Britain.

This law was introduced by David Lloyd-George, then President of the Board of Trade, and comes into effect July 28. It provides for the revocation of all patents unless the actual process is carried on in the United Kingdom. Owners of American patents contend that this act will work a hardship on them, and as the United States respects all patents, whether American or foreign owned, they argue that Americans should receive equal treatment in Great Britain.

PRINCE MURAT WOUNDS TWO.

Fights Duels with Russian Brothers and Seriously Injures One.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 26.—Two duels among three men prominent in Russian society were fought in the outskirts of St. Petersburg to-day. One of the contestants was seriously wounded.

The men concerned were Prince Napoleon Murat, a descendant of Bonaparte's famous Field Marshal and now a Captain in the Chevalier Guards, a crack Russian regiment, and two brothers named Plen, who are well known in the exclusive social circles of this city. Prince Murat's quarrel was with both the brothers, and he elected to fight them in succession. He wounded both his opponents, one of them seriously, and escaped unscathed.

Prince Murat's grandmother was an American woman, Caroline Fraser of Bordentown, N. J. She died in Paris in 1879.

HOME RULE FOR SCOTLAND.

House of Commons Passes a Bill for It to First Reading.

LONDON, May 26.—Another of the pledges given by Winston Spencer Churchill during his recent electoral campaign in Dundee has borne quick fruit. A "Home Rule for Scotland" bill was introduced in the House of Commons by Duncan Vernon Pirie, member for North Aberdeen, this afternoon.

Mr. Pirie explained that the main object of this bill was to devolve to a legislative body in Scotland the power to make laws on matters relating exclusively to that country. A. J. Balfour objected strongly, but the House, by 257 votes to 102, voted in favor of allowing the bill to go to its first reading.

Gold Purse Sought in Lost Column.

After leaving the home of a friend in Harlem on Sunday afternoon, Miss Eames of 149 West Ninety-sixth Street boarded a Subway train at 125th Street, carrying her gold purse in her hand. When she left the train at Ninety-sixth Street the purse was gone. Miss Eames said the purse was a present, and she valued it on this account as well as for its worth, although it had diamonds, rubies, and emeralds in its setting. She offers a reward for its return through THE TIMES Lost and Found column.

GERMANY SEEKING PEACE IN BALKANS

Ambassador Von Sternburg Explains Her Policy Is to Agree with Other Powers.

THINKS AUSTRIA IS RIGHT

Not Egging On Turkish Government in the Dispute with Persia Over the Boundary.

Baron Speck von Sternburg, the German Ambassador to the United States, has an article in the forthcoming Outlook giving an official German view of the Macedonian situation. He speaks with full personal as well as official information, as he was Germany's agent at Belgrade for some time, and made a study there and in Macedonia of existing conditions.

"Germany agrees with the whole civilized world," he says, "that the unbearable state of affairs in Macedonia urgently calls for a remedy, and that steps must be taken to put a stop to the continuous bloodshed, murder, and outrages there. But Germany is convinced that all measures bearing upon this subject will only have a possibility of success if they receive the firm support of all the powers, acting in absolute harmony with each other.

"Germany is ready to consider seriously and favorably any suitable proposal, from whatever side it may come, by which the present state of affairs in Macedonia can be remedied, and is prepared to give her full consent hereto, provided that it meets the consent of the other powers.

"As far as a judiciary reform is concerned, the German Government considers the realization of such as not only useful, but as absolutely necessary. It does not regard it as the most appropriate measure for quieting the Balkan States, and also doubts that the scheme for a reform of the Turkish judiciary system in its present form is appropriate in all points. But whether this scheme be considered as perfect in all details or whether it is defective and offers difficulties of execution, the German Government is ready, in order not to trouble the concert of the powers, to give its consent to the project as it now stands, if all the powers do likewise.

"As to the question of the Sandjak Railway, there is no doubt that Austria-Hungary is entitled by the treaty of Berlin to carry out that project, and that the powers recognize her right to do so; nor does Germany consider this purely economical project to be inconsistent with either the wording or the meaning of the purely political entente between Russia and Austria-Hungary, especially with the Mürsteg programme.

"It must also be observed that there have been no negotiations between Berlin and Vienna concerning the question of the Sandjak Railway. On the other hand, Germany is in thorough sympathy with the railway project because Austria-Hungary has acted in incontestable good faith and in perfect loyalty. It is also Germany's firm opinion that the projected railway would mean a most effective means for the economical as well as the moral development of the States touched by the road, and consequently she has supported the project in Constantinople for their pacification. She would also be ready to sympathize with and support similar enterprises, if equally justified and following the same aims.

"The boundary controversy between Turkey and Persia endangers no German interests. Germany has, consequently, not the slightest reason to take any part in it. She has, however, thought it advisable, for the sake of common interest, repeatedly to recommend in a friendly but urgent way to the Porte a peaceable settlement of the controversy and to suggest that Turkey should take the first step thereto by withdrawing her troops.

"It need scarcely be mentioned that the frequent statements by the foreign press asserting that Germany is supporting Turkish armaments and encouraging the warlike spirit in Turkey—which, in fact, according to all information, is in no way discernible—are an absurd invention."

The wrong sort of instrument is not worth anything the day you buy it—and it doesn't increase in value.

Every time we sell an Ideal "Melodiste" Playerpiano we look ahead. The mere profit on one sale doesn't amount to much. We look ahead to the time when the purchaser will be so thoroughly pleased with the Ideal "Melodiste" that he or she will tell their friends about what a reliable instrument was bought of Anderson & Co. a number of years before.

As a matter of fact, a considerable proportion of our present sales can be traced to kind words of old patrons.

TO TELL ABOUT A HANGING.

Execution of Radzius Witnessed by Foreigners as an Object Lesson.

POTTSVILLE, Penn., May 26.—A large number of Slavs, Hungarians, Poles, Italians, Russians, Lithuanians, and other foreigners were present at the putting to death here to-day of Felix Radzius, a young Pole, convicted of the murder of a woman and her child at Shenandoah six months ago.

The hanging took place in the yard of the Schuylkill County Prison, and about 500 persons were present. The idea of having present representatives of the various foreign elements in this section of the coal region originated with Sheriff Clay Evans, who thinks the story of the execution as told from the lips of the foreigners will have a salutary effect in curbing the murderous tendency of some of the lawless element.

Radzius made a complete confession of the Shenandoah murders and confirmed the information the police had that he had been guilty of committing a murder in Russian Poland.

BOSTON AND MAINE RAILROAD

RAILROAD PRAISE FOR STANDARD OIL

Officials Testify in Federal Suit to the Value of the Various-Priced Oil.

TRAFFIC GOVERNS COST

Harriman's Illinois Central Got More Standard Shipments, but Paid Double for Oil Road Used.

A definite idea of the Standard Oil Company's line of defense was gained yesterday after three witnesses had been examined before Special Examiner Franklin Ferriss in Room 722 of the Custom House. The New Jersey corporation, against which the Government's suit for dissolution is directed on the ground that it is a trust and operating in restraint of interState trade, will seek to prove that one of its subsidiary companies at least is necessary to the railroads of the country, and that in fact the railroads could not maintain their efficiency without the aid of the Standard Oil. The subsidiary company which the witnesses yesterday particularized as being indispensable to the railroads is the Galena Signal Oil Company, of which C. C. Steinbrenner is the general manager.

This unique line of defense has been adopted to offset the evidence adduced by Frank B. Kellogg, the Government's lawyer, showing that the Standard has a practical monopoly in the lubricating of rolling stock of the railroads of the United States, and that so tight is the grip of the Standard Oil concern that it has a sliding scale of prices, charging some roads 100 per cent. more than others for furnishing the lubricant.

Three officials of railroads which buy lubricants from the Galena Signal Company were called yesterday by the Standard Oil lawyers to testify concerning the excellence of the service of the oil concern, and all three praised highly the lubricating branch of the Standard Oil Company.

Harriman Road Paid High.

One fact which was considered of especial importance by Mr. Kellogg was brought out during the afternoon. It was that the Galena Signal Oil Company raised the price of lubricating oil to Mr. Harriman's road, the Illinois Central Railroad, about 100 per cent. two years ago, and that directly following the great increase in cost to the railroad the amount of Standard Oil shipments over the Illinois Central was doubled. It was looked upon by Mr. Kellogg as an example of reciprocity with a vengeance. The Illinois Central is now paying the full invoice price on lubricants to the Galena Signal concern, the same as the St. Paul, while the Pennsylvania is paying less than 50 per cent. of the invoice price. This small cost which the Pennsylvania is taxed for its lubricating oil was brought out Monday, when Edward W. McKenna, Vice President of the St. Paul, was on the stand. Mr. McKenna was still on the stand yesterday morning.

"The reports of the Galena Signal show that it is earning a profit of 50 per cent.," said Mr. Kellogg to the witness. "Now, doesn't that indicate that some one is paying an excessive price for oil?"

Moritz Rosenthal, leading counsel for the Standard, hastened to deny this statement, and the witness did not answer. Mr. McKenna said, however, that the Pennsylvania uses more oil per thousand miles than the St. Paul.

"And yet it only pays a little more than half the price your road does, and you claim that you are getting lubrication cheaper than the Pennsylvania," said Mr. Kellogg, with a show of warmth.

"That's just it," exclaimed Mr. McKenna. "That's what I am buying—lubrication; not oil, at so much a gallon. That is the distinction."

Mr. McKenna said that he expected to get the oil from the Galena Signal Company at a cheaper rate in the future.

"That's because you have learned that the Pennsylvania is paying only half what you are," said Mr. Kellogg. But Mr. McKenna would not admit this. He said he knew it in a general way before.

The Standard and Economy.

When Louis C. Fritch, assistant to President Harahan of the Illinois Central, was called to testify yesterday by the Standard's lawyer he said that the experts of the Galena Signal Company had greatly reduced the cost of lubricating his road in the last few years and that the economy in the lubricating department had led to a general saving throughout the system, as it has stimulated all branches of the road to greater efforts toward economy.

He said that in the last ten years the weight of locomotives had increased 100 per cent. The number of cars needing lubrication has also increased 144 per cent. in the same period. The car mileage in the last ten years has increased only 79 per cent., however.

Mr. Kellogg sought to bring out that President Harahan of the Illinois Central made the contracts himself with President Miller of the Galena Signal Company, agreeing to pay the full invoice price. But this was denied by Mr. Fritch. Mr. Kellogg, in his cross-examination, brought out the fact that in 1906 and 1907 the cost of lubricating the Illinois Central was increased from $1.67 per 1,000 miles to $2.20, and that the receipts for oil shipments over the road between those two years were increased from $292,825 to $511,207.

After Mr. Fritch had extolled the methods of the Galena Signal Company, which had resulted in such economy for the railroad, Mr. Kellogg asked him about the waste fuel. Mr. Fritch said the waste had not been decreased.

"Then, why don't you turn over the fuel question to the Standard Oil Company?" asked Mr. Kellogg, with a smile.

"We would like to, if they would do as well with it as they have done with the lubricating problem," rejoined Mr. Fritch.

"I suppose you might as well turn over the whole railroad to the Standard Oil, then," Mr. Kellogg replied, and everybody laughed except Mr. Fritch.

A Question of Education.

Mr. Kellogg asked the witness if he knew any reason why the Pennsylvania should have a guarantee for the oil at less than one-half the price paid by the Illinois Central. Mr. Fritch admitted that he did not, unless it was that the Pennsylvania used more oil than the Illinois Central.

"Perhaps they have not been educated up as we have," he suggested, and added that probably, when the contract with the Pennsylvania was made the large amount of oil required was taken into consideration. He laughingly continued that it is a business custom to make a reduction on wholesale lots. He said that his road was satisfied with its contract.

Jabel T. Odell, who, after saying that he had no specific occupation, added that he was either President or Director of about fifteen companies, mostly carrying roads, was the last witness for the day. When General Manager for the Baltimore & Ohio he had, he said, experience with the Galena Signal Oil Company, and its product was the only kind that could be trusted, as it was the only lubricant that would "run cold." He experimented with many kinds of lubricating oils, he said, and agreed with Mr. McKenna and Mr. Fritch that the Galena Signal's oil experts or "educators" had greatly increased the efficiency of the roads by perfecting the method of lubrication.

WAR OVER RATES IN TRAFFIC CLUB

Shippers Spring a Resolution for an Inquiry as to Justice of Proposed Increase.

FOUGHT BY RAILWAY MEN

A Rise at This Time Declared by Speakers to be the Last Straw—Hot Talk and a Compromise.

There was a bitter fight last night between the railroad and representatives of the shipping interests at a meeting of the Traffic Club in the Hotel Astor, and when the excitement simmered down the shippers claimed a victory—a partial one, at least.

Word had gone around that all the trunk lines east of the Missouri River had agreed on a 10 per cent. increase in freight rates, to take effect in September. This agreement was decided upon, so the industrial men had been informed, at a meeting of railroad Presidents a few weeks ago.

The Traffic Club is composed of the traffic managers of most of the important industrial concerns of the East and of the freight managers of all the trunk lines. The membership of 650 is about evenly divided between the shippers and the railroad men. The traffic managers of the large shipping concerns got together a few days ago and decided to spring a surprise upon the railroads by getting the Traffic Club to demand a free discussion between the railroad men and the shippers before the proposed increase in freight rates was formally announced. Naturally nothing of this was told the railroad men.

When the meeting was called to order last night in the Astor about 150 members were in the room, and C. S. Keene, Traffic Manager of the American Tobacco Company and President of the Traffic Club, was in the chair. The minutes were read and the President announced that the club was ready to consider new business. In an instant C. M. Baldwin, Traffic Manager of Swift & Co., was on the floor with a resolution to the effect that the club should, through its President, "petition the Presidents of the various trunk line roads in New York to show their sincerity and arrange for a full and free discussion with representatives of shippers as to the relative merits of any proposed increase in rates before any advance is agreed upon or new tariffs filed."

The Railway Position Assailed.

The resolution read by Mr. Baldwin referred to the depression in trade conditions and to the fact that no reduction in rates has been made to meet the hard times for shippers, and wound up by saying that the purposed increase, if made, would greatly add to the burdens that the shipper now has to carry.

The railroad men had not recovered from their surprise when George H. Stevenson, Assistant Traffic Manager of the General Chemical Company, was on his feet and had seconded the motion.

"It is against public policy and commercial usage for the carriers to make an advance in the rates at this time," he said, "and in times of such commercial depression the industrial concerns have to reduce their prices to keep going." He referred to the advance in rates last year and said that the industrial concerns were now staggering under as heavy a weight as they could bear.

By this time the railroad men had got their wind.

Henry L. Joyce, manager of the lighterage department of the New York Central, got up and suggested that the motion be referred to the Board of Managers. Mr. Baldwin hotly objected to this.

"We want to put it before the railroad Presidents," he exclaimed.

"Are you going to live up to the constitution and by-laws of this club, or muzzle such a measure?"

Calls for the motion were heard from all over the room.

H. L. Derby, Traffic Manager of the Casein Manufacturing Company, said:

"No meeting of this club will be held again for three months, and if this measure is referred to the Governing Committee it will effectually muzzle it until too late."

Mr. Joyce, who remained standing, replied:

"I have no desire to be discourteous by trying to cut off debate, and I am willing to allow my resolution to lie in abeyance until the vote on this resolution of Mr. Baldwin's, but this I want to say: It hardly devolves upon Mr. Baldwin or any one else to come into such a club with a resolution of this kind. Most of the men in this club are connected with the railroads of the country. To pass such a resolution in its present form would be a very unwise thing to do. It would be the beginning of the end."

Irritating Phrase Comes Out.

Mr. Joyce suggested that the paragraph reading "show their sincerity" be stricken out. Faint cheering from the railroad men greeted this. But Mr. Baldwin was back in the fight.

"Is this a club to promote the railroads' interests, or to bring traffic people together?" he asked. No one answered.

"I asked the railroad Presidents to show their sincerity, but I will consent to that being stricken out," he continued. And it was so ordered.

This suggestion was acceptable to Mr. Baldwin and his supporters.

It was finally decided, after some further warm talk, to present the resolution with the objectionable line eliminated to the Board of Governors with a request that the board act upon the resolution in a week and report to a special meeting, which will be called. The President said that the advance in rates is a serious proposition and that the Traffic Club would not be true to its mission if it did not take some cognizance of it.

SLIM NEGRO TAFT AUDIENCE.

Cheers for Foraker in Cooper Union at Republican Assembly.

A mass meeting of negroes, called by Bishop W. B. Derrick of Flushing, L. I., was held last night in Cooper Union. The primary purpose of the meeting, so the Bishop said, was to ask the negroes if they were going to seek asylum in the Democratic Party because they were angry. At least the secondary purpose of the meeting, which was not stated, was to boom Taft.

Bishop Derrick came out strong for Taft some time ago, and called on his brethren of color, as he terms them, to stick up for Taft. But the name of Foraker had to be mentioned several times last night, and whenever it was heard the audience rose and yelled its effervescent approval.

Cooper Union was hardly half filled. There were not more than 500 present, and the meeting, which was scheduled to begin at 8 o'clock, did not get under way until about 9.

When it did get under way it was on old-time negro Republican gathering. "Ship of State," "Grand Old Party," "Stick by the Ship," "Party of Lincoln and Douglas," these were the ripping old phrases, drawn from the chests of other campaigns, which roused orator and listener.

The Rev. Dr. Stansbury, who was reading his speech, dropped his sheets at one time, ran to the edge of the stage and cried:

"If the Republican Party nominated—no, no, I must not say that—well, if it nominated a seraphim angel, I would vote for him and support him. Yes, I will say it! If the Grand Old Party nominated the devil I'd support him till kingdom come."

INTERBOROUGH HAS NEW RAILROAD PLAN

Offers to Build and Equip a Line Between Flatbush Avenue and Canal Street, Manhattan.

TO USE THE NEW BRIDGE

Line to Run Under Ground to Bridge Plaza and Thence to Third Avenue Elevated—One Fare Promised.

The Interborough Rapid Transit Company made an offer yesterday to the Public Service Commission to construct, equip, and operate a railroad between Fulton Street and Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, and Canal Street, Manhattan. The line would run for about three-quarters of a mile as a subway under Flatbush Avenue and its extension, and would emerge to the street level at the Manhattan Bridge Plaza at Nassau and Sands Streets. It would cross the Manhattan Bridge on the lower tracks, and would then become an elevated line joining with the Third Avenue road.

The company asks $1,200,000 for the necessary construction work and the right to operate the line under lease from the city as a part of the present Subway and elevated system. It would charge only one fare of 5 cents from Atlantic and Flatbush Avenues over the new road to any station on the Manhattan Elevated lines. The road would have two tracks, and would, it is asserted by the Interborough officials, save a great deal of time for Brooklynites wishing to reach the financial parts of the city.

The proposed road would run in almost a direct line from Flatbush Avenue across the bridge to Canal Street and form one side of a triangle, of which the present Subway, with its Brooklyn extension, describes the other two sides. The company points out that Atlantic and Flatbush Avenues, in Brooklyn, will undoubtedly become a great traffic centre for persons who must find their way to all parts of Manhattan. The advantage of the proposed route is thus set forth by the Interborough Company:

> The present running time from the Atlantic Avenue terminal to Canal Street, by way of the existing Subway through Bowling Green, is 13½ minutes; by the proposed route over the Manhattan Bridge the time between the terminal and the Canal Street station of the Third Avenue elevated railway would not exceed 7½ minutes. Passengers at the Atlantic Avenue terminal for uptown in Manhattan, especially those wishing to use the elevated lines in Manhattan, would undoubtedly avail themselves of the new route, and thus relieve the East River tunnel and the Brooklyn Bridge.
>
> The use of the Manhattan railway system south of Canal Street by Brooklyn passengers for a single fare would be a great advantage. For example, in 7½ minutes a passenger could be delivered from Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn, to Canal Street, Manhattan. Transferring south, two minutes later he would be at Franklin Square station, three minutes later at Fulton Street station, and four and a half minutes later at Hanover Square station, or twelve minutes to the eastern Wall Street district. The time by the present East River tunnel route to Wall Street is eight and a half minutes, and to Fulton Street nine and a half minutes, but there is a large territory east of there to reach which a Subway passenger must now walk a long distance. That territory would be covered by the proposed route and the use of the Manhattan railway south of Canal Street. In addition to this Brooklyn passengers could continue on the Manhattan railway to South Ferry, thence north on the Sixth and Ninth Avenue lines, thus reaching the shopping district, ocean steamer piers, parks, and the ball grounds in Manhattan for a single fare.

This proposal conflicts with the proposed Fourth Avenue Subway plans. It asks for two of the tracks over the Manhattan Bridge, which would have been used for the Fourth Avenue plan, and then takes the streets of the first and part of the second sections of the Fourth Avenue line.

It would take away apparently from the Fourth Avenue line all connection with Manhattan. Passengers thereby would be forced to change to the new Interborough line at Fulton Street and Flatbush Avenue, and reach Wall Street over the Third Avenue after paying a double fare. Unless there was a traffic arrangement between the Interborough and the company which would eventually operate the Fourth Avenue Subway, the latter would be forced into the position of an entirely local line. On the other hand, by the original plan the Fourth Avenue trains would deliver their passengers without extra fare at City Hall Park.

Chairman Willcox of the Public Service Commission declined to discuss the proposal yesterday, as he said he had not yet studied it. When he was asked if it would not make the Fourth Avenue Subway an entirely local line, he replied:

"Might it not be possible to have the section along Flatbush Avenue extension and over the Manhattan Bridge a trunk line for the common use of all companies?"

Controller Metz, was impressed by the five-cent fare over the bridge to any part of Manhattan.

"I favor anything that will give a five-cent fare," he said.

SMALL SUBWAY BID NO BAR.

Contractor Graham Expected to Go On with Work on Brooklyn Section.

In spite of the smallness of his bid, it is believed by the Public Service Commission that James P. Graham will go on with the construction of the first section of the Brooklyn subway in Fourth Avenue, which has been awarded to him.

Mr. Graham was at the offices of the commission yesterday to receive back the check he put up with his bid for the fifth section, which was not accepted, and declared that he had always made money on his contracts and he did not intend to withdraw in this instance.

The awards on all the sections have been sent to the Board of Estimate, which will act upon them on Friday of next week.

FAVOR A BROOKLYN LOOP.

Commissioners Say It Is the Only Way to Turn Manhattan Line to Account.

The construction by the city of the Broadway (Brooklyn) section of the Brooklyn loop as far as Lafayette Avenue from the Williamsburg Bridge is recommended by Commissioners Bassett and McCarroll to the Public Service Commission. They report that this seems to be the only practicable method of turning to advantage the Manhattan part of the loop line, now under construction.

SHUTTLE TRAINS IN SUBWAY

And All Expresses Through to Brooklyn, New Plan of Interborough.

A shuttle service between Bowling Green station and South Ferry in the Subway and the running of all express trains to Brooklyn, was a recommendation made yesterday by the Interborough management to the Public Service Commission as the best plan of operating that part of their system. It would be necessary to build an additional platform on the west side of the Bowling Green station and a spur track at the cost of $75,000.

By this means the company would be able to provide a two-minute headway on its Brooklyn trains in the rush hours.

WANTS PUTNAM ELECTRIFIED.

Eustis Says Van Cortlandt Park People Deserve Better Service.

Commissioner Eustis presented a report yesterday to the Public Service Commission on the New York Central trains of the Putnam Division, declaring that the commission of the Second Division should have a conference with the New York commission to consider the electrification of the line in the Van Cortlandt Park district.

"The section traversed by this line," he says, "is entitled to far better service than this company has been giving it for the last two years."

BELMONT TALKS OF TRACTION PLANS

Tells Brooklyn League What Interborough Wants to Do for That Borough.

MENACED BY JERSEY, HE SAYS

That Is Why Everything Possible Should Be Done to Develop Queens Lines—Wants Elsberg Law Changed.

August Belmont, speaking last night at the quarterly meeting of the Brooklyn League, held at the Pouch Gallery, 345 Clinton Avenue, made three points, the consummation of which he said would turn the tide of suburbanism in favor of Brooklyn, instead of Jerseyward.

The first was a five-cent fare from Manhattan to Queens, by way of the Belmont tunnel. A five-cent fare from Flatbush Avenue, by the new Manhattan bridge, thence by elevated railroad—to be erected along Canal Street—to any of the existing elevated lines. And finally, the amendment of the Elsberg law with regard to the use of private capital in subway and other forms of railroad building.

"Brooklyn possesses the proper spirit of progress," said Mr. Belmont. He then read the offer of the Interborough Company to connect the Brooklyn Subway with the new Manhattan Bridge.

"It will be possible," he said, "if this plan is accepted, to carry passengers across the Manhattan Bridge from Flatbush Avenue, then through Canal Street, and transfer them to the various elevated lines for the one five-cent fare."

He said he hoped Brooklyn would see the transit problem in the same light as he did. He dwelt on the possibilities of Queens as served by the Belmont tunnel, adding, "If the drift starts toward Jersey it will be hard to check it. Queens wants the Steinway tunnel. By it it will be possible to get from Astoria to Manhattan in ten minutes. Five hundred thousand persons can be taken care of in Astoria."

Mr. Belmont said that some Brooklyn residents seemed to think that this would hurt Kings, but they must look at it in another light. "It is far better for them to go to Queens than to Jersey," he said. Speaking of the Elsberg act, Mr. Belmont asked Brooklynites to do all they could toward obtaining an amendment of it, as under present conditions the construction of transit lines is made impossible.

Just as Mr. Belmont was leaving Controller Metz arrived. They met at the door. Mr. Metz stopped Mr. Belmont and asked him whether the $2,000,000 to be spent in laying the eight tracks across the Manhattan Bridge was to be put up by the city or private interests.

"By the city," responded Mr. Belmont.

Mr. Metz said he asked the question because he had heard there were to be eight tracks across the bridge, and that the Interborough Company wanted two of them to run their trains across. He added:

"I have been accused of being a partner of yours, Mr. Belmont."

"Well, you haven't received any money for it, have you?" said Mr. Belmont, smilingly.

"No, I think on the other hand, I have cost you quite a bit of money." Mr. Belmont then left the meeting.

Public Service Commissioner Edward M. Bassett also spoke. He compared the transit facilities of Brooklyn to those of Manhattan. Brooklyn, he said, was at a disadvantage because it was spread out like a fan. He advocated the building of an elevated railway to Coney Island, via New Utrecht Avenue, instead of a subway.

Controller Metz, speaking of the Fourth Avenue subway, said: "If it has to be built, start off with two tracks instead of four, and build the other two out of the profits derived from the first two."

THE POLITICAL CURRENCY BILL.

The situation at Washington now is that the leaders think that real reform of the currency may be deferred two or three years, but that something positively must be knocked together to go before the country with this Fall. Anything will do for this purpose, the people are such simpletons. To be sure, they vetoed the Aldrich bill indisputably, and the Vreeland bill no less certainly, showing such unmistakable interest that the leaders were driven into their present panic. Their device for escaping from the situation they made for themselves is serious or shocking, according to the point of view. Having contrived two bad bills which failed separately they think that a single bill combining the objectionable features of both has a better chance. Accordingly the Aldrich bond currency scheme and the Vreeland "Clearing House" plan are tacked together, as though a combination of weaknesses made strength. And it is proposed to pass this bill, not on its merits even in the eyes of those who cannot perceive its defects, but as a matter of bargain and sale. A "pork" bill of $23,000,000 is to be paid for the passage of something to fool the people with. No debate will be risked, of course. There has been too much debate already. There would have been a bill before this if opportunity had not been given those who know something about the subject to expose the indefensible character of the proposals. This the leaders think is good politics.

Representative BARTHOLDT'S threat that there will be no "pork" bill unless there is a currency bill gives an excellent opportunity to kill both bills. The manner in which the "pork" bill was framed is scandalous in itself. The $23,000,000 finally included is the result of judicious selection among those who have favored the humbug currency reform bills, the reductions from a round $100,000,000 having been disproportionately distributed, as the Washington dispatches alleged, among the opponents of the Aldrich-Cannon programme. It would be interesting to know whether the currency bill is the excuse for the "pork" bill, or the "pork" bill in truth the consideration for the currency bill. However that may be, the prospect is that if this plan is allowed to succeed real reform will be killed indefinitely. Any future pressure for this object will be met with the objection that the emergency legislation is all that is necessary. If the best opinion of the country were supporting this bill the situation would be different. As a matter of fact the overwhelming weight of authority is against the bill, which is wholly political in its origin and operation. As it seems to us the wholesome opinion in favor of true reform is too precious to be wasted by the acceptance of any such hybrid and useless measure as that against which protests are countless. True reform is necessary, and it is best to stand pat until it is obtained.

ONE'S NEIGHBORS' FIRES.

The Collinwood School horror, the Boyertown and Iroquois Theatre fires, the Chelsea conflagration, the Slocum disaster, and the Tarrant explosion, with numberless other fatal factory, hotel, store, and residence fires, teach the danger to life of conditions not under the control of the individuals afflicted. Spirits, benzine, and explosives stored in "fire traps" are usually not detected until after the calamity. Up to the present period of retrenchment and economy, cities everywhere have overlooked scandalous structural groupings and defects, primitive safeguards, and uncleanly and disorderly occupancy of buildings, which increase the annual waste from fire and from stoppage of business to ninefold the waste in England, France, Germany, or Italy.

The absolute destruction of wealth through fires prior to 1908 has averaged $138,000,000 yearly. That is 37 per cent. of the net earnings of the Nation's railways and 22 per cent. more than their annual dividends; it exceeds by 56 per cent. the annual liabilities from commercial failure, and is over six times the interest on the National debt. It costs the citizens of the country $3 apiece, as against 33 cents apiece for fire loss across the Atlantic. This is worse than a tax, because the value is not transferred for the benefit of society, but destroyed to the detriment of society.

The provisions of the Napoleonic Code insure the French citizen, not only against his own fires, but against his neighbor's also. This fact, together with those cited above, is brought out by Mr. POWELL EVANS of Philadelphia in an address recently delivered before the National Association of Manufacturers. The gist of the modern doctrine of fire prevention is thus presented:

> A group of city buildings reasonably correct in construction, protection, and occupancy suffers less from fire hazard than if deficient in these three respects; a block of buildings correct in these respects is proportionately more safe from the fire hazard than any one group; while an entire city properly constructed, protected, and occupied in practice, cannot burn.

It is good doctrine. Mr. EVANS suggests that the Federal Government provide a standard building code for the City of Washington that will serve as a model to the Nation. Such a code might be considered by the new-formed House of Governors, with a view to its adoption, with auxiliary laws insuring public inspections and the public issuing of permits, by the respective State Legislatures and cities. The fire insurance organizations have already filed the necessary information. The various allied groups of merchants and manufacturers interested in keeping down fire insurance rates, co-operating with the fire underwriters, are the proper bodies to urge a rational reform.

THE STRUGGLE AT DENVER.

There must be wonderful vitality in the Democratic Party. Even after its poor old body has been racked for twelve years by a dreadful malady, it responds wonderfully to the all-too-tardy, and not very resolute, efforts made in various States to rebuild its constitution and restore its health. It is astonishing that, after only two or three weeks of campaigning against BRYAN in Alabama, between 30 and 40 per cent. of the vote at the primaries was cast for Gov. JOHNSON. The Chattanooga dispatch we printed on Sunday represents the sentiment of Tennessee to be against BRYAN, but the 24 delegates will very likely be instructed for him because the anti-Bryan Democrats are unorganized, have no leader, and the name of no candidate has been presented as a rallying point. Two months' intelligent work in those two States would have resulted in the sending of anti-Bryan delegations, and the same is true of other Southern States, in some of which, however, it is expected that no instructions will be given. The action of the Florida delegates in ranging themselves against BRYAN was a surprise, and has given much encouragement to the opponents of the Nebraskan.

In the Conventions thus far held in 18 States and 3 Territories, 438 delegates instructed for BRYAN have been chosen, or, excluding the 6 Philippines delegates, which probably will not be admitted, 432. The delegates already chosen in 8 States who are counted against BRYAN number 230; in these States Bryan resolutions were voted down. There are Bryan men among these delegates, however, notably in Connecticut, Rhode Island, and Pennsylvania. If the 14 Connecticut delegates should be evenly divided, the unit rule would fail there. Many other district delegates in Pennsylvania favor BRYAN, but it may be said that there is quite as much probability that the 54 Illinois delegates instructed for BRYAN will be led out of his camp by Mr. SULLIVAN, who has no love whatever for BRYAN, as that any of the Pennsylvania delegates will get away from Mr. GUFFEY. Maryland, Virginia, Louisiana, and Georgia are counted against BRYAN, and it is expected that no instructions will be given in North Carolina, Colorado, Maine, and New Hampshire. This group together sends 136 delegates, which, added to the 230 already chosen without instructions, makes 366. Without the representatives of the Philippines, there will be 1,002 delegates in the Convention, and 668 will be required to nominate. It is a most encouraging probability that there will be enough delegates in the Convention opposed to the nomination of Mr. BRYAN to defeat him, if they can be held together.

The friends of Gov. JOHNSON should by all means continue their efforts in his behalf in every State where delegates are yet to be chosen, and then prepare for the struggle at Denver, where the issue will be decided. It cannot be denied that a candidate having a majority of the delegates, even when two-thirds are required to nominate, is in a position of advantage, but it may prove to be easier to get delegates away from Mr. BRYAN than for him to win over any of those now counted against him. A well-directed and coherent opposition would beat him. The great need is of a competent leader. If a man of Mr. TILDEN'S capacity had been at work to save the Democracy, BRYAN would have been out of the race before the State Convention season was half over.

AN "OBJECT LESSON."

A Sheriff in the Pennsylvania coal-mining regions has executed a murderer in public as "an object lesson." It is an object lesson, indeed. The Anglo-Saxon world has just suppressed public executions because the experience of some centuries has shown that such brutal exhibitions breed and stimulate crime. The idea that to see a murderer hanged for his crime would deter others from committing murder was abandoned after its falsity was conclusively proved. Yet the Pottsville Sheriff has just conceived that idea. The lesson is that a man can hold a public office weighted with grave responsibilities without knowing anything of the teachings of history, even of recent history.

Public executions engender crime. Many wise persons argue that capital punishment should be abandoned because it has never acted as a deterrent to murder. We do not go so far as that. The death penalty for deliberate murder should stand, but the execution should be swift and witnessed only by appointed agents of the State. The Pottsville exhibition was a brutal revival of one of the great errors of the past, and will do more harm than good.

SOCIAL SCANDALS.

Perhaps it is a waste of words to moralize over social scandals, but each new domestic upheaval in what is called our best society (meaning our wealthiest) exerts an evil influence so far beyond its source that the impulse to plead for a higher standard of morals among the richest people is hard to resist. It must be admitted that little good has resulted from the most earnest remonstrance in the past. The young lions of Society, in many instances, continue to conduct themselves as if they were unconscious of any public duty incumbent upon them, as if they were unaware that the position they hold, by the grace of the community, carries an influence which, if exerted for evil, menaces the very existence of the social order. Yet this is the plain truth.

The latest victim (or hero) of our divorce laws is supposedly the head of the foremost family in the United States. His family name comes first in the minds of foreigners, nine cases out of ten, when America is mentioned. His wealth is vast, and it is bound up in enterprises of huge importance. He is just as much of a public character as any magistrate or legislator.

His defiance of the moral laws on which our social fabric is founded is therefore a matter of public concern. The disgrace which he may or may not feel is felt keenly by many of his fellow-citizens who have been at pains to comprehend the pressing dangers of the hour. Defiance of the marriage law is, in its effect, as great an evil to the community as defiance of the laws respecting property. The ranks of the discontented swell day by day, and an outcry has been made against the rule of the rich. It is a foolish and wicked outcry. The rich do not rule more than the poor. But it is clearly the duty of wealthy men so to use their share of power as not to justify the malcontents. They should endeavor, more earnestly than ever before, to bear in mind the good old motto noblesse oblige.

HEROES OF MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

Six years after the martyrdom of LAZEAR and CARROLL at Havana, American Army doctors, who submitted themselves to the stings of the Stegomyia mosquito in the successful effort to establish the origin of "yellow jack," the Merchants' Association has persuaded Congress to grant their widows annuities. What their act meant to this country and to the world may be inferred from the following description of havoc once wrought by the fever appearing recently in The New York Medical Journal:

> For centuries the continents, both north and south of the equator, have stood in constant dread of • • • yellow fever. Terrible epidemics have ravaged the coastwise cities in spite of rigid quarantines, for prior to 1902 the nature of its transmission was not understood, and effective quarantine was impossible where the Stegomyia mosquito thrived. Only a few years ago, in the harbor of Santos, thirty-one ships of almost every nationality rode at anchor for months without a living creature aboard, many of their masters and crews having fallen victims to "yellow jack," with little possibility of replacing them.

> Drink and the devil had done for the rest,"
> only in this instance the devil was yellow fever, which was of such frequent occurrence as scarcely to excite surprise. The South American coast was dreaded by the mariner more than the Spanish Main in the days of the pirate bold and the buccaneer, so much so that the Lloyds often refused to underwrite vessels visiting these hotbeds of infection.

Since the brilliant discoveries in sanitary prevention under FINLEY and REED of the Army Medical Corps yellow fever has been rare, and its spread has been checked. The triumph of modern medicine achieved at the cost of a few devoted human, not brute, lives may be pondered by those who lend ear to the generally senseless cry against the principle and practices of vivisection.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

As Editor He Must Be Innocent.

Were MR. FRED TRACY only the editor of The Beaver (Okla.) Herald, we would take chances, and, without waiting for the pronouncement of his innocence by any court, declare him guiltless of the crime for which he has been indicted, which is that of robbing the local Post Office by the use of dynamite. Editors have so many opportunities for committing what may be called the special crimes and misdemeanors of their profession, and within its limits they can go wrong in so many ways and make so many mistakes of fact and opinion, that the robbing of Post Offices is wholly out of their line. Not only do they realize their complete lack of training for enterprises of that kind, but they haven't either the time or energy for them.

Burglary is an art which requires wholehearted and whole-minded devotion from its votaries. They must think less of the material rewards, which, as statistics show, are extremely small when considered as weekly or monthly pay, than of the artist's joy in work well done. As an industry, burglary is wholly unlike journalism, since it is one not of daily grind, but of intermittent exertion, and in it there is an endless alternation of brief excitements and dangers, with long periods of leisured contemplation, usually clouded with red and brown liquors. At the beginning of his career a man might hesitate between the two professions, but once having chosen, he would soon learn that change from one to the other was difficult and the combination of the two impossible. The burglar has no news sense and a fierce disinclination for real work; the editor divides the world into columns and fractions of columns and takes holidays only that he may use them for catching up with his ever-accumulating tasks.

For these and several thousand other reasons would we acquit Mr. TRACY, editor, of robbing the Post Office at Beaver City, but it seems that he is rather less Mr. TRACY, editor, than he is Mr. TRACY, politician. He goes to conventions as a delegate, not as an observer, and he serves on committees instead of contenting himself with telling their members what they should and shouldn't do. His status, therefore, is evidently a confused and puzzling one, and it may be that the Grand Jury which indicted him had excuse for its suspicions. The case must be left for determination in the usual way. If the verdict goes against Mr. TRACY it will not prove that at last a newspaper man has gone wrong in a manner unprecedented, but that one who pretended to be a newspaper man has been revealed as nothing of the kind. So the professional honor is safe.

Surpassing All Competitors.

Whether the best of American automobiles are yet as good as the best of their imported rivals is a question of so much delicacy that we would not venture to answer it one way or the other, preferring the safer position that, while in some ways the foreign machines are superior to ours, in others those of home manufacture have the advantage, and that the purchaser must take many things into consideration before reaching a conclusion as to what he wants for the money he has to spend.

There is no doubt at all, however, that the imports of automobiles are decreasing rapidly in value, though the number of machines brought in during the last three years has remained about the same. On the other hand, the value of the cars made in the United States is advancing with a rush almost equal to that of the cars themselves, on a good road with no constables in sight, for in five years it has risen from $16,000,000 to over $105,500,000. Last year, too, our exports exceeded our imports, and the latter amounted to only one-thirty-fifth of our product. It is evident, therefore, that we have learned to make automobiles that people will buy in large numbers, and the indications are that, even though our manufacturers may never succeed in surpassing the best work of the foreign makers, they will supply practically the whole American market and become serious competitors in the foreign field.

Here there is a rapidly growing demand for machines of a comparatively low price, and that is said to be almost lacking abroad. For the European is not as ready to live up to his income as the American, and the result is that the class which here is becoming the largest purchasers of automobiles there usually prefers the joy of seeing its savings increase in safe investments. Despite all assurances to the contrary, it takes no little money to run even a cheap automobile, and the purchase of one of them is only the beginning of expenditure.

No Reason for Apprehension.

A single week of frequent fogs has been enough to start talk about a change of climate on this coast, and the Captain of one of the American Line boats comes forward with the alarming suggestion that the Gulf Stream is moving in shore. He says that for years he has been finding that great oceanic river running further and further toward the westward, and he foresees a time when it will flow steadily along just outside of Sandy Hook. Then, according to this interesting prophet, New York will be a tropic city—which would have certain charms—but it would also be constantly veiled in fog, which would not be charming at all.

There is no need to worry. The Gulf Stream has its vagaries, and moves in and out as affected by the winds and more mysterious causes, but that its average position is changing at all is not even hinted by any trustworthy observations, while there is every reason for confidence that nothing of the kind is going on. Ocean currents, in spite of their constant slight variations, are about the most permanent things on the globe. The revolutions of the earth combine with the difference of temperature from the equator toward the poles to give them their motion, and the shape of the continents directs their course. These are not things to be lightly changed. New York's clear skies are safe for many a day beyond ours.

Hygienic Prevention.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Dr. L. R. G. Crandon of Boston says that "sickness is going out of fashion. Well-organized, civilized society will not stand for it, and it must go."

The doctor is prophetic rather than accurate, but he is on the right track and has clear vision. The hospitals are still full of patients suffering from preventable diseases, and on every hand are yet to be noted the sad evidences of ignorance and neglect. Contagious diseases, such as diphtheria and scarletina, are, unfortunately, not going out of fashion among the youngsters, and pneumonia counts its victims from all ranks of life in impressive numbers.

There is reason for hope, however. The leaven of education is at work. The people are slowly beginning to realize the vital importance of practicing hygienic habits. The future is full of promise. W. T.

Hens Do Steal Eggs.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A hen can shove an egg with her bill and roll it from one nest to another, or she can lift an egg up about an inch by holding it between her chin and neck. If nests are not made with boards to keep them apart the hens will steal each others' eggs, for a "setter" wants all the eggs she can get hold of, and she will try to cover thirty or forty eggs when thirteen or fifteen are enough for any hen.

REISINGER TO PICK GERMAN ART EXHIBIT

Noted Collector Asked to Serve Because of His Independence of Judgment.

SCOPE OF THE EXHIBITION

Paintings to be Put on View in the Metropolitan Will Mostly Embrace the Modern Period.

Hugo Reisinger, who was asked yesterday morning about the German Art Exhibition to be held next December at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, said he had consented, at the request of the German Government, as well as the German painters, to take charge of the management of the exhibition. Mr. Reisinger is well equipped by his knowledge of art in general and of German art especially to undertake the responsibility thus put upon him, but according to his own statement the Government and the artists chose him as their representative because they desired a man of complete independence of judgment who would not be influenced by preferences for particular schools.

Mr. Reisinger has been stirring up interest in this exhibition in Germany and in this country for the last three years, and is much pleased that now, through the courtesy of the Directors of the Metropolitan Museum, the exhibition can be held under the most favorable circumstances. Seven halls of the Museum building will be given up to it, and it is intended that the collection shown shall include examples of the most important artists of modern Germany and nothing of secondary interest or quality.

There will probably be no representation of the older school of contemporary German art which is already so well known here in the examples in museums and private collections, the chief intention being to show the work of the modern period. There will, however, be exhibited some pictures by the great dead masters of Germany—Boecklin, Menzel, Leibl, and Lenbach. Dr. Bode, the Director General of the Royal Museums in Berlin, has been requested to select the pictures by these masters. The modern men will be chosen by Mr. Reisinger, who will be assisted in his task by Prof. Arthur Kampf, President of the Royal Academy of Berlin, and Prof. Carl Marr of Munich.

Regarding the arrangement here, the co-operation of the Directors of the Metropolitan Museum is promised. The exhibition rooms which the Museum has put at the disposal of the German Government for this exhibition, are regarded as ideally suitable for the purpose, and Mr. Reisinger says that German art will be shown next Winter in this city as it has never been shown before.

Mr. Reisinger is well known here as a collector interested in art of different schools and types, with a fine private collection, embracing French as well as German art, and with a representation of German pictures that is said to be second to none in this country or elsewhere. It includes examples of Boecklin, Menzel, Leibl, Lenbach, von Uhde, Zuegel, Truebner, and Leistokow. Within the last two years Mr. Reisinger has interested himself in American painting, and a number of our best American artists are now represented in his collection, including painters as diverse in method as Whistler, Carl Melchers, and Childe Hassam.

As soon as it became known that Mr. Reisinger was arranging a German exhibition here he was requested to arrange an American exhibition in Germany, and this he has promised to do after the German exhibition here is over. Apparently the various Governments of the world are recognizing increasingly the value of reciprocity in the field of aesthetics as well as in business.

MELLEN ACCEPTS SERVICE.

In Behalf of Defendants in Federal Suit Against the New Haven.

BOSTON, May 26.—President Charles S. Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad to-day accepted service in behalf of all the defendants in the bill in equity brought by the United States in the United States Circuit Court to separate the New Haven Company from its control over trolley lines and the stock now held by it of the Boston & Maine Railroad.

It is understood that President Lucius Tuttle of the Boston & Maine Railroad will accept service in the case to-morrow.

In order to prevent any possible conflict between the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and the Federal courts, representative David Mancovitz of Boston to-day offered in the Massachusetts House of Representatives an order, which was laid over until to-morrow, for the printing of the decision of the Massachusetts Supreme Court in the case of the Attorney General against the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, and the petition of the United States against the New Haven company.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 26.—Rumors in banking circles here of a closer union between the Delaware & Hudson Canal Company and the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company have been lately renewed. It is pointed out here that the authorized stock of the Delaware & Hudson is $55,711,500, of which $42,400,000 have been issued, leaving more than $13,000,000 unissued. By the last annual report of the New Haven Company there were 247,977 shares of that corporation held in the Treasuries of subordinate companies, whose capital stock is all owned by the New Haven.

In the case of both the Delaware & Hudson and the New Haven Company there thus appears to be large amounts of unissued shares which could be used in any transaction looking to a combination of the two companies.

Discriminating Divorce Mill.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

How is it that rich people, like the Vanderbilts, can get a divorce case on and off the docket with a verdict in ninety days, when ordinary people have to wait a year or longer?

THE BUDDING.

I know no greater joy than this—
To watch the Springtime budding of the trees;
The great, gnarled monsters dandle on their knees
Sweet infant blooms, and give them kiss for kiss.
Now seems dull rancor of the earth amiss,
And human carping but an ill-tuned throat;
From every wood is heard the wondrous note—
The conqueror's joy on entering realms of bliss.
The birds sing blithely; where the robins call
The young bush rises, jubilant and proud,
And now and then the rose-tipped petals fall
Like some soft flake from yonder fleecy cloud.
Sweet is the soft allurement of the morn
When once again the tender leaves are born.

BOYS SING FOR WOMEN'S CLUB

And, Possibly, Set a Hot Weather Fashion for Cool Roman Tunics.

If Paris and London women adopt the sheath-like Directoire gowns New York may go in for Roman garments, simple and undoubtedly cool. The College Women's Club had an opportunity to see them yesterday, and they were charming in color, classic in outline, and the wearers looked as cool as cucumbers in a crowded room where everybody else was uncomfortably warm.

A dozen and a half handsome little Italian boys from the Loretto Mission in Elizabeth Street had come up to give the College Women's Club a concert. The boys were all in Roman garments, not the Senatorial toga, but the simple one-piece tunic reaching from neck to knees, drawn in at the waist line with a heavy cord, a silver filet around the head, and sandals on their bare feet. The costumes were of soft pinks, greens, whites, and warm browns. The college women did not make definite arrangements to adopt Roman costume, but looked enviously at the togas.

The club was treating itself to the concert at the last meeting of the season through the courtesy of Father W. H. Walsh of the mission, and Mrs. Russell C. Graves, who made the arrangements. The boys are noted for their musical ability, having sung for Mrs. Iselin and the Countess Leary among others. Mrs. Charles Austin Bates of 100 Riverside Drive, opened her house for the occasion, and the boys gave a long programme of solos and choruses, Father Walsh accompanying on the piano.

Every member of the club turned out for the meeting. Among those receiving were the President of the club, Miss Jennie Pomerane, Mrs. C. A. Bates, Mrs. O. D. M. Baker, Mrs. Russell C. Graves, Mrs. Harry Norton, Marvin, Mrs. Herman Meyer, and Mrs. Henry Smith. Mrs. Daniel Butterfield was among the guests, and among the few men present were Evelyn Baldwin, the arctic explorer, and Anthony Euer.

FOR COPYRIGHT AMENDMENT.

Bill Introduced to Exempt Non-English Books from Manufacturing Clause.

Robert Underwood Johnson, Secretary of the American Copyright League, made this statement yesterday:

"By request of the Council of the American Authors' League, Representative McCall of Massachusetts introduced on May 22 a brief bill to exempt from the operation of the manufacturing clause of the Copyright act of 1891 'the original text of a book of foreign origin in a language or languages other than English.'

"The clause referred to provides that a book in order to obtain the protection of the law must be printed from type set in the United States. This was, of course, for the purpose of providing business for the American typesetter, and in the case of books in English it has answered the purpose of the typographical unions, at whose instance it was included.

"But in the case of books in foreign languages, the number of books copyrighted under the act has been infinitesimal. In seventeen years since the law was passed, the printers have not set on an average one such book a year, so that they have nothing to lose by the proposed modification.

"The ad interim law, passed two years ago, gave the non-British foreigner a year in which to make his bargain with an American publisher without losing his copyright. Under this clause only three books have been manufactured, though many preliminary reservations have been made."

FIFTH AV. CORNER LEASED.

W. J. Salomon to Put a Modern Building on L. P. Morton Site at 42d St.

The property at the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street, owned by Levi P. Morton, former Vice President of the United States and Governor of this State, and at one time the site of his residence, has been leased to Walter J. Salomon for a term of forty-seven years. Charles D. Halsey was the broker in the transaction.

The structure, known as the Seymour Building, is five stories in height, with a Fifth Avenue frontage of 27.5 feet. On Forty-second Street it fronts 133 feet, and at its easterly end has an "L" extending north into the block a distance of 75 feet.

"I shall probably develop the property," said Mr. Salomon yesterday, "in the same manner that I have the old Hotel Bristol, at the northwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street. I feel convinced that it is one of the best business corners in the city, and that its value is constantly increasing. A twelve-story and eighteen-story building will be the immediate neighbors of the Seymour on the north, and on Forty-second Street there is only a small parcel between it and the Transit Building. I have not yet determined just what form the improvements will take, but the group of buildings will certainly be made more up to date than they are at present, and more attractive. I believe that even so good a neighborhood as Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street can be improved."

COMPLAIN OF SUMMER GARDEN

Law and Order League Says Schoolboys Play Truant to Go to It.

Protest against the establishment of a Summer garden in the block between 110th and 111th Streets and Fifth and Lenox Avenues was made yesterday to Commissioner John P. Corrigan of the Bureau of Licenses by representatives of the Harlem Property Owners' Association, the Young Men's Christian Association, and kindred associations.

Dr. Jacob Thorne, President of the Law and Order League, declared that many pupils of Public School 170, at Lenox Avenue and 110th Street, played truant on account of the place.

On the other hand the amusement company presented affidavits from about 100 property owners of the neighborhood in its favor.

MAURETANIA'S FLYING TRIP.

Will Cross and Return Within Two Weeks, Staying Here Only Two Days.

The Cunard liner Mauretania, which sails from Liverpool to-day, four days later than her usual sailing schedule, owing to the repairs to her propeller, will come direct to New York without calling at Queenstown and endeavor to land her passengers here on Monday night.

The Mauretania will do a record round voyage this time, as she will only be in port two days, sailing for Liverpool on Thursday, and arriving there within two weeks of the time she sailed. The Cunard Line officials do not expect to have any difficulty in getting the cargo out, and in putting 6,000 tons of coal on board the Mauretania between Tuesday morning and Wednesday night.

$4,034 FOR FATHER EVERS.

Celebrant of Early Mass for Night-workers Gets Some Big Checks.

Following the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the ordination of the Rev. Luke J. Evers, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, in Duane Street, Father Evers has received a number of handsome presents, some personal gifts, and others for the benefit of the church.

On Monday a number of Father Evers's parishioners gave him a purse containing $1,034 as a personal gift, and yesterday Father Evers received a check for $1,000 from a Jew, and two others, for $1,000 each, from non-Catholics, who in letters accompanying the checks praised highly the institution of the early morning mass for night workers.

Dr. Hunter Gives Normal College Prize

Dr. Thomas Hunter, President Emeritus of the Normal College, has sent to the Trustees of that institution a $1,000 railroad bond, the income amounting to $40 a year, to be used as a prize for the student who makes the highest record for punctual attendance at all classes in the course of the session.

FOUR METHODIST BISHOPS ELECTED

Episcopal General Conference Completes Its Quota of Eight on Eighteenth Ballot.

AMUSEMENT BAN ISSUE

Resolution Asking for Judiciary Commission's Opinion on Constitutionality of Paragraph Is Laid on Table.

BALTIMORE, May 26.—The Rev. Dr. Wilson S. Lewis, President of Morningside College, Sioux City, Iowa; the Rev. Dr. Edwin H. Hughes, President of De Pauw University, Greencastle, Ind., on the fifteenth ballot; Dr. Robert McIntyre of Los Angeles, Cal., on the sixteenth ballot, and the Rev. Frank M. Bristol of Washington, D. C., on the eighteenth ballot were elected Bishops at the Methodist Episcopal General Conference to-day. This completes the quota of eight.

The other four Bishops elected are the Rev. W. F. Anderson of New York, the Rev. W. A. Quayle of Chicago, the Rev. C. W. Smith of Pittsburg, and the Rev. J. L. Nuelsen of Berea, Ohio.

Dr. Henry Wade Rogers, Dean of Yale Law Schools, Chairman of the Commission on Judiciary, presented a resolution calling on that commission for an opinion regarding the constitutionality of the famous Paragraph 248 of the Book of Discipline, which relates to prohibited amusement. Every parliamentary device was resorted to in order to prevent such a reference of the resolution, the fear being that a prejudgment of the question by the commission might affect the main debate on the paragraph.

A vigorous appeal for an open discussion of the matter on its merits when it came before the Conference prevailed, and the resolution was laid on the table.

The Rev. Dr. Thomas H. Lewis, the Rev. Dr. A. L. Reynolds, and J. W. Herring, the special commission appointed by the Methodist Protestant General Conference at Pittsburg last week as a return delegation to respond to the overtures looking toward organic union with the Methodist Episcopal Church, were introduced to-day. They were received with great enthusiasm.

The burden of the response of the Methodist Protestants as given by Dr. Lewis was that that body believed in and were eager for organic union, but because its membership is found both North and South it is most desirous of joining a united Methodism. They desire to make their movement toward union a means toward a larger union of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

The Rev. Dr. Frank Milton Bristol was born in Orleans County, N. Y., Jan. 4, 1851. Since 1897 he has been pastor at the Metropolitan Church in Washington. He was educated at the Northwestern University.

The Rev. Robert McIntyre was born at Selkirk, Scotland, Nov. 20, 1851. He was ordained to the ministry in 1878, and is now preaching at Los Angeles, Cal. He has written several books and is well known for his poems. He is a graduate of Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn.

The Rev. Dr. Edwin Holt Hughes was born at Mourdville, West Va., Dec. 7, 1863. After being graduated from the Ohio Wesleyan University in 1889, he attended the Boston University School of Theology for three years. In 1903 he became the President of De Pauw University at Greencastle, Ind.

The Rev. Dr. Wilson Seeley Lewis is President of Morningside College at Sioux City. He was born in Virginia in 1857 and is a graduate of Cornell College. He was Principal of the Epworth Seminary, a Methodist secondary school at Epworth, Iowa, before he accepted the Presidency of Morningside University.

PRESBYTERIANS ON MISSIONS.

Church Prepares for Work of Evangelization Among the Immigrants.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 26.—Every field of home missionary work was considered to-day by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America. Reports were submitted on the progress of the missionary efforts of the Church among laboring men, immigrants, the Indians, and all other classes at home, which the Church is trying to reach, and a general discussion of the subject of home missions followed.

The board for the first time in ten years reported a debt. It is more than $47,000, but it was explained that this was due to the assumption of the work of the Cumberland Branch of the Church. It was shown that during the last year there had been an increase of about $26,000 in gifts of churches and individuals for home missionary work.

An effort was made to defeat the recommendation of the Home Mission Board that the work of evangelism among the Jews be referred to the Department of Immigration, but after Charles Stelzle, at the head of the Immigration Department, had told the assembly of his interest in the Jews, of his long residence in the Jewish quarter in New York, and of the plans he meant to act upon in behalf of the race the recommendation was unanimously adopted.

JUSTICE McKEAN VERY ILL.

Much Concern Felt for Member of Special Sessions Bench.

Justice John B. McKean of Special Sessions is dangerously ill at his home, 151 East Eighty-third Street.

Justice McKean is 69 years old. In the last few weeks he has been gradually failing, and doctors have been at the house almost constantly in the last eight days.

At his home last night it was said that Justice McKean's condition had improved and that he was resting easily.

$4,607,075 FOR NEW SCHOOLS.

Aldermen Approve an Appropriation to Restore Broadway Grass Plots.

The Aldermen accepted yesterday the official invitation from Corporation Counsel Pendleton to take part in the ceremonies connected with the reception of the body of Gov. Clinton when it reaches this city to-morrow morning. The Aldermen will march in the procession from the Battery to the City Hall behind the Mayor and the city officials.

The grass plots along upper Broadway, which were ruined by the construction of the Subway, are to be restored. The board voted a special $100,000 of revenue bonds to the Park Commissioner for the purpose.

Some weeks ago the Board of Estimate passed an appropriation of $4,607,075 for the provision of new schools. This was approved by the Aldermen yesterday.

Mutual Reserve Lawyer's Fee.

On the petition of William Hepburn Russell and Charles E. Rushmore, receivers for the Mutual Reserve Life Insurance Company, Judge Ward, in the United States Circuit Court, yesterday, authorized the payment of $564.94 to John W. Hinsdale for legal services in the receivership litigation in the North Carolina State courts. The receivers in their petition say that North Carolina has for years been a hotbed for litigation against the company, and that the State courts have generally decided against the company. Hinsdale's services had to do in part with this litigation.

PRAISE FOR IRELAND AT DINNER TO LOGUE

Loyalty of Irish Catholics to Their Church and Home Extolled by All the Speakers.

CARDINAL SAYS HE LIKES US

Always Had Heard This Was a Great Nation and Now He Knows It, He Declared.

Cardinal Logue was entertained at dinner last night by Frederick Townsend Martin at the Hotel Plaza. There were forty-four guests in addition to the Cardinal, including some of the most prominent men in the city.

The dinner was served at an oval table in the north ballroom, the centre of which was arranged in the form of a sunken garden, with palms and flowers of all descriptions. From the boxes back of the seats of Mr. Martin, Cardinal Logue, who sat at his right, and Archbishop Farley, who sat at his left, two large American and British flags hung.

After the feast had been cleared away there was speechmaking, the keynote of which was the greatness of the Irish race and the honor the Cardinal had done New York in visiting it. Mr. Martin, after welcoming the Cardinal, said this of his impressions of the recent Catholic celebration:

To the lay mind, the strength and splendor of your Church were manifested in no ordinary way by that wonderful parade of a few Saturdays ago, which I, with as many of my fellow-citizens, watched with solemn interest. Living in this city as I do, it was a delight to see that vast army of faithful men parading in Fifth Avenue, that thoroughfare which the critics of evil omen would have you believe is the stalking ground of greed and avarice, and self-seeking and hypocrisy. It was a blessing and an ennobling sight to see those stanch and brave members of a giant Church marching from the clubs and restaurants and houses of those who represent the wealth and the stability of a metropolis.

A toast was then drunk to Cardinal Logue, everybody standing.

In reply the Cardinal said in part:

I had always heard that America was a great country and the American people a great people. For this reason it has given me great pleasure to visit you both, and I must say that I have not been disappointed. Every Irishman has a great love for this great Republic. When oppression and trouble came in the old country the doors of America were thrown wide open to him and he found here home, liberty, and happiness. I wish you all success and happiness, and hope that the Stars and Stripes will forever wave over a prosperous and contented people.

Joseph H. Choate responded to the toast, "The American Roman Catholic Jubilee and Its Standard, the American Flag."

"The recent celebration was remarkable in the demonstration that accompanied it," said he. "I did not have the pleasure to witness the interior phases of it, but I was—yes, startled by the exterior evidences of the decorations. They made it, not a church, but a National celebration.

"Only one medium was employed in the decorations—the American Flag, which every Irishman honors and to whose shelter he owes so much. As I went about the city I found that every loyal Catholic had used only the American flag to decorate his home."

Gen. Horace Porter, speaking to the toast, "What the Irishman Did as a Soldier in Our Late War," said:

"He was a grand type of soldier, as he came to battle face clean-shaven, freshly baptized and newly christened, dudeen in the corner of his mouth, and ready for any type of massacre from squirrel hunting to manslaughter in the first degree.

President Nicholas Murray Butler responded to the toast "Education." He said in part:

"A very extraordinary thing is going on in this city. Every Sunday night, and I might say every night, there are at least a dozen places in this city where what is called Socialism is taught systematically by trained teachers to the young. Nine times out of ten both the teachers and the taught have been transplanted here from another sphere and environment. Socialism is fundamentally a foreign and not an American movement. The only weapon with which we can combat this thing is a thorough education of these people in what the great principles of this Government stand for."

Gen. Frederick Dent Grant, talking on the toast, "The American Army," said: "I can conceive of no reason why I have been called upon, unless it is to apologize for the existence of an army 1908 years after the Prince of Peace came into the world. And especially for the existence of one in the United States. But the Good Book tells us that there was rebellion in Heaven, and that Satan and his followers were thrown out. And so in America, which is almost Heaven, we maintain an army in case of trouble."

The guests at the dinner included Cardinal Logue, Archbishop Farley, Mgr. Lavelle, the Bishop of Queenstown, Mr. Choate, Gen. Grant, President Butler, Paul Morton, Gen. Porter, Harold Brown, John D. Crimmins, Thomas Kelley, Harry S. Black, George Henry Warren, Frederick S. Pendleton, Mr. Williams, Burrall Hoffman, John Jacob Astor, O. H. P. Belmont, E. J. Berwind, Stuyvesant Fish, J. D. Emmett, Joseph Auerbach, Police Commissioner Bingham, Charles B. Alexander, John W. Gates, Charles Ramn Kennedy, Brayton Ives, De Lancey Nicoll, Julian T. Davies, Howard T. Martin, Frederick T. Martin, Melville E. Stone, William A. Tucker, Justice Dowling, Lyman Hart, St. Clair McKelway, Chester S. Lord, Arthur Brisbane, Ralph Pulitzer, Rollo Ogden, Wayne MacVeagh, and Perry Belmont.

CARDINAL AT GIRLS' SCHOOL.

Blesses Each of the Graduates at St. Angela's.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, May 26.—Cardinal Logue attended the commencement today of the women's college of St. Angela, maintained by the Ursuline Order here, and blessed each of the girl graduates, who passed before him, knelt, and kissed his ring. The Cardinal drove to the college in an automobile with Archbishop Farley, arriving just as the procession of graduates was forming to march to the gymnasium.

The Rev. Joseph P. McLoughlin, Vice President of the college, welcomed the prelate, and he immediately took his place to watch the graduation exercises. After these were over the Cardinal made an address to the graduates.

Miss Brinkerhoff to Wed E. H. Tatum.

Miss Nanny Waite Brinkerhoff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fuller Brinkerhoff of West Eighty-sixth Street, will be married to Edward Hubbert Tatum, also of this city, on the evening of June 3. Owing to mourning in the family of Mr. Tatum the wedding will be a very quiet one. Mr. Tatum is a graduate of Yale, class of 1900, and of the Columbia Law School. He is a member of Phi Gamma Delta, the Larchmont Yacht Club, and the Yale Club.

MISS ELIZABETH OLIVER WEDS

Daughter of Assistant Secretary of War Bride of Francis Stevens.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—A wedding, marked by simplicity, yet with the President and Mrs. Roosevelt witnessing the ceremony and remaining for the wedding breakfast, took place at noon to-day at the home of the Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. Oliver, when their eldest daughter, Miss Elizabeth Shaw Oliver, became the bride of Francis Stevens of New York.

WORK HORSE PARADE PLANS ALL MADE

1,400 Horses and 873 Wagons Will Be in Line Next Saturday.

MANY PRIZES OFFERED

Judges Will Be Stationed in the Side Streets and Will Telephone Their Awards to the Grand Stand.

Fourteen hundred and one horses and 873 wagons have been entered for the work horse parade, which will take place next Saturday. It will be the second of its kind held in the city.

The parade is managed by the Team Owners' Association of 377 Broadway, and the Woman's Auxiliary of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The parade will start at the Washington Arch and go to Madison Square, where the grand stand will be erected. Eighty judges will be stationed in the side streets, and their verdicts will be forwarded to the grand stand, where the prizes will be awarded. There will be a-plenty of these, for some thirty classes are entered, and each division will have its blue, red, and yellow ribbons, and for some a goodly number of cash prizes will be added.

The object of this parade, like the one of last year, is to encourage humane treatment and skillful handling of horses by their drivers. The place of honor, just behind the band, will be held by Redmond P. Kerresy on Pompey, the former pride of the Police Department for the sixteen years in which Pompey was on the force. At the end of that time, by the department regulations, Pompey had passed the age limit and was to be disposed of. But Kerresy, who had ridden Pompey for sixteen years, bought his old friend at the auction sale, and four months later the two retired to a farm at Rye, N. Y. Pompey is now 26 years old, but in spite of his age he still maintains his youthful fondness for a band.

Behind this veteran of the service will come the fifty-four horses and riders entered from the Police Department. The city patrol and supply wagons will also be represented, even down to the ambulances from Bellevue and Allied Hospitals, but the fire horses will not join in. After the city exhibit will come the other classes: Bakers, butchers, coal, contractors, grocers, ice, delivery wagons, manufacturers, marketmen, and finally two, three, and four horse trucks. Not to be exclusive, the workhorse parade will include a good-sized entry of mules, headed by "Lonely," owned by Hunter, Trimm & Co., and ending with one three-mule team, Bob, Jerry, and Johnny.

Special Honors for Veteran Drivers.

The most remarkable division will be the veteran drivers, as they are called. These are teamsters who have spent more than twenty years with one employer, and there are seventy-two of them, with terms of service ranging from the minimum of twenty to a maximum of forty-nine years. This oldest veteran is John O'Mara, who started driving in 1859 for A. T. Stewart, and when the firm passed into the hands of John Wanamaker still held his position and expects to keep on holding it. Next to O'Mara comes William Jennings, who has driven for the Wendell & Evans Company for forty-six years. Joseph Maunle has been truckman for forty-one years with John Moriarty, and John Maguire has handled horses for the New York Transfer Company for forty years.

The other sixty-eight veterans have terms of service from thirty-seven years down to twenty. Twenty-five, twenty, fifteen, ten, and five dollar prizes in gold will be given to the five old teamsters who still handle the reins with the most skill, and $2.50 in gold will be distributed to each one of the other sixty-seven veterans. In fact, said Thomas McCarthy, all the cash prizes will be made in gold, so far as the banks are willing to give it out, for the Parade Association is having some difficulty in obtaining gold in exchange for bills.

Silver Cup for Collier.

In a class by himself is Daniel G. Collier, who for fifty-four years has been a teamster at the Appraiser's Stores, but, as he owns his horses, he cannot qualify as a veteran driver. For this reason the Woman's Auxiliary, through the generosity of Mrs. James Speyer, has provided a silver cup for Mr. Collier, who has been a model owner and driver for the fifty-four years.

Quite as interesting is the class of veteran horses. These must have seen service of ten years in this city, and there are 120 entries in this division. The oldest horse is one belonging to John Farrell of Nineth Avenue, which is 34 years old, has seen service for twenty-two years, and because of careful treatment is still able to do a good day's work. There are five more horses of nearly equal age in the city, whose owners, however, refused to enter them.

A special cup is offered for the four-horse team winning for any three years. The Elm Court Cup is offered for drivers of over ten years' service who have had their present horses for at least three years. Special awards will be made to any team qualifying for both the veteran driver and old horse division. Ten dollar prizes contributed by Miss E. Mabel Clark, Miss Emily D. Jacks, Mrs. G. B. Bethune, Miss Gertrude McCarthy, Miss Frances Goldberg, and the Masters Valentine and Noel Macy will go to horses whose particularly sleek appearance suggests careful handling. The total expense of the parade, estimated at between $5,000 and $6,500, will be defrayed by Mrs. James Speyer, who financed last year's exhibition.

The eighty judges who will decide on the merits of the competing grocers' wagon and moving van horses will include many well-known New Yorkers, who are interested in furthering humane treatment of horses. Among the eighty are Gordon Knox Bell, Vice President of the S. P. C. A.; Henry Bergh, William Adams, J. J. Archbold, John D. Crimmins, Ernestus Gulick, William De Groot, John Iselin, Samuel Isham, Isaac Lawrence, Medwin Leale, Cortlandt Van Rensselaer, Francis Ward, and George Whiteside.

MAXINE ELLIOTT SWINGS PICK

Breaks Ground for New Theatre Which Is to Bear Her Name.

Maxine Elliott broke the first ground yesterday afternoon for the new Maxine Elliott Theatre in West Thirty-ninth Street, which she is to manage in connection with the Shuberts. Some 300 persons were present to see her give a demonstration of dramatic art as motive power for the shovel and the pick, and all declared that the actress "did herself proud."

When the theatre is complete and Miss Elliott is installed as its manager, she will be the first woman in New York since the days of Laura Keene to have a theatre bearing her own name and under her own direction.

It was just after 2 o'clock when Miss Elliott, in a blue gown, emerged from the Shubert offices at Broadway and Thirty-ninth Street, accompanied by her friend, Mrs. P. T. Chadbourne, the Messrs. Shubert, and various members of the Shubert executive staff. This little group was joined by several workmen, and all went down toward Sixth Avenue, to the plot where the new theatre is to be erected. The theatrical folk who happened to be around immediately recognized Miss Elliott, and the news that she was actually going to do a little preliminary farming on her own playhouse lot spread until the original group became such a crowd that three or four policemen were required to keep onlookers back when it was time for the solemn rites to begin.

When the moment arrived Miss Elliott planted her foot on the spade handed to her, and, bearing her full weight on the iron, forced it into the ground, and removed the first shovelful of earth in workmanlike style; then, as if mere shoveling were not enough to show her interest and proprietary good-will, she took up a pick, and, swinging it over her head, brought it down with sufficient dexterity to loosen several small rocks in the ground. This was hailed with decided approval.

The Maxine Elliott Theatre will be opened in January by Miss Elliott herself in a new Clyde Fitch play. She will always make her New York appearances at the house. When she is not occupying the stage other Shubert feminine stars, including Alla Nazimova, Julia Marlowe, and Mary Mannering, will play their engagements there. The theatre is to seat about 1,000. The architects are Marshall & Fox of Chicago, who have built many playhouses in other cities.

Miss Elliott yesterday emphasized the comfort that the theatre will offer to patrons, with its spacious seats and wide aisles. She said she had already interested herself in selecting draperies and studying color schemes.

TIMES SQ. HAS A MILKMAID.

She Was Chosen Yesterday to Milk the Roof Garden Cow.

They chose a milkmaid at Hammerstein's yesterday to milk the Roof Garden cow. A cow is one of the standard rural features of Hammerstein's Roof Garden. This year there are to be accessories. William Hammerstein, P. J. Francis, and Aaron Kessler, took the applicants for the milkmaid job to visit the cow one at a time and demanded practical demonstrations of milkmaid proficiency.

The committee appeared to enjoy it, and there is no telling how long the contest might have lasted if it had not been for the cow. After six or eight girls had each had a try the cow began to object. Prompt action was imperative, and the very next applicant was declared victor.

The milkmaid of Forty-second Street this Summer will be Ada Baxter of Haverstraw. She is willing to wear overalls if the Health Department requires it.

The Chicago company of "Girls" will open to-night at Atlantic City, playing an engagement of two nights at the Apollo Theatre. On Friday afternoon the company will return to New York to give a special matinee at Daly's.

The Newton boy goes in to throw; St. Louis bats him high and low—and bats him likewise fast and slow—good evening, Doctor Newton.

With this feeling foreword to yesterday's great historical romance at American League Park, we may skip along, more or less merrily to the plot of the piece. Cleveland, an influential pretender, has planned, with the aid of the allies from St. Louis, to usurp the temporary throne from the rightful occupant, King Yankee. While the Missourians harass the administration party, the Don Carlos of the diamond is to cut off any assistance from the Washingtonians, a force friendly to the Yanks. It looks for a time as if this evil alliance would prevail, for the St. Louis onslaught nearly succeeds. Toward the shades of night the leaders rally and send out their medicine man, Newton, to gain the day. Newton's lance, however, is broken at the first skirmish, and the St. Louis allies retire triumphant. All would be lost were it not that Washington averts the catastrophe by chastising the Cleveland claimant.

And so New York still leads the American League to-day, though the game at the grounds on the Hudson hill is in no wise responsible for the retention.

A run in the fourth ties up the score, and in the wrong half of the fifth two runs put the Jimmy McAleer people in the king row. And in this inning the St. Louis mob used a jimmy to force in said runs, the James being none other than the well-remembered Master Williams, not long since filling a Highland suit with credit and distinction. On his first appearance at bat, a fan in a lawn box walked up to the plate and gave Master Williams a Token. "Thanks, gents; thanks." Another fan in the stand gave the returned one good advice, which, if followed, would have unquestionably brought in a home run. Everybody gave him something. Even Pitcher Hogg, to emphasize the misfits of nomenclature, gave up, his offering being a lovely round ball directly to the second baseman's bat. This Mr. Williams accepted, the acknowledgment taking the form of a base hit.

And in the fifth it was Williams's sizzling hit along the third base line that scored Spencer and Hoffman.

It looked, in the New York sixth, as though we might get something, for the luck was ours. After Chase had gone out at first Stahl made a base, and Conroy, aided by a fortunate, unexpected bound of the ball, followed to first. Then Ball walked, and the bases were full, with only one out. Loud acclaim from the attendant 10,000. Kleinow, however, must fly and poor Hogg go out on strikes.

So we postpone our grand-stand play till the ninth, St. Louis in the meantime not having gathered. And in this fateful period Ball hits so hard Ferris cannot hold it, and our agile young shortstop goes to first. Kleinow hits to Williams, and the ex-Yank throws low to second, covered by Wallace, and when the excitement calms down a bit you can see that Ball is on third and Kleinow on second. This is the time for deeds, and Lake, going in to bat for Hogg, sacrifices, and in trots Ball. And Niles hits to short, scoring Kleinow and tying the score. More noise and a harmful necessary tenth inning.

Little more remains to be told, as the story books say. Doc Newton, he pitched. He walked one man and hit another into a free base, and of the others who were up, each man, save Pitcher Graham, hit him, one way or another, so that two runs were made, and the game lost to our little playmates of the Highland. Old Dr. Newton puts up a bitter subscription.

CHICAGO, May 26.—With a patched-up team the Giants trimmed the Cubs to-day by the score of 7 to 4. Bridwell is confined to bed with malaria; Bresnahan is still suffering from the effects of a nasty blow on the wrist, received yesterday; Seymour is limping badly, and Ames is still on the hospital list. Despite this handicap the Giants managed to pull out a victory, but it required a Garrison finish to do it.

Home runs played a prominent part in to-day's game. Three players made a circuit of bases on long hits, two of which were made by visiting batsmen, and materially contributed to the result of the contest. With Mathewson on the ragged edge and Taylor and McGinnity below championship form, McGraw tried his recruit, Crandall. The experiment proved successful, as the champions were held down to eight hits, while the Giants found Reulbach an easy proposition, touching him up for twelve safe smashes.

By way of an introduction the Cubs hit Crandall hard, and indications pointed to another victory for the locals, but after allowing the champions three runs in the first two innings Crandall settled down and only one tally was registered against him in the remaining seven innings. Meanwhile the visiting batters connected with Reulbach's delivery, and after the third inning, when they took the lead, they kept up their good stick work and finished three runs to the good. Reulbach was wild at times and lost control of the ball, sending no less than four of the Giants to first through being hit by pitched balls. The score:

Canadian Horse, Backed Down from a Long Price, Easily Beats Jack Atkin.

MELISANDE WINS A STAKE

J. R. Keene's Filly Captures Laureate from High Private—Five Belmont Park Choices Are Beaten.

The two biggest and most successful stables of the American turf won half the programme, including one of two stakes, decided at Belmont Park yesterday, but public opinion for once overlooked the winners sent out under the Whitney and Keene colors, and after five popular favorites had been beaten in sequence, it remained for a maiden from an obsoure stable to score the only success of the day for the general public. Rosoben and Jack Atkin, rivals for the sprinting championship, were among the beaten favorites, both carrying high weights and finishing second, Jack Atkin behind tourenne in the race for the Cosmopolitan Handicap, and Roseben behind Royal Tourist in a sprint handicap. Jack Atkin's effort was by far the more impressive, as in the Cosmopolitan, the most valuable event of the card, the Missouri colt tried to concede twenty-nine pounds to the Canadian owned Tourenne, a horse of the same age, and that, too, over a distance greater than Jack Atkin ever has proved a liking for.

For the Laureate Stakes, five furlongs for two-year-olds, the Forsythe Stable scratched out Bon Homme and added High Private. High Private was made a warm favorite in a field of seven runners, with Rossfenton and Statesman the next best backed horses. High Private swerved across the track immediately after the start, and though he ran the best horse, in spite of impeding himself as well as other horses by the crooked course he took, was beaten in a sharply fought finish by James R. Keene's filly Melisande, which, running on the outer rail all the way, was first by hips in front of High Private, with Statesman close up, third. The summaries:

Colin and Celt in Fast Trials.

James R. Keene's two great three-year-old colts, the unbeaten Colin and the stake winner Celt, were worked in fast trials yesterday morning at the Sheepshead Bay race course, Colin in preparation for the $25,000 Belmont Stakes, to be run Saturday at Belmont Park, and Celt for the $25,000 Brooklyn Handicap, to be run at the Gravenend course next Monday. Colin was sent a mile and a half as a tuning-up for the mile and three-eighths Belmont, and worked in fine style, covering the first mile in 1:42 2-5 and finishing out the mile and a half in 2:37 2-5. Celt was sent the distance of the Brooklyn Handicap, a mile and a quarter, and turned the first mile in 1:40 1-5 and the full distance in 2:07 2-5.

Belmonts to See English Derby.

August Belmont, Chairman of the Jockey Club and National Steeplechase and Hunt Association, and Perry Belmont, President of the Turf and Field Club, will sail to-day on the steamship Lusitania for England to see the running of the English Derby at the Epsom course next Wednesday. August Belmont's colt, Norman III., winner of the Two Thousand Guineas, will be a starter for the Derby, and now is one of the favorites for the race, in which another American turfman, William K. Vanderbilt, will be represented by the French-bred colt Seasick II. Perry Belmont will remain abroad some time after the running of the Derby, as he has horses entered for the Grand Prix de Paris, to be run about two weeks after the Derby, in Paris.

WRESTLERS FOR OLYMPIC.

Lee Talbott Defeats Smith in Heavyweight Division.

Admirers of amateur wrestling did not turn out very strong to witness the final American tryouts for the selection of wrestlers to compete at the Olympic games in London in July at Savage's Institute, Fifty-ninth Street and Eighth Avenue, last night, but in spite of the limited attendance the contests were unusually spirited and showed that the principals had kept themselves up to the highest notch for the bouts. The results produced two winners for the National Turn Verein of New York—George H. Mehnert, the 115-pound National champion in the 119-pound class, and John H. King, Jr., in the 147-pound class. George S. Dale of Yale University, the 135-pound National champion, captured the 135-pound class, while in the one bout for middleweights, Herman Gerig of the German-American Athletic Club, defeated his clubmate, Joseph Sentee, very handily in 1 minute and 45 seconds.

The greatest interest centred in the only bout between heavyweights, in which Lee J. Talbott, the stalwart freshman of Cornell University, and a member of the Irish-American A. C. of this city, clashed with G. W. Smith of the German-American A. C. Talbott last night had his first real test as a mat artist, and acquitted himself creditably. He was the upper man for most of the time, and only for Smith's leg holds the Cornell student would have won sooner.

Previous to the bouts the Track and Field Championship Committee of the Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U., with Messrs. Obertubessing, Weeks, Nevins, Hughes, and Brady in attendance, decided to hold the junior championship at Travers Island on July 11. An added attraction will be a one-mile walk. The Registration Committee of the Metropolitan Association also held a meeting, at which C. D. Trubenbach of the New York A. C., who was suspended for throttling a Chicago A. C. man in the water polo game in the N. Y. A. C. tank a short time ago, was reinstated.

MISS MIX LEADING GOLFER.

Beats Miss Bishop for Best Score in Women's Championship.

Miss Julia R. Mix of the Englewood Golf Club, who was the runner-up for the women's local championship last year, won the medal yesterday for the lowest score in the qualifying round which marked the opening of the annual championship tournament of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association on the links of the Essex County Country Club at Orange, N. J. The eighteen holes have a playing length of 5,800 yards, and Miss Mix, by very steady and occasionally brilliant golf, made the course in 93 strokes. Next to her, with 97, was Miss Georgianna Bishop of the Brooklawn Club, Bridgeport, Conn., and who is the present title holder.

Twenty-four women, including most of the best golfers in the local clubs, assembled on the links for the contest, and those making the eight lowest scores will continue at match play. Only four scores were under 100, the other two being those of Mrs. E. F. Sanford and Mrs. F. Fellowes Morgan, each doing 98. The course was in good condition, and the start was watched by a large gallery. The eight who qualified for the championship were:

GAW SURPRISES GOLFERS.

American Loses After Winning 22-Hole Match in British Championship.

Special to The New York Times.

LONDON, May 26.—H. L. Gaw, the Philadelphia golfer and the best American contestant in the British amateur championship, gave a most remarkable exhibition of golf in the second day's play today on the Sandwich links. In the morning round he beat Gordon Simpson on the twenty-second green, greatly to the surprise of the local players, for Simpson is rated as among the leaders of the St. Andrew's golfers. Notwithstanding his superb match in the morning, Gaw was defeated in the third round in the afternoon by A. V. Hambro.

Gaw's match with Simpson was one of the sensations of the tournament. The American showed brilliant golf from the start, making the first nine holes in thirty-four strokes and standing two up. Simpson squared the match on the eleventh green. Gaw's putting was the most brilliant feature of his match. He ran down a thirty-foot put on the twelfth hole and on the next green made a ten-foot put. Simpson squared the game again on the sixteenth hole. Gaw holed another long put for a half on the seventeenth, and, the home hole being halved, the match ended even. Playing the nineteenth, Gaw seemed beaten, for Simpson had the better position on the green, but a grand thirty-yard put saved the American, the hole being halved. The next two holes were halved, but accurate putting gave Gaw the twenty-second hole and the match. Gaw's putting was considered by many of the golfers superior to that shown by Travis when the latter played here.

McGOVERN FIGHTS A DRAW.

Former Champion Breaks Even with Robson in Six-Round Bout.

Unless Terry McGovern can do better than he did last night in a six-round bout with Spike Robson of England at the National Athletic Club, he will never regain his laurels. The bout, which was expected to put the former champion back in the position he once occupied in the pugilistic ranks, was a disappointment. The Britisher failed to live up to his reputation, and, according to the opinion of the majority of the spectators, fought "under raps," while McGovern was unable to locate the elusive Englishman. For four rounds the fighters did no execution. Both seemed to be feeling out the other, and despite the many opportunities neither atempted to take advantage of them.

In the fifth round Robson cut loose and drove McGovern all over the ring. He worked his left jab, and occasionally swung his right, which worried McGovern. The latter went to his corner worried. The sixth round found McGovern the aggressor, but his swings were invariably wild and his judgment poor. In spite of these drawbacks he evened up the preceding round, and succeeded in making the bout a draw.

The bout demonstrated two things: First, that McGovern is not the fighter that he was, and probably never again will be, and secondly, Robson is an overestimated fighter, unless he is capable of doing better work in the ring than that which he showed against McGovern.

Racing Board Declares Intention to Disqualify Unsanctioned Racers.

A. C. A. MEETING POSTPONED

Board of Governors Will Act on the Proposed Second International Race This Afternoon.

The Racing Board of the American Automobile Association stood to its guns at the special meeting held yesterday at the association headquarters, and made plain its position with respect to the French and British protests against the Vanderbilt Cup rule. It also declared its intention of enforcing its regulations with respect to sanctions to be granted for racing events and to disqualify manufacturers and drivers competing in unsanctioned events. It sprung a surprise in a statement from the Savannah Automobile Club, which disclaimed having committed itself to the holding of the projected international race in opposition to the Vanderbilt Cup race, and indicated clearly that it felt itself strong enough to cope with the situation which has developed through the rivalry of the Automobile Club and the American Association, which threatens to develop into a war to the knife between them.

The Automobile Club of America was expected to pass upon the suggested second international race at a meeting of the Board of Governors scheduled for yesterday afternoon. Judge Gary, however, was unable to attend and the board meeting was postponed until this afternoon. It is expected the matter will be acted upon at that time. The meeting was the largest ever held in the history of the association and each action taken was unanimous.

The protests of the French and British associations were

BURLINGTON BONDS ALL SNAPPED UP

The $16,000,000 of New Fours Sold at Once by Morgan & Co. at the Opening of Business.

SURPRISE TO STOCKHOLDERS

Directors, Without Consulting Them, Voted for $300,000,000 Issue for Refunding and Other Purposes.

The $16,000,000 Chicago, Burlington & Quincy 4 per cent. fifty-year bonds, part of an authorized issue of $300,000,000 offered by J. P. Morgan & Co., were all sold at the opening of business yesterday, and the bonds during the day sold at 98, which was 2½ points above the subscription price.

Wall Street's interest in the bonds centred in the fact that an issue of this size, the largest ever authorized by a railroad in this country; had been put through without any public notice of the matter, and even without consulting the Burlington stockholders. This $300,000,000 issue, it was learned yesterday, was authorized last week by the Directors of the Burlington during the recent stay of James J. Hill in this city.

It was explained by an official of the road that under the terms of the Burlington's charter the stockholders need not be consulted in reference to an issue of bonds, no matter how large it may be. He added that the charters of most companies enabled the Directors to authorize bond issues without referring the matter to the stockholders. It was recalled in Wall Street, however, that the Union Pacific, which recently authorized a $100,000,000 bond issue, did so at a special stockholders' meeting; that the Delaware & Hudson called a special meeting to authorize its new $50,000,000 bond issue, and that in practically every recent case of a railroad bond issue the stockholders were called upon to approve it.

In the case of the Burlington, the result of any stockholders' vote is determined by the management of the road, for practically all the stock is owned by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific. The fact, however, that such an issue was put through without any public notice or any intimation of the matter to the stockholders, aroused much interest.

In a letter addressed to J. P. Morgan & Co. by President Harris of the Burlington further details of the new bond issue were made public. President Harris says:

This mortgage is now a first lien on about 3,070 miles of completed road, and on the retirement of the outstanding bonds enumerated in the mortgage will become a first lien on the entire railroad mileage enumerated in the mortgage, aggregating 8,686 miles.

Of the $300,000,000 bonds secured by the mortgage, $175,000,000 are reserved for the special purpose of retiring all outstanding bonds of the company of previous issues, at this date aggregating $167,565,000, of which $37,438,300 are held in various sinking funds, $2,000,000 are issuable to meet expenses of retiring said prior bonds, $45,000,000 are to be issued for reimbursing the treasury of the company for outlays already made by it for betterments of and additions to the property covered by the mortgage, and the remaining $78,000,000 are issuable only for additions, improvements, and betterments of and to the mortgaged property, which, when acquired, must be placed under the lien of the mortgage, thereby increasing the mortgaged property by the full amount of such additions.

The Central Trust Company of New York and Oliver M. Spencer are the Trustees of the new mortgage.

TO AUCTION HEINZE STOCK.

Worth $90,000 When Austrian Bank Took It—Only $25,000 Now.

An echo of the financial difficulties of the Heinze brothers, which forced them to borrow money abroad as well as in this country before the smash of last October, is found in the advertised sale at auction of 1,000 shares of United Copper preferred stock, pledged by Otto C. Heinze personally with the Boehmische Escompte Bank of Prague.

The advertisement simply states that the bank holds a lien against the stock, which it calls the personal property of Otto C. Heinze, and advertises it to be sold at auction on June 2 at 43 Liberty Street.

The New York agents of the Prague institution are Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne of 15 Liberty Street. Neither the New York agents nor their counsel would discuss the action of their foreign clients yesterday, nor tell the amount of the loan. Before the smash 1,000 shares of United Copper preferred had a market value of about $90,000. The value of the block of stock at current quotations for the preferred is about $25,000.

TO OFFSET FISH CAMPAIGN.

Harahan Going Abroad to Get In Touch with Illinois Central Foreign Holders.

President Harahan sails for Europe today on a trip which, according to yesterday's reports, is intended at least in part to bring about friendlier relations between the Illinois Central management and some of the foreign stockholders, among whom an anti-Harriman campaign was waged by the Fish forces during the contest over the last annual election.

It was pointed out yesterday that President Harahan already has had a conference with a group of New England stockholders, who had upheld Mr. Fish during this contest, and that as a result these stockholders at the recent special meeting approved the management's plans for the absorption of several subsidiary companies and for the issuance of $30,000,000 additional stock.

It was suggested that President Harahan will have similar conferences with some of the foreign shareholders.

THE COFFEE MARKET.

Coffee was very quiet yesterday, sales being reported of only 8,250 bags. The market opened unchanged to 5 points higher, and closed quiet on that basis.

Hamburg closed ¼ pfennig up and Havre at a net advance of ¼ franc. The Brazilian market also advanced slightly. Receipts were moderate at Brazilian points, reaching 18,000 bags at the two ports against 50,000 last year and 16,000 two years ago.

Spot coffee was steady at 6⅝c for Rio No. 7. The range of contract prices was as follows:

Pennsylvania Railroad property receipts for consolidated mortgage 40-year per cent. bonds, due 1948, have been admitted to quotation in the unlisted department of the Stock Exchange, and are to be dealt in flat, only receipts for dollar bonds to be a delivery.

The Buffalo & Susquehanna Iron Company is reducing its funded debt by the redemption at $100,000 of its first mortgage 5 per cent. bonds, Nos. 101 to 200, inclusive, the necessary funds being taken from surplus earnings. Last year at this time the company redeemed a like amount of the same issue.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Japanese Sake Held Dutiable at 50 Per Cent. as "Still Wine."

After several years of litigation, the Government in a decision by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at San Francisco has won its contention that Japanese sake is dutiable under the Dingley tariff by similitude to still wine. The case just decided favorably to the contention of the Government for duty at the rate of 50 cents per gallon marks the third attempt on the part of the Treasury Department to collect a 50 per cent. duty on the beverage.

Komada & Co. figure in the case as the importers, their claim being that the product should be admitted to duty at the rate of 20 per cent. ad valorem under the tariff provision for "non-enumerated manufactured articles." Both in the present litigation and in previous proceedings, the importers have almost uniformly been successful. In the present case, however, Judge De Haven upholds the contention of the Government levying the high duty. He states that much evidence submitted in previous cases was not available when the issue was before the board and the Federal Courts. On this account, the court is constrained to reverse the lower court and the General Board and find the sake dutiable at 50 cents per gallon.

"We think," says the court, "there is also a similitude in use between sake and still wine, both being drunk for purposes of exhilaration, and both are capable of producing intoxication."

In conclusion, the court finds in favor of the higher duty based upon the opinions of merchants as well as general evidence.

Nickel Company Profits Smaller.

The annual report of the International Nickel Company for the year ended March 31 shows net earnings of $2,434,052, a falling off of $418,320. The net income was $2,285,369, a decrease of $404,094. Total charges increased by $60,683, to $960,627, leaving a balance for dividends of $1,324,742, which was $464,757 less than in the previous year. The profit and loss surplus at the end of the year was $2,216,799, an increase of $461,182.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Active and Weak — Call Money Rates, 1½@1¾ Per Cent.

SEVERE DECLINES AT CLOSE

Turbulent Day In Grain Markets, Where Prices Rush Up—Foreign Exchange Market Strong.

While the severe declines in stocks in the last few minutes of trading in yesterday's Stock Exchange session appeared to be due almost exclusively to urgent offerings by a small group of houses, which has been intimately associated with the interests credited with the management of the recent long forward movement, and bore therefore a more or less artificial aspect, the movement was interesting as showing the possibility of a change of attitude on the part of these very interests. Whether if this is true it has come about as a result of the New Haven's suit, of the less favorable crop advices which have been reaching Wall Street of late, or from any one of the number of other matters of equal moment at this time is yet to be disclosed. It is certain, however, that the financial community as a whole yesterday was made somewhat uncomfortable by the day's news from the crop territory, particularly when this was read in connection with the course of prices on grain markets. There seems to be little question now, in view of the detailed reports coming to hand from the West and Southwest, that a great deal of damage has been wrought to both property and crops by floods and rainfalls, estimates placing the crop damage from this source in Texas at $8,000,000 and in Oklahoma at $2,000,000. Perhaps the view of grain markets was distorted by the speculation under way in both wheat and corn, but certainly such advances as an extreme 5 points in corn and 3 points in wheat in a single session of the Board of Trade are calculated to send observers to incoming reports with some anxiety. Another source of unsettlement to sentiment was to be found in the railroad earning statements of the day, the most important of these being the April return of the Chicago & Northwestern, with its loss of $1,004,000 in gross, an amount reduced to $49,000 in net. Such showings are also borne out by the verbal statements of railroad managers. These various matters were, of course, exaggerated on the Stock Exchange, where were witnessed such losses as 4 points or so in Union Pacific, Reading, and St. Paul, and the Stock Exchange also distinguished itself by producing the first election tremor of the season over a report of an alliance between the Democratic party and labor organizations.

No additional engagements of gold were announced during the day, but exchange rates ruled firm, and further shipments are among the probabilities. Money rates were unchanged, although the banks for the moment are feeling the effects of the gold engagements and Treasury withdrawals severely, having lost to the Sub-Treasury $12,763,000 since Friday last. In banking circles the evident determination of the Republican membership of Congress to jam through currency legislation of some sort is viewed with more alarm than pleasure, since it is only too apparent that no bill going to the root of the real trouble can be devised and enacted within the time left for action.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Weakens on Better Weather—Closes Unchanged to 22 Points Down.

Cotton was less active yesterday and ruled irregular, with the near months relatively firm, while later positions were generally easy. The close was barely steady, net unchanged to 22 points lower, new crop positions showing a net loss of 14@22 points. Sales for the day were estimated at 350,000 bales.

The market opened steady at an advance of 4 points to a decline of 1 point, which was not as good as due on the cables. Weakness in the afternoon was promoted by a more favorable weekly Weather Bureau report.

The range of contract prices was as follows:

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT.—After a rather poor start yesterday, there was a steady advance in the active list. Although the heavy rains departed from harvesting sections of the Winter wheat belt over night, complaints continued from Texas, while the Hessian fly situation in Kansas was featured in most dispatches. Owing to a big decrease in the Canadian Northwest supplies the visible showed a reduction of 2,415,000 bushels for the week, compared with a decrease of 196,000 bushels at the same time last year, while 161 cars were received at Minneapolis and Duluth, against 370 cars last year, and the Minneapolis stock showed a decrease of 225,000 bushels for three days. No export business was reported. A decline of 1/6@¼d at Liverpool was offset by an advance of 2⅜@3⅜c at Budapest. No. 2 wheat closed $1.06, nominal, in elevator, and $1.02¼, to arrive, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.19⅝, afloat.

CORN.—Although the receipts at Chicago were larger than expected and the weather throughout the West showed general improvement, the market seemed bare of offerings, and the official prediction of showers in many of the big States furnished a basis for strong support. The visible supply decreased 537,000 bushels. Liverpool market closed ½d lower. Export business of two loads was reported. No.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Market Upsets Theories.

Declining prices at the close of the market yesterday, upset very badly many theories which had been formulated and announced with regard to the immediate future of at least the leading stocks. While there was more or less conservatism in the market advices, specific opinion in many cases was that a dull market for a time would minimize the bad effects of recent incidents and ultimately progress would be made toward higher figures. It is a fact that in many instances bears who were converted at the last minute were the most prolific in suggestions of this kind. The way the market broke was in consequence a surprise, and undoubtedly was not figured in any of the important opinions, more or less, transmitted to customers. Sentiment was badly depressed, but nowadays it is more or less volatile, and a rally in to-day's market would undoubtedly eliminate the superficial evidences of the distress which the sharp reaction caused in the bullish camp. After the close of the market brokers were almost a unit in emphasizing the need of conservatism, but opinions after the close are always subject to modification within the first thirty minutes on the next day's trading.

Crop News as a Factor.

Whether weather conditions and crop reports had anything to do with the break in the market is difficult to determine, but that was one of the suggestions heard in the closing half hour, and undoubtedly the crop news was not as satisfactory as it might be. The action of the commodity markets and the break in the stock market caused the Western member of a well-known house to wire his Eastern partners after the close of this market as follows: "Do not put the blame for your break in prices on the advance in wheat and corn. You can use it as an excuse, I suppose, but you have all the conditions within your own market explanatory of this sudden tumble in prices. A week or so ago you recognized no condition as adverse; to-day you are ready to see a bear argument in the most innocuous development. So far as the weather is concerned, you ought to be content to ignore it now as you did two or three weeks ago. Probably you know the reason for the decline, but won't tell it."

Light on Currency Muddle.

Scant attention was paid to the Washington dispatches in the matter of the currency situation. Brokers and traders appeared to take the position that if we get a currency bill, well and good, and if we don't, why, well and good, anyway. Brokers did not have to go into details to their customers so far as explaining the details of the expected emergency currency bill and probably if they had had to, they would have found difficulty in doing so. Some of the brokers have kept in fairly close touch with their banking friends in the matter of currency legislation, and yesterday appealed to them for light on the subject. The answer which one banker of more or less prominence gave to a broker who dropped in to see him might be characteristic of the answers given by many other heads of banking institutions. He said: "There is no use asking me about this new currency legislation. Even if I did assume to tell you something, it would be only a guess, and you are just as good at that as I am. In the first place, thus far the details of this famous compromise are obscure, and in the next it is my humble opinion that any bill which will be enacted will not affect you or any one else in this section just now. With business in its present condition, a stringency this Fall is improbable, and by the following Fall Congress will have had a chance to use common sense."

Burlington Bond Sale.

Bond men were naturally interested in the Burlington offering and were not surprised at the result. Bonds of that class and of the class of the recent Pennsylvania loan add little that is significant to the stock of knowledge concerning the general bond situation. They are in a class by themselves, but they are useful in stimulating hopefulness even though the fundamental facts should not inspire any great amount of optimism so far as the general bond outlook may be considered. Trading in bonds in the Street does not show a great amount of activity, but the character of the trading possesses a certain degree of hopefulness. The inquiries, for instance, are more general; there is a more noticeable tendency to meet the market on the part of bidders, and the holders of bonds appear to be sufficiently impressed with the outlook to hold their bonds for fair prices. Bonds which were regarded as in the ultra speculative class three or four months ago have now apparently worked up a little character.

Ripley's Talk on Earnings.

Two items in yesterday's budget of news stimulated interest in different quarters of the district. The statement attributed to President Ripley of the Atchison that May earnings were lower than April, and that the low point so far as earnings are concerned would not be reached for sixty or ninety days, caused those who have been looking for an immediate betterment in business to wonder whether they were premature or Mr. Ripley was over-conservative. Some railroad men were more optimistic than this statement would indicate Mr. Ripley to be, but others were content to accept it as an average of the best railroad opinion. The resolution of Senator Owen of Oklahoma that National banks pay 2 per cent. interest on Government deposits was of academic interest only inasmuch as no legislation of that sort is possible at the present session. Bankers were asked how it would influence the total of Government deposits. Some said that when call money was loaning at 1¾ per cent., there would not be very much incentive to retain Government money on which 2 per cent. was being paid.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 26.—After an irregular opening the undertone in the local copper-share market turned strong. Amalgamated was the most active feature in the list, and showed a fractional gain in the early trading. The market closed irregular at the recession.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 26.—There was not much activity in the local market to-day outside of the arbitrage issues, Reading alone contributing almost one-half of the day's dealings. Continued support was given to Rapid Transit, the price holding firm, and this was also true of Union Traction. Cambria Steel was quiet and firm. While Lehigh Navigation trust certificates advanced a point, the warrants receded 1. The Tonopahs continued steady. Total sales, 26,128 shares.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, May 26.—Money was plentiful in the market to-day, and discounts were easy.

Trading on the Stock Exchange developed a more cheerful tone. The outlook was considered good, and with cheap money and investment buying gilt-edged securities hardened. The settlement of the shipbuilding dispute cheered home rails, and the settlement, which commenced with Kaffirs, revealed substantial advances on the fortnight.

American securities, after adjustment to parity, went easy, but they strengthened later on professional support of the Harriman issues, while Canadian Pacific benefited on crop and weather news. The New York opening brought light supporting orders, but business was narrow, and the market closed dull and steady.

Paris supported foreigners early, but offered stock later.

Bar silver steady, 25 11-16d per ounce.

Money 1@1¼ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 1⅝@1⅞ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for three months' bills is 1⅝@1⅞ per cent.

PARIS, May 26.—Trading on the Bourse to-day was firm.

Three per cent. rentes, 96 francs 45 centimes for the account.

Exchange on London, 25 francs 13 centimes for checks.

BERLIN, May 26.—Prices on the Boerse to-day were firm, especially in American securities, but the trading was dull.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 26.—Trading on the local Exchange was fairly active but without much of a change in prices. Chicago Subway sold at 21 early in the afternoon, but receded to 20, and the final sale was fifty shares at a fraction below that figure. Diamond Match sold at 131, a gain of half a point. Swift shares hardened. Bonds were quiet but firm.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY
SIX PER CENT. CONVERTIBLE GOLD NOTES

Notes are dated May 1st, 1908, and payable on or before May 1st, 1911; interest payable November 1st and May 1st.

Attention is called to a letter of W. W. Finley, Esq., President of the Southern Railway Company, dated May 14th, 1908, copie of which may be obtained at our office. This letter states, among other things, "these Notes are to be secured by pledge under Trust Agreement with New York Trust Company, Trustee, of the following collateral: $20,000,000 Southern Railway Development and General Mortgage 4% Bonds, Series A; $2,500,000 Tennessee Central Railroad Prior Lien Mortgage 4% Bonds; $2,000,000 Virginia & Southwestern Railway First Consolidated Mortgage 5% Bonds. The holders of Notes are to have the right at their option at any time, upon five days' previous notice, to convert their Notes at par into the pledged Southern Railway Development and General Mortgage 4% Bonds, Series A, at the following rates: Until and including May 1, 1909, at 80%; thereafter until and including May 2, 1910, at 82½%; and thereafter until and including May 1, 1911, at 85%, interest in each case, and upon both notes and bonds being allowed and adjusted. Subject to the prior exercise of the foregoing option, as stated in the Trust Indenture, the Railway Company is to have the right at any time to withdraw any or all of said collateral by payment therefor in cash at the following prices: Southern Railway Development and General Mortgage 4% Bonds, Series A, at the same prices and for the same periods as provided above for conversion of the notes; Tennessee Central Prior Lien Mortgage 4% Bonds at not less than 85%; Virginia and Southwestern First Consolidated Mortgage 5% Bonds at not less than 90%, with accrued interest in each case. Such cash is to be applied by the Trustee to the purchase or redemption of the Notes as provided in the Trust Indenture."

Referring to the above, on behalf of the Syndicate which has purchased the above-mentioned Notes we will receive applications for the same at the price of 98½ per cent., and accrued interest, payable at our office, 23 Wall Street, New York, as follows:

On application. . . . . $50 per $1,000 Note.
" June 1st, 1908, ... 935 " 1,000 " and accrued interest.

Holders of Southern Railway Company's Two Year 5% Sterling Notes maturing June 1st, 1908, and July 2d, 1908, may Deposit their Notes, and will receive preference in allotment to the extent of the Notes so deposited, and depositors of Notes maturing June 1st, 1908, will receive a cash payment of $35.00 per Note and depositors of Notes maturing July 2d, 1908, will receive a cash payment of $30.00 per Note in adjustment of difference in price and interest.

Preference in allotment will also be given to registered holders of the Southern Railway Company Stock Trust Certificates making application on the special form, which may be obtained at our office.

The application list will be opened at 10 A. M. on May 27, 1908, and will be closed at or before 3 P. M. the same day.

We reserve to ourselves the absolute right in our discretion to close the application list at any time without notice and to reject any or all applications and also to allot smaller amounts than applied for.

All applications should be made on forms which may be obtained at our office, and must be accompanied by a deposit of $50 per $1,000 Note, or the maturing Sterling Notes of the Southern Railway Company, as mentioned above.

If no allotment is made, the deposit will be returned in full, and if only a portion of the amount applied for be alloted, the balance of the deposit will be appropriated towards the amount due on allotment. If any further balance remains, such balance will be returned. Failure to pay any instalment when due will render previous payments liable to forfeiture.

Temporary receipts will be issued pending delivery of the definitive Notes.

Subscriptions will also be received and Sterling Notes maturing June 1st and July 2d may be deposited at the offices of Messrs. J. S. Morgan & Co., 22 Old Broad Street, London, E. C.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

MONARCH CLOAK AND SUIT COMPANY.—Two petitions in bankruptcy have been filed against Charles Fischer, Harry Fielon, and Samuel Ruditz, cloak manufacturers, under the style of the Monarch Cloak and Suit Company, 33 West Seventeenth Street, one by Oppenheimer & Schreier for their creditors; Michael Nathan, Boston, on an assigned claim of Bacon & Co., and Anselin Frankenthaler, $93, on an assigned claim of Joseph Samuels & Co., and the other by H. and J. J. Lesser, attorneys for these creditors; Velasco, Klein & Lurie, $340; Hirsh & Co., 130, and Harris Lindman & Brother, $158. Insolvency, preferential payments, and transfer of merchandise and accounts are alleged. They have been in business since 1903, and in September last claimed to have assets of $93,572 and liabilities of $13,199. Judge Hough appointed Frederick J. Moses receiver. Liabilities are reported to be $20,000 and assets $5,000.

MAX SHENKOW.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Max Shenkow, surviving partner of M. & B. Shenkow, manufacturers of knee trousers at 85 Walker Street, by Bernard Brunner, attorney for these creditors: Abraham Garblik, $344; Hirsh Berliner, $224; B. Shavinsky, Son & Co., $334, and Samuel Priest & Co., $211. It was alleged that he is insolvent, made preferential payments of $5,000, and transferred merchandise and accounts of $5,000. Judge Hough appointed Henry Lesser receiver. Harry Osterman, of Mr. Bronner's office, said that in the past few days trunkloads of goods valued at $12,000 had been removed from the store to various storage warehouses, and creditors also removed about $5,000 worth of goods. Benjamin Shenkow withdrew from the firm about two months ago, and Max Shenkow claimed he paid $10,000 to Mrs. Shenkow for her husband's interest in the business. Mr. Osterman estimated the liabilities at $20,000. Max and Benjamin Shenkow, as Shenkow & Co., went through bankruptcy in 1905.

PETER SCULAREKES.—Peter Scularekes, 339 West Fortieth Street, formerly a grocer, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $1,776 and no assets.

THE W. H. HART COMPANY.—Schedules in bankruptcy of the W. H. Hart Company, exporters of apples at Poughkeepsie, show liabilities of $115,455, of which $43,480 are secured, and nominal assets of $42,313, $186 of which is cash. There are apples in storage worth $30,000, against which are liens of $41,580. Of these apples 3,500 barrels are at Southampton, England, and 22,889 barrels in Jersey City. Among the creditors are Hall & Carroll, New York City, $29,111, secured; Edward Jacobs & Sons, London, $11,820, secured; Simons, Shuttleworth & Prentice Company, New York, $4,150, and 500 farmers.

DR. JULIUS HAMMER.—Judge Hough has denied a discharge from bankruptcy to Dr. Julius Hammer of 1,488 Lexington Avenue, who filed a petition in bankruptcy on Jan. 31, 1906, with liabilities of $16,304 and no actual assets, on the ground that he concealed assets from his trustee and destroyed check books.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

First Day of Trask Auction Yields $80,455 for 274 Lots—Deal for Wadsworth Avenue Apartments—Other Sales by Brokers.

Two hundred and seventy-four out of the 700 lots in the Trask estate tract around Westchester and Clason Point Avenues were sold at auction in the Vesey Street Salesroom yesterday afternoon for a total of $80,455. The average price per lot was about $274. Selling will be resumed promptly at 11 o'clock this morning, and it is hoped that the remainder of the offering will all be disposed of to-day.

The crowd which faced Auctioneer Day at yesterday's sale was neither so large nor so enthusiastic as those brought out by the other Bronx offerings of the last three weeks. In the opinion of those familiar with the neighborhood the general run of prices was low. This view, moreover, is supported by the fact that there were several large purchases by speculators who, as a class, are not usually eager to dabble in property of this sort except at what they regard as bargain figures.

Stuard Hirschman bought twenty-one lots on Ward Avenue, south of Story Avenue, at $270 each. He also took fifty lots in the block bounded by Story, Lafayette, Craighill, and Morrison Avenues, at $190 a lot. In the block bounded by Story, Ludlow, Harrod, and Morrison Avenues, forty-three lots were struck down to Francis W. Pollock on bids ranging from $190 to $220 a lot. The Whitehall Realty Company purchased twenty-eight lots on the north side of Story Avenue, between Morrison and Craighill Avenues, for $190 each.

The highest prices of the afternoon were those paid for Westchester Avenue lots—a corner at Harrod Avenue bringing $2,225, and three adjoining parcels, bought by M. J. Dowd, $1,025 each.

Successful bids for Ludlow Avenue lots ranged from $435 to $610 for corners and from $260 to $400 for inside lots.

The first lots offered were those on Fteley Avenue, facing the new Clason Point Avenue, where two parcels were knocked down for $725 each, and two more for $700 each. Five adjoining lots on Fteley Avenue went for $700 each, while one abutting on Metcalf Avenue was sold for $600.

BIDE-A-WEE HOME ORDERED TO MOVE

Neighbors Can't Stand the Noise Made by Dogs and Cats Saved from the Streets.

SO DR. DARLINGTON ACTS

Home's President to Appeal to the Health Board To-day—There's Still a Country Home.

Health Commissioner Darlington, after receiving complaints from neighbors of the Bide-a-Wee Home for Friendless Animals at 36 Lexington Avenue about the barking of the dogs in the home, has ordered the charitable women who maintain and manage it to find new quarters. Mrs. Harry Ulysses Kibbe, President of the home, will appeal to the Health Board to-day against Dr. Darlington's order. She hopes that the board will revoke the order.

Mrs. Kibbe said last night that she knew that Dr. Darlington had received many complaints from persons living or doing business near the home. He had advised the society, she said, to get new quarters, but to move to some outlying location, she fears, would be fatal to the home. Mrs. Kibbe said that Dr. Darlington was disposed to be friendly to Bide-a-Wee, and greatly appreciated the work it was doing, but he told her he could not ignore the complaints which had been coming in to him almost since the home was moved to Lexington Avenue.

"The present trouble," she said, "has come upon us, I think, because we have recently had about 200 dogs here while we were transferring them from the temporary home at Noroton, Conn., to the permanent home at Riverdale, N. J.

"If the Board of Health will not permit us to keep this home open and keep dogs here, we shall ask it to let us have a 'distributing station' here. We would than have only a few dogs here at a time.

"Our lease on this building, however, has still two years to run, and it would be a hardship to force us to get out at once.

"The home has been in existence four years now, and its supporters include many of the most prominent people in the city. The society has done a great deal of good in ridding the streets of stray dogs, as well as mercifully putting out of existence animals, both dogs and cats, which were injured beyond the chance of recovery. We have now only about thirty dogs here, and most of these will be shipped away to-morrow morning."

Mrs. Kibbe admitted that she and other officers of the home intended to fight hard to keep it in this city. Some of the near neighbors of Bide-a-Wee, however, are very angry about the noises that come from it. Mrs. Hook of 104 East Twenty-fourth Street, who keeps a boarding house there, brought the matter to the attention of Commissioner Darlington.

"I have lost every boarder in this house except two, and one of them is my daughter," said she last night. "Do they howl? No one who has never lived within a few feet of from fifty to 200 dogs and cats for more than a year knows what dogs' howling is like. I rent this house and the one next door, and pay $2,000 a year for each. Until this dog home came here I did a good business and my rooms were well filled. Now I cannot keep a boarder.

"Frank Fesser, son of the owner of this house, will go to the courts unless we get relief from the Board of Health."

Sam Jaffre, a tailor at 106 East Twenty-fourth Street, who lives over his shop, told a TIMES reporter that Mrs. Jaffre could not sleep for the dogs.

The Bide-a-Wee Society found homes last year for 2,575 animals. It rescued from the streets 2,367 dogs and 2,147 cats. In the Board of Directors are Mrs. George J. Gould, Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant, Mrs. James Speyer, and Mrs. F. W. Vanderbilt.

SEMINOLE OFF UNINJURED.

Liner That Stranded Off Point Pleasant in the Fog Reaches Her Pier.

The Clyde liner Seminole, which stranded off Point Pleasant in the fog late Monday night, was floated by tugs early yesterday morning with her hull uninjured and came to her pier in the afternoon after the fog had lifted. During the morning the bay from Sandy Hook to the Battery was practically free of shipping, as the fog was so dense that even coast steamers did not take any chances.

The City of Columbus of the Savannah Line was the first vessel to crawl up to her pier about noon. The southeast wind, which has been blowing steadily for the past few days, shifted suddenly about 1 o'clock, and the fog cleared away, and the belated fleet of merchant vessels down the bay weighed anchor and steamed up to the city.

The Kaiser Wilhelm II., which left at 10 o'clock for Bremen, anchored in the fog at Quarantine and did not leave there until a few minutes after 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

SALVING THE H. M. WHITNEY.

Wreckers May Get Her Off Rocks To-day—Hell Gate to be Deepened.

The work of salving the steamer Henry M. Whitney, which struck on Flood Rock, in the East River, last Saturday night, continued yesterday, but the steamer still remains fixed on the point of rock that pierced her hull. The cargo is practically all out of her holds, and the Chapman-Merritt Wrecking Company hopes to get her off to-day or to-morrow. Her position in the main channel, between Astoria Point and East Ninety-second Street, is an inconvenient one for the Summer traffic on the Sound.

It is understood that the Government will commence blasting operations on Flood Rock when the steamer has been removed, and deepen the Hell Gate channels. The main channel is to have its full width with an average depth of 26 feet at low water. Congress has appropriated $250,000 for the work, which is to occupy two years.

COMES WITHOUT HER CAPTAIN

Minnehaha's Old Skipper Stricken with Pneumonia on Eve of Sailing.

After anchoring outside Sandy Hook for twenty-four hours the Atlantic Transport liner Minnehaha arrived at her pier at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon and landed her passengers.

On Saturday, May 16, just before the Minnehaha sailed, Capt. Sidney Leyland, her skipper, was taken ashore seriously ill with pneumonia, and the vessel came over under the command of Capt. Alfred P. Jackson, the chief officer. Capt. Leyland is the oldest commander in the company, and has carried the commodore's flag for many years.

Among the Minnehaha's passengers were Mrs. Blanche Baker, Mrs. F. Bird, Thomas Delmar, Walter R. Brown, John W. Baird, the Rev. J. N. Hallock, Capt. and Mrs. N. Trentt, Thomas Young, A. Kirkland, Charles H. Stant, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Glassup, John Grenville, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Montague, and Major Robert H. Noble of the United States Army.

PRISONER'S ODD CONFESSION.

Says Man He Is Suspected of Killing Jumped Into River in Remorse.

John Lucas of Paterson made a remarkable statement last night, a few hours after the body of Christian Devries, a former jockey, was found in Dundee Lake. Lucas has been a prisoner in Hackensack Jail since Wednesday, on suspicion of having thrown Devries from the Wageraw Bridge into the Passaic River.

This is the confession Lucas made last night to the police:

"Devries and I had stolen a horse belonging to Peter Hopper of Fairlawn, and as we were leading it to Paterson Devries suddenly became stricken with remorse over the crime and jumped into the Passaic River. I was fishing for him when I was arrested for attempting suicide and committed to the Hackensack Jail."

Prosecutor Koester and Coroner Demund of Hackensack say they do not believe that Devries committed suicide. Lucas will be "sweated" to-day. An inquest will be held in a few days. Lucas and Devries were friends, and had been trading horses.

WHITMORE EVIDENCE PARTLY COLLAPSES

Two Witnesses at Wife Murder Trial Fail to Identify Accused Motorman.

DIDN'T WRITE 'LENA' LETTERS

So Says the Dead Woman's Sister—Another Witness Says He Saw Prisoner in Newark on Night of Murder.

There were good moments and bad for Theodore S. Whitmore in yesterday's session of his trial in Jersey City for the murder of his wife Lena on Christmas Day. One of the good moments came when Justice Swayze told Assistant Prosecutor Vickers, who was endeavoring to put in evidence the telegrams received by Mrs. Whitmore's relatives after her disappearance that he had yet to see any evidence connecting the defendant with the telegrams.

Joseph F. Quinn, a witness, said that he saw Whitmore in the crowd of passengers leaving the Newark train at 12:40 on the morning of the day the body of Mrs. Whitmore was found.

"I have known Whitmore for three years," said Quinn, who is a youth, "and I saw him in the crowd leaving the train that arrives in Jersey City from Newark at 12:40 or 12:45 on the morning of Dec. 26. At times I was within fifteen feet of him as he walked ahead of me. We went through the concourse toward the boat. There was a man there who was trying to beat his fare over on the boat, not having come in on the train. I heard Whitmore say to him when the gatetender was telling the man he'd have to pay:

"'You're a cheap skate. Why don't you pay your fare?'"

Under Mr. Simpson's cross-examination the witness admitted that he had first told the story in a barroom. He denied that the man to whom he told it shared with him $200 that he got from a newspaper for the story. He also denied that he had tried to get Pennsylvania Railroad employes to substantiate his story.

The State's Witness Fails.

Mr. Vickers placed Frank J. May, a detective in the Pennsylvania Station, on the stand. He related the incident of the man's effort to get on the boat without paying his fare. He looked about at the owner of the voice and saw a man about five feet seven inches in height.

"Describe this man again," said Mr. Simpson in cross-examination.

"He was five feet seven, and had a mustache," said the witness.

"He had a mustache, had he?" said Mr. Simpson, glancing at his client's clean-shaven lip.

Then the lawyer whirled about upon his client.

"Stand up, Whitmore," he said sharply.

Whitmore got to his feet quickly. The witness and prisoner stared into each other's eyes.

"I'll get around where you can see me," said Whitmore, bravely striding into the open space before the jury box before any one could say anything.

The witness continued to stare at Whitmore for a second, and then he half turned toward Justice Swayze.

"I never saw this man in my life before," said the witness loudly.

"To the best of your knowledge," came from Assistant Prosecutor Vickers.

"Stop!" ordered Justice Swayze, and "I protest!" said Mr. Simpson in the same breath. Mr. Vickers apologized.

A moment later another railroad detective, Charles M. Kroll, said that he couldn't remember the man who had called the other "A cheap skate."

The State began its case yesterday by offering several elevated road employes, who testified that they had seen Whitmore, the motorman, on the platform of the City Hall station on the morning of Dec. 26, after 1 o'clock. He had gone there, some of them said, to see that a man had been put in charge of his run, as he had reported sick. It was also brought out that Whitmore had gone to the City Hall station with a man whom he called "Doc" Wilson on Christmas Eve and that Wilson had called up the office of the Trainmaster to say that Whitmore had a bad cold and could not work that night.

Walter McDonald, a waiter, who lived in Whitmore's house, said that Whitmore had been in his Park Row restaurant on Christmas Day at 6 P. M., and also about 1:20 A. M. Dec. 26. McDonald also said that he had not seen Mrs. Whitmore about the house for five days before Christmas, and that Whitmore had told him that his wife had had her trunk packed for five days before Christmas.

Didn't Write the "Lena" Letters.

Mrs. Bessie Schmitters, the sister of the dead woman, told of quarrels that the Whitmores had had eight and six years ago. She had last seen Lena Whitmore alive at her own house on Christmas Eve. The witness said that she had gone to Whitmore's Brooklyn home on Dec. 29 to find out where Lena was. Whitmore had at first told her that Lena was in Brooklyn, and then had said a little later that she was in Schenectady with her brother and "Harry." Mrs. Schmitters told of the receipt of Lena's trunk filled with rubbish, and identified letters and telegrams signed "Lena," which she received after Dec. 29. The letters, she declared, were not in the handwriting of either Whitmore or Lena.

John J. Sullivan, a Harrison stenographer, said that he made shorthand notes of Whitmore's statement to Judge Branegan of Harrison. This statement, it came out in the testimony, had contained Whitmore's assertion that his wife had been home with him in Brooklyn on Christmas Day and that she had left at 4 that afternoon, leaving him a letter in which she said "I will be your wife nevermore" and "It is useless to look for me." Whitmore had also said that he had determined on Christmas Day to put up no longer with the conduct of his wife.

Detective William D. Roddy of the Brooklyn Detective Bureau told of the visit of himself and two other detectives to the Whitmore house in Adams Street, Brooklyn, when Whitmore at first denied his identity, explaining later that he had thought they were newspaper men, who had been bothering him. They took Whitmore to Brooklyn Headquarters, where he said he thought that the body in Harrison might be that of his wife. He also told of finding in a saloon jewelry belonging to Mrs. Whitmore.

Important Point for Whitmore.

Then Assistant Prosecutor Vickers put on the stand Matthew Jones of the Western Union Telegraph Company's complaint department. He produced the originals of the telegrams received by Mrs. Schmitters, Mrs. Whitmore's sister. Mr. Vickers offered the telegrams in evidence. Mr. Simpson was inclined to let them in without objection, when Justice Swayze remarked:

"I have yet to see any evidence connecting these telegrams with the defendant." Mr. Vickers differed.

"Well, if there is," said the Justice, "point it out to me in the morning, but I now recall no such evidence."

Mr. Simpson thereupon objected to the admission in evidence of the telegrams, and the court ordered them handed over to the Court Clerk for the day.

After Monte Cutler, a newspaper man, had testified as to Whitmore's first visit to the Morgue, court adjourned until this morning.

80 GIRLS LOST IN A FOG.

Walked Miles Over the Rockaway Sand Dunes to Get Back to Brooklyn.

Prof. Albert L. Arey, with eighty girls from the Brooklyn High School, was lost in the fog on the sand dunes of Rockaway Point Monday afternoon, and it was only after hours of weary walking that they got back to their homes in Brooklyn.

The schoolgirls had been looking forward for several weeks to the trip as a practical lesson in physical geography. So on Monday, as the weather looked promising, eighty girls, with their lone male escort, started at about 3 in the afternoon. They boarded a boat chartered at Canarsie and were landed at Rockaway, near the point.

All went well until a dense wet fog drifted in from the sea which soon soaked the clothing of the party. They found their way back to the boat landing, but their boat was not there, and, finally, with darkness coming on, they gave up hopes of its returning for them.

After a long walk through puddles, quagmires, and over sand hills they reached the Long Island Railroad station at Rockaway Park. They were all thoroughly exhausted by the walk.

Finding that it would be two hours before the next train would go out, the party hustled for something to east and landed a bunch of bananas and a crate of crackers. That and a better knowledge of physical geography was all they had to comfort them.

When the girls finally got home they were promptly put to bed and fed on quinine and other preventitives of cold. Most of the girls would'nt have had money enough to pay their fares home if the professor had not gone prepared with a bunch of change, which he lent out freely.

L. I. RAILROAD BRANCHES OUT.

Doubles Electric Service to Jamaica to Handle Subway Traffic.

The Long Island Railroad doubled its electric service between Brooklyn and Jamaica yesterday and added many trains to the schedules for other divisions of its lines. On Monday fifty local trains were operated between Brooklyn and Jamaica and fifty-six express trains. Yesterday ninety-six local trains and eighty-five express trains ran.

The present time table is experimental, as the officials have no means of gauging the number of people who will switch from the Long Island City route, avoiding the ferry, to the Brooklyn-Jamaica route, now that the tunnel and Subway are open.

The new electric line to Hempstead was also started yesterday and carried many passengers. Hempstead expresses will hereafter run from and to Brooklyn, connecting at Flatbush Avenue with Manhattan Subway trains, thus enabling passengers to go to all parts of Manhattan with but the one change of cars at Flatbush Avenue.

Substantial additions to the number of trains on all other divisions were made yesterday. Express trains for Summer residents were put on the Oyster Bay, Wading River, and South Side Branches.

T. J. Taylor & Co. Must Pay $3,000.

A verdict for $3,000 was returned in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday in favor of Alfred N. Ridgely in his suit against Talbot J. Taylor & Co. for $25,000 commissions. Ridgely sued the Taylor concern and James R. Keene, alleging that they had retained him to boost Southern Pacific stock. On motion of Mr. Keene's lawyer, the suit was dismissed as to him, and the trial proceeded against Talbot J. Taylor & Co.

FIRST BALLOT BOXES TO BE OPENED TO-DAY

Justice Lambert Overrules the Mayor's Objections and Orders Recount to Begin.

BOXES UNDER CLOSE GUARD

Delay by President Dooling in Producing Them Results in Contempt Order, but He Escapes by Appearing.

Unless something unforeseen happens the first of the 1,940 ballot boxes containing the votes cast in the 1905 Mayoralty election, and over which such a protracted legal fight has waged ever since in an effort by William R. Hearst to obtain a recount, will be opened this morning before Supreme Court Justice Lambert and the jury which for eight weeks has been listening to the testimony in the case. The recount will begin at once.

At the beginning of yesterday's session Justice Lambert overruled the seventeen objections made the day previous by Eugene Lamb Richards, counsel for Mayor McClellan, against the production of the ballot boxes in court. The Hearst forces were greatly elated over the decision.

Justice Lambert also denied the application made by Corporation Counsel Pendleton to have vacated the subpoena directing President Dooling of the Election Board to produce the ballot boxes in court. Later on in the afternoon Mr. Dooling appeared in court and expressed his willingness to comply with the court's order. Clarence J. Shearn, counsel for W. R. Hearst, asked that the court appoint a representative of the Attorney General's office or some one to be designated by the court to accompany the ballot boxes from the various warehouses where they are stored to the courtroom, "so that we may be certain there is no interference with them on the way here."

Justice Lambert appointed Lieut. Ward, who has been in charge of the policemen who testified in the case, to accompany the boxes. It being learned that Ward was off duty, the court adjourned for the day.

The ballot boxes which have been ordered to be produced this morning are those in the Sixth Election District of the Second Assembly District, the Seventh of the Eighth, the Eighth of the Eighth, the Tenth of the Eighth, and the Seventeenth of the Second. A further list of ten boxes from various downtown election districts was given to Mr. Dooling by Mr. Shearn for production to-morrow.

At one time it looked as though Mr. Shearn was going to have some trouble in finding Mr. Dooling in order to serve him with the necessary order to produce the ballot boxes. In fact, it was well into the afternoon, and Mr. Shearn had obtained an order from Justice Lambert directing Mr. Dooling to show cause why an attachment should not be issued against him, and why he should not be adjudged in contempt of court, when in walked Mr. Dooling. The notice was served on him by Mr. Shearn, and every one smiled. Matters were then quickly adjusted.

Mr. Richards, during the morning session, said it had come to his knowledge that Mr. Hearst was to sail for Europe to-day. He asked for some assurance from the Hearst faction that their leader would be on hand when wanted. The assurance not being forthcoming, Justice Lambert remarked, after a pause:

"I do not know Mr. Hearst or anything about the matter. I have never seen him. But if I were an attorney I think I would subpoena him if I wanted him." The matter was then dropped, although it is understood that Mr. Richards has issued a subpoena for Mr. Hearst's appearance.

HARPER'S STEEL CO. SOLD.

Rogers, Brown & Co. Buy Failed Concern Fathered by Cincinnati Plunger.

By the purchase at auction in Cincinnati on Monday of $200,000 face value of the bonds of the Union Iron and Steel Company of Delaware, Rogers, Brown & Co. come into control of the corporation at a cost of $25,000.

The Union Iron and Steel Company went into the hands of a receiver in September of last year. It was a survival of the $60,000,000 Union Steel Chain Company formed by Edward L. Harper, once Vice President of the Fidelity National Bank of Cincinnati, for wrecking which in 1887, during an attempt to corner the wheat market, he received a ten-year sentence. Harper was Vice President of the Union Iron and Steel Company at the time it went into the hands of a receiver. In 1906 a judgment for $5,280,000 was entered against him in the United States Circuit Court in New York in a suit brought by the receiver of the wrecked bank, the depositors of which had received only 58 per cent. of their claims. Harper had attempted to wipe out his indebtedness through bankruptcy proceedings, but his action was successfully contested.

The company has been only a small factor in the iron trade, although it has plants at Ironton, Ohio; Big Stone Gap, Va.; Chatham, N. Y.; Denver, Col., and Birmingham, Ala. The bonds are a lien on the Ironton property and will be foreclosed.

POPE COMPANY DIVIDEND.

Receivers of Failed Concern to Pay 25 Per Cent. to Creditors.

The receivers of the Pope Manufacturing Company, which failed for several millions last year, were authorized by Vice Chancellor Howell in Newark yesterday to make a payment of 25 per cent. on approved claims, the aggregate to be paid out amounting to $387,000. The payment, however, is to be deferred until the receivers shall have in hand $50,000 additional as proceeds of the sale of 1,465 shares of stock of the American Wood Rim Company, which the Vice Chancellor ordered made.

The payment of the 25 per cent. dividend was opposed by John J. Treacy of Jersey City on behalf of Louisa Unzicker and others of Chicago, who put in a claim of upward of $500,000 for breach of covenants of lease. Mr. Treacy's clients are the owners of premises which they had leased to the Pope Company for twenty-five years at an annual rental of $25,000.

TRAFFIC MEN CONFER.

Southwestern Roads' Chief Clerks Discuss Freight Classifications Here.

Representatives of the traffic departments of the Southwestern railroads, who have been meeting in this city for some days, attended a conference yesterday at the Trunk Line Association offices with representatives of some of the Eastern lines. It was reported that rate revisions were under discussion, but this was denied, so far at least as concerned any direct changes in rates.

An official of one of the Southwestern roads said that the men in conference here were the chief clerks of the traffic departments of the Southwestern railroads and that they were discussing classification matters only and were not dealing with rates at all.
